A dog whose breed was the biggest in the Belleville and District Kennel Club Show this weekend in Frankford attracted the enthusiastic attention of one of the smallest. Anna Hobson's Irish wolfhound, (bitch), Wilderness Moira, found a suitor in Mrs. Frank Horner's miniature pinscher champion dog, Homer's Inch Pinach Zeus. Quipped Mrs. Homer, a Connecticut breeder, "If the offspring look like wolfhounds, I'll sue you." For story, see Page 3.

Arab Summit Stalled

Hussein, Arafat Claim Palestine

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — An impasse over the rival claims of Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to future control of the West Bank part of the Jordan River is blocking discussion of other matters at the Arab summit conference. No compromise appears likely.

"It is either the PLO or Jordan," said spokesmen for King Hussein and guerrilla chieftain Yasir Arafat, using identical words. Both insisted the conference must choose between them.

"The PLO rejects the right of Jordan to represent any part of Palestinian territory at any time and under any circumstances, including withdrawal negotiations," PLO spokesman Yassir Abd Rabbo said.

The three-day conference was to have ended today, but it may be extended another day.

The West Bank territory was taken by Jordan in the 1948 Palestine war and held until Israel occupied it in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Hussein has insisted that it be returned to him if Israel gives it up, and insists that meanwhile only he can negotiate with Israel on behalf of the Palestinians living on both sides of the Jordan. Israel agrees with this position and refuses to negotiate with the PLO.

Sisters Are Targets Of Separate Attacks

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto man was stabbed 12 times with a pair of scissors when he went to the rescue of his two children who were being attacked by an intruder who had climbed through a window early Sunday.

George Harvey, 47, is in satisfactory condition in hospital with a punctured lung, torn bowel and multiple stab wounds.

Police said the intruder tried to rape Mr. Harvey's five-year-old daughter and punched his eight-month-old son and slammed the boy's head against a wall.

Minutes later, a couple of blocks away, a man tried to break through a bedroom window where Mr. Harvey's nine-year-old daughter was sleeping with a girlfriend.

Mrs. Harvey said neither she nor her husband knew the intruder, described by police as being between 18 and 25.

Argentina Rightists Attack Moral Decay

Boxing Champ Who Hit Wife Joins Movie Stars on Death List

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — World middleweight boxing champion Carlos Monzon was under arrest today, accused of hitting his wife in a domestic quarrel. At the same time, his name appeared at the head of a death list issued by Argentina's rightist Triple A death squad.

Monzon, being held in his home town of Santa Fe, north of here, tops one of two death lists issued during the weekend by the Argentine Anti-Communist and show-business personalities for death.

The threats against the show-business people apparently a move by the death to clean up sexual morals entertainment. Monzon ily starred in a film containing torrid sex scenes.

The first death list, sent to the Radical party (UCR), biggest opposition party to the Peronist government, warned eight party officials, including a senator and three congressional deputies; to leave Argentina within 72 hours or die.

The second list, received by the Argentine Actors Association, included three actresses and an actor, five TV and movie directors, a former TV station manager and Monzon — an idol in Argentina.

Monzon's connection with the group appears to have been his starring role in his first film, La Mary.

A number of left-wing show-business people already have fled after receiving similar threats. The Triple A has killed at least 25 persons in the last few weeks.

The five non-political personalities named were Monzon, actresses Susana Giménez and Isabel Sarli, and film directors Armando Bo and Daniel Tinayre. Miss Sarli has become Argentina's national sex symbol and Bo has directed all her films.

The threatened artists have been associated with controversial films or are considered left-wing sympathizers.

Attacks on them might be rightist reprisals for killings Marxist and left-wing Peronist guerrillas are carrying out in what is a wave of political violence which has taken 125 lives since the death of President Juan Peron July 1.

The latest of these was the killing of Bruno Jordan Genta, 64, a philosophy professor regarded as one of the ideologists of right-wing nationalism in Argentina. He was hit by eight bullets fired by unknown men as he left his home Sunday.

Strike Over

Ambulance Drivers Accept New Pact

TRENTON — The eight employees of Rushnell Ambulance Service went back to their day strike and were back working after company and CUPE Local representatives signed a new one-year contract.

CUPE members walked out on the picket line Saturday after talking in signing the local's first negotiated contract.

Accountant and spokesman for Rushnell Ambulance the company was not stalling. "It was a problem of timing," he said.

Mr. Newman said on Oct. 23 the two parties agreed in principle to the contract but had to revamp several minor items. Four minor changes were agreed to by both parties but CUPE's Peterborough representative was not available Friday for final ratification.

The new contract, in the negotiations stage for seven months, provides for a reduction in hours worked to 48 a week from the previous 96 hours one week and 72 the next.

Mr. Newman said a pay scale has been set up for the drivers.

Previously, workers received the provincial minimum wage of $86 for a 48-hour week.

Now the base rate is $2.40 ($115.20). It ranges upwards to $2.81 an hour after the first year and $3.62 an hour after two years. Emergency and special qualifications — such as first aid certificates or radio operator's licence — will receive premiums up to a maximum of 25 cents an hour.

Additional improvements also have been made in employee benefits.

A union spokesman could not be reached for comment today.

LONSDALE — A crucial battle of the War of 1812, between the United States and British Canada was fought here during the weekend.

Four military history buffs spent the weekend as British regulars, recording their version of the hours-of-action on tape that will be used as background to a slide presentation of the Battle of Stoney Creek.

In that battle, 700 British soldiers under the command of Col. John Harvey surprised and captured two American generals — John Chandler and William Winder. The U.S. forces, 2,100 strong, were forced to retire and the battle is considered by historians to have been pivotal in the eventual British and Canadian victory.

Bill Henry, Jim Bolton, Marc Seguin and Mike McKenna, all of 1812, relived the lives of British troopers. They marched through the bush, ate salt beef, pease porridge and dined watching the their counterparts would have done in June of 1813.

On campaign a British soldier was issued a pound each of salt beef and bread a day that was if for rations for the weekend.

The weekend musket volleys, drum rolls and all of was recorded by Marion Lewis, curator of the Hastings County Museum, to be incorporated into a slide presentation at the Gage-Home, a national museum on the site of the Battle of Stoney Creek

Principal: Moira Students Raised Hope Not Hell

Moira Secondary School's 1974 graduates received their diplomas Saturday night at Bridge St. United Church instead of the town hall.

Construction at the school has been "a disaster area" said principal K. J. Shipton.

"But we are pleased with the way students and residents have coped with the disaster," he said. "This year was one of the happiest of my career. Our Grade 13 and 13 students brought us particular pleasure because they were pleasant people."

"They didn't raise hell," he continued. "They raised hope. They were [illegible] altogether; they were dynamic. They accepted responsibility."

Valedictorian Donald McLean said one memory will stand out: The influence of a staff member on a student's life.

"For teachers will never know when your influence ends," he said.

He said Moira's service program has had given its graduates the will to carry on.

"The youth of this age is not a lost race, because, it has not yet been discovered, whose power is locked within us," he said.

Moira had 102 honor graduates (Grade 13). Of these, 22 were Ontario scholars. They are: Jane Britton, Patricia Byrtus, Barbara Carroll, Charlotte Clarke, Sheila Craig, Francis Getty, Carol Hall, Ruth Kollaru, Peter Lask, Linda Lewis, Donald MacDonald, Donald McLean, Pamela Malcolm, Daniel Nuttal, Alex Olszewski, Susan Rowbotham, Jennifer Sine, Susan Slaughter, Lee Stratton, Carol Thielke, Susan Thompson and Dawn Yelverton.

Mrs. Burke returned to school at Moira to become not only the first female to graduate but the recipient of a special prize in geography. Mr. Shipton invited all interested parents to enrol at Moira to emulate her record.

Maureen Corrigan was the Belleville Business bursary of $100 for a student continuing his or her education. The Hastings County Board of Education prize of $100 was won by Miriam Clark and John Steadman, for students who have made outstanding contributions to Moira's community service program.

Susan Slaughter won the Queen's University scholarship of $1,000, Sine Olszewski the York University entrance scholarship of $600 and Lee Stratton won a similar York scholarship of $600.

Moira is the secondary school in which students from Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve are enrolled. It has set annual enrolment of about 80 Indian students.

Unique to Moira are two special awards.

The first is the Andrew Miracle Mohawk Centre Award of $100 to a deserving Indian student graduating from Grade 12 or 13 who is proceeding to post-secondary education. It was won by Philip Hill.

In memory of Leslie Claus, first Indian Saloon officer at Moira, who died in June, an award has been started for an Indian student graduating from Grade 13. The award was set hand to present it to Sylvia Marsden, a Grade 13 stalium student at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

Moira Moves Graduation

Moira Secondary School's annual graduation was moved this year to Bridge Street United Church because of construction at the school. Retired Indian Affairs officer, Les Claus, returned to present some of the diplomas and the special award to an Indian student instituted this year in his honor. Presiding at the microphone is Moira teacher Robert Phillips.

Quinte Tops List With Most Grads

Of all Ontario county's eight secondary schools, Quinte started out the most graduates this year. At graduation Saturday night the school handed out 89 secondary school diplomas and 69 honor graduation diplomas. It had 16 Ontario scholars and a first, a second, a girl, Alicia Waller, daughter of a school board trustee, who completed five grades in four years and earned an Ontario scholarship.

Quinte's students prescribed the type of graduation speaker they wanted — one who was humorous, brief, and had something worthwhile to say. They got it in Wesley Baker, QC MP for Grenville-Carleton. A Former Albert College student, he is also deputy house leader in the federal parliament.

Mr. Baker substituted plaud for advice. He asked the grad mates for participation, judgment and concern.

He urged young people to get into public life, either secretly or by supporting a candidate.

Mr. Baker also asked the graduates for their concern about their country. He mentioned universal education, security and dignity for the aged and opportunity for employment for all.

Heather Hardcre, valedictorian, said education is more than skill-learning. It is exploring, experiencing and exploiting.

"A person who truly knows himself will have a better understanding of others. Perhaps the secret to this is what education is about," she said.

Quinte's Ontario scholars were David Clare, Nancy Clarke, Kevin Corbin, Alice Hardcre, Wendy Haworth, Kenny Lal, Beverly Lewis, Philip Martin, Mark Nolan, Glen Oxford, Glen Sine, Kenneth Stratton and Alicia Waller.

Marie Bennett was the first Hastings County entrance scholarship of $200. The Quinte Secondary School staff chapter's trophy of $100 each went to David Clare and Richard Whitehead.

The Intelligencer scholarship of $100 was awarded to Wendy Haworth for the highest standing in grade 13 English.

The R. Julien Chapter, IODE, award for the Grade 13 graduate continuing his secondary school is Philip Martin. Regyra Armenas won the Belleville Kinsmen Bursary of $100.

Glen Sine was the principal's trophy for the best all-round student.

Principal John Hayman received his own award, the presentation of the first record cut by the senior stage band of the school.

Hunters Reported Trespassing

PICTON — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reported today numerous weekend complaints of hunters trespassing on Prince Edward county farm property.

Community service officer Donald Watt said the offenders were reported in Athol Township, Sidney, Rawdon, Hallowell and in Ameliasburgh. He says usually the hunters exchange words with farmers who confront them, then leave before the OPP arrive. The majority of trespassing hunters are out-of-county residents, he says.

Protesters Denied Use of Building

TYENDINAGA — Opponents of the elected Quinte Mohawk Council have been refused permission to use the reserve's community centre for a meeting tonight.

The group announced last Wednesday that it planned holding a general reserve meeting. Purpose of the session was to discuss an election which council spokesmen have called for Nov. 30.

The decision to refuse another council, they say. The group claims it has dissolved the council of Chief William Brant which now is nearing the end of the first of two years in elected office.

Chief Brant said today he had refused permission for use of the community hall for today's meeting. The chief said he is the only one empowered to call a general meeting of all reserve residents.

He said the opposition group is "doing something illegal as far as I'm concerned," and "there is no reason to add fuel to the fire."

Brant Maracle, a spokesman for council opponents, said the building belonged to all reserve residents and they group intended going ahead with the general meeting.

The session has been called for 8 p.m.

Fire Under Investigation

Inspectors from the city fire department today are investigating the cause of a blaze that caused heavy smoke damage to a store unit in the basement of a West Park Village apartment building.

Some of the fire was a three-storey building containing 13 apartments at 115 Progress Ave.

The fire started in a locker room in the basement about 11.15 p.m. Entrance doors to the building are locked at 11 p.m., said fire Chief Leo Collins.

Frankford Canine Show: For Browsers and Bowsers

Belleville and District Kennel Club's show is over for another year, with exhausted officers having processed no less than 1,000 dogs through the show ring.

The largest show in eastern Ontario, it was on Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Frankford Arena. Each day featured a separate show. Entries were from all over Canada and the United States, and judges came from as far as Hollywood, Calif.

A whippet, Canadian and American champion Dendelayne Rencorer, owned by Max Magder of Toronto, was judged best in show Friday.

Best Canadian bred in show Friday was a 20-month-old male chocolate Labrador, Jef Peddle, H. E. Williams and J. I. Williams, of Don Mills.

Best in show Saturday was a wire fox terrier, "English and Canadian Champion Sandra Silwayre Tarkman, a male owned by Mrs. Pamela J. Running, RR3, Brampton.

Best Canadian bred in show Saturday was a four-year-old Afghan hound owned by Barbara and Gary DiMarco, West Canadian bred puppy in show as a female Doberman pinscher, owned by Marven Heron of Scarborough.

Best in show Sunday was a Labrador retriever, an English, Canadian and American Champion, Colleen Lorelde, a three-year-old male owned by Valarie Reid, of Dorval, Que. Best Canadian bred dog was the same Chow-chow that took the prize Friday.

Obedience trials were held in conjunction with the unbenched show. President of the local kennel club is Lew Barks, and show chairman was Garnet Brown.

Schools Entered

Culprits in a breakin at Hillcrest public school last after they set off the fire alarm Saturday night, police believe. Damage was estimated at $100.

Damage was set at $100 after Parkdale public school was entered between Friday night and Saturday afternoon, police say.

Several rooms, including the kitchen and principal's office, were ransacked.

Water Baby

Tara Bentley, daughter of Brian and Linda Bentley, brought in $54 Saturday performing three widths of the pool in the YMCA Swim-athon. Now ten months old, Tara was introduced to water at four weeks, and spent up to two hours a day swimming this summer. Not only can she do a creditable dog-paddle, she loves every minute of it.

Hairdressing

Dogs were fussed over more avidly this weekend at the Belleville and District Kennel Club Show than a star gabs before the cameras. The more than 1,000 dogs in the show were stars, the best examples of their breed. Waiting patiently at a grooming stand for his pre-show ring comb-out is one of the Irish setters entered in the three-day event in Frankford arena.

Social Ills

Sir Keith Joseph, one-time Conservative minister in charge of social security in Britain, is in the doghouse over remarks that have fuelled the embers of never-far-below-the-surface class warfare in that part of the world.

Sir Keith is advocating birth control among the so-called lower classes to prevent what he calls the degeneration of British society. He blames much of Britain's social ills on what he calls working class sexual permissiveness that leads to teenage pregnancies and illegitimate births, in other words, children born to the least fit mothers — the unmarried, the deserted, those of low intelligence and low education.

Not surprisingly, Sir Keith's speech has caused angry reaction in Britain. And yet, class-ridden as his observations are, and recognizing that prominently among the young in Britain is not confined solely to the less educated or the working class, they home the less have a message.

In Britain, just as in other parts of post-war Europe and in North America, has been experiencing a general breakdown of social values, manifesting itself in just the sort of social problems to which Sir Keith refers.

Another version of the same scenario is reflected in a five-part series in The Christian Science Monitor on the subject of abused and neglected children. Help for these is urgently needed, says The Monitor, pointing out that up to 4,500 children are killed each year by their parents, while up to 90,000 are injured. Tragically, this is only the tip of the iceberg, countless cases never coming to light. There are not enough social workers, and those there are, not even in some areas of New York and other big cities, take considerable risks in trying to cope with the problem. They may be confronted with guns, ordered from a home, some female workers have been raped, and yet a number of them, says the Monitor series, have quit other respectable executive jobs to labor at rescuing children.

To a greater or lesser extent, this is a problem affecting every community of any size, whether it is in Britain, the U.S., or in Canada. Increasingly it is a problem of these times, and one for which all of us must share responsibility, not only for the causes, but for the moral support of the agencies trying to combat it.

Trustee Retiring

Former education board chairman James Plomer's decision not to seek re-election as South Marysburg trustee removes a colorful personality from the county's school system.

The veteran trustee and former naval commander is not contemplating a less active retirement however. He says he is stepping down on the result of pressure of outside commitments.

A railroad buff, Mr. Plomer addressed a Belleville service club on this theme some years ago. But he was as commander of the destroyer HMCS Cayuga during the Korean war that was to bring him to public notice.

Aboard the Cayuga as medical officer was Ferdinand Waldo Demara, setting out one of his amazing careers as The Great Imposter, including in this instance some heroic surgery on a group of wounded Korcans who were brought on board.

It was Mr. Plomer who supervised the tricky navigation needed to hold the ship steady in stormy seas while the surgery was in progress.

Demara's real identity of course was exposed ultimately, but a book and a Hollywood film which is now on television from time to time, keep alive those stirring times.

James Plomer meanwhile, and many others like him, serve their community and time well in the field of educational administration. In retirement from this sphere, out with such other veterans as Ameliasburg's George Flower, the hope is that others will come forward to help further educational development in this area.

A Lack Of Leadership And Direction in Ottawa

International Development Agency And The Third World

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

What kind of role should Canada play in the Third World?

In CIDA, the Canadian International Development Agency formed in 1968, Canada has the technical assistance needs of the underdeveloped world were recognized, functioning in the way it should.

And at the diplomatic and foreign policy level, what should our responses now be to a growing number of Third World nations whose economic, independence and social development could now largely be secured through their fabulous new if substantially increased payments and royalties for their resource exports?

These nations obviously include the approximately dozen members of the organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, several of whom — notably Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iran — have reached or already passed Mr. Rostow's famous take-off point for emerging economies.

An even smaller number claim that they will reach "world power status" before the end of this century, or a position of international prestige, based on one or more accelerated developments in their national system.

Such Third World nations include People's Republic of China, Brazil, Nigeria, Indonesia and Iran.

To overemphasize, China's claim is based substantially on the homogeneity, politically and economically, of the Communist Party, which governs 800 million people, setting an unprecedented example of the power of a social revolution which presumably could be a model for certain kinds of change in comparative systems in the Third World, Tanzania and Kenya in Africa coming to mind.

Brazil's claim to world power status is based on her continuing economic growth, especially conservative economic system, which is the envy of Latin America's other nations. Brazil's large administration has brought to the country's economy one of the world's largest states geographically.

The Nigerian claim is largely a function of Nigeria's potential as a federal state in a continent of many fractious, small and artificial nations where Nigeria remains the largest political entity and which has survived the nasty civil war in her eastern district in 1968-69.

The Iranian is based largely on the current world energy campaign of the Shah to modernize his country through foreign investments, selected import technology — technological industries, the creation of what will be the largest military infrastructure in the Third World and the role he is developing in the Arabian Sea.

These are all so-called "star performers" in the large firmament of underdeveloped countries still plagued with the unsolved problems of over-population, illiteracy and chronic malnutrition.

As Iran can be matched by a Bangladesh, surely the largest non-nation in the Third World, living on international charity and food imports. Its sole claim to fame is the fact she has more starving and homeless citizens per square mile than any other nation on earth.

A Nigeria can be matched by a Chad, one of the bizarre African states sheltered by drought, famine and disease, a pattern of human despair which has not yet been relieved and for reasons of climatic and social change which are not yet fully comprehended.

And a Brazil in Latin America can be challenged by a list of squalid hemispheric societies unable to match anything close to an economic miracle. Brazil's expensive military government, which, even though challenged by the elective one in Chile, is the only true social democratic government not only in the hemisphere, unwilling to make Venezuela a working democracy not unlike our own, but the financial resources to fulfil long-term promises for social betterment.

Then there are the Third World nations, already poor and at the mercy of the 50 industrial states who buy their raw materials, but who have suffered hit by the same blow in oil prices.

These include such smaller emerging nations as Jamaica and Guyana. They have been copied the OPEC formula and have formed an association of bauxite-producing nations fixing a uniform price for their major commodity export to help meet the high fuel costs, already a major drain on their balance of payments.

But for most Third World nations, the basic economic and social problems, despite aid, are not changed. Technological aid and assistance whether through CIDA, the World Bank, private loans, bilateral assistance programs, etc., have not moved them a very short distance indeed from the subsistence level they have known since independence.

In fact many Third World nations are not nations at all, but sectors, islands of territorial originally marked out by colonial administrators which will always have difficulties "emerging" in any way consistent viable either by the dominant economist or the social scientist.

The new Portuguese-speaking African republic of Guinea-Bissau is a case in point. For years it was the source of much international political propaganda on its behalf for "liberation" by the rebels fighting against Portuguese colonial rule in Africa.

But this steamy piece of largely non-productive West African real estate is now a separate nation, adding to the burden of the developed countries to lend aid still making loans and assistance from its wealth which now has its own financial

Fight Against Inflation

Indexing Of All Pension Plans Would Be An Expensive Business

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

One of the promises in the throne speech at the opening of the current session of Parliament was this:

"Representatives of the private sector industry (will) be asked to explore, jointly with government, ways of protecting pensions against inflation."

That may sound simple. In fact, if is probably the most difficult task the government has set for itself and for industry.

Everyone is aware of the growing difficulty that pensioners face in this age of rapid inflation—even in Canada, despite the boasts of Messrs. Trudeau and Turner about Canada's superior economic performance.

(The Paris-based Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, using its own statistical basis, has put Canada's inflation rate for the 12 months to July 31, 1974, at 11.3 per cent, the 36th best among the 36 OCED countries.)

But not everyone is aware of the problem facing the pensioner who have to be paid for the easy, popular reason that he is, to increase all public and private pensions and allowances in proportion to the periodic rises in the cost-of-living index.

Already, Canada's universal Old Age Security plan is indexed to fall rises in the consumer price index. The current, monthly benefit is 117.62 per cent of the basic rate (a mirror in this space recently).

The argument in support of indexing OAS is that it gives a year-to benefits to the current aged who have run out of current workers' incomes.

But it is quite another matter to compound the problem of contributory pensions—both private and Canada Pension Plan.

"This is obviously a plan that will call for heavy subsidies from future generations of taxpayers, unless the current contribution rates are dramatically increased," says R. C. Brown, president of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers.

How dramatically? It is estimated that the cost to an employer, including employee, of indexing pensioners against inflation of only 3 per cent a year, would be almost 13 per cent of the total payroll cost (That's over and above the present benefits and employee contributions of 7.2 per cent of wages under the CPP).

It's clear that there can be no simple solution to the cost problem. But the most obvious one—greater growth in almost at a standstill while inflation continues to soar to new heights.

Even the Insurance Association's Mr. Dorsett has no yet or, revolutionary suggestions. He thinks Canada should reduce pressure on governments for greater benefits, and insist on demonstrated ability to pay for any social program before it is implemented by legislation.

Makers of public policy, he believes, should favour proposed expansion of welfare income and of what the new benefits would cost today and in future generations, and then face the voters squarely with the costs involved.

Perhaps the most drastic route open to the government is to encourage private saving. Finance Minister John Turner proposed tax exemptions on interest income and dividends, but only to buy a first home, when he presented his budget in May—but the proposal when Parliament was dissolved.

Sweden and New Zealand employ savings for five months, with a seven per cent ceiling on interest, and Britain appears to be too drastic for Canada. Or it seems.

But in any event, Canadians should be offered the most attractive benefits incentives to save for their retirement, rather than penalties. And Mr. Turner should remember that this saving is not limited to interest-bearing forms.

Ontario Waffles On Speed Limit

The Globe and Mail

The British Columbia Government looks at the data collected in the United States on fewer deaths in traffic crashes as a result of a reduced speed limit—not so much because there are fewer crashes, but because fewer people die in them—and the BC Government follows suit. No more 70 miles-an-hour limits; the new maximum will be 60.

The British Columbia government, perhaps also heavy at statistics in Britain where the number of casualties on the roads dropped by 4,000 from 1972 to 1973, mainly (according to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents) because of a reduced 50 mph speed limit.

There will be those who say that if any place in Canada should reduce its speed limit, it should be British Columbia with its mountain-goat-trail highways. But what stood Ontario Premier Bill Davis on called a mountain here but, all the same, a regular toll of high-way carnage.

Oh, Transportation and Communications Minister John Rhodes orders a study here, a study there, a task force somewhere else, but in essence he does nothing. His latest word on the subject is that he might "consider" the staged selected reductions in urban areas" — one of these selected reductions being the 60 mph limit from 70 to 60 mph on Highway 401 across Toronto.

Vandalism a Continuing Problem

Kingston Whig Standard

As long as there have been children there has been vandalism. Perhaps it is the age of permissiveness and relative affluence that has allowed it to spread to those in higher socio-economic strata. Perhaps, too, the lack of responsibility being committed by today's youth are generally more violent and materially destructive than those of the past generations. But the basic motivations which drive young people (and adults!) to destroy for the sake of destruction probably haven't altered much over the years. Vandalism is still a senseless, deplorable nuisance it has always been.

Of course, this is not to say that the cost of repairing and replacing which made large areas of Loyalist Collegiate and Vocational Institute look like a shambles over the past weekend is fair, just and equitable shrug—only that future fines or redress against similar property damage to our schools by drawn realistically.

It should be realized, for instance, that such realistic measures exist that are likely to curb the more destructive kinds of vandalism with any more success now than in the past. Should realistic fines, or even the mental attitude of entire communities to order, a problem at hand become one of effective deterrent rather than opportunity for vast to to attract undetected, apprehending those who might contemplate and providing stiff deterrents for those who might contemplate a serious act of vandalism.

In this vein, the chairman of the Frontenac County Board of Education, Bruce Warnington, was making a worthwhile point board is going to take a very severe look at security in our schools" and "is not going to cost the public a lot of money."

If, by these comments, Mr. Warnington was implying that installation of alarms, the direction of increased security precautions, would be the steps taken, the proposal is a good

Bicycle Path a Popular Facility

From The Kitchener — Waterloo Record

Kitchener's first bicycle path linking Rose Park and the Stanley Park community centre, has proved popular with young and old alike since it opened in July.

The path cost $28,000, to build, is part of a 50-mile network planned for the city and school areas in the city at a total estimated cost of $1 million.

The next path will be 2.5 miles behind Fairway Road from Wilson Avenue to Vanier Drive to Wilson Park. The cost is $22,000 and the city hopes to have it open later this year.

The third path of about two miles will start at Westmount Park near the Conestoga Parkway, pass through Concordia Park and on to Homer Watson Drive into former Kitchener water commission property and Victoria Park, ending behind the Queen's Boulevard Construction

A Golf Ball For Women Players

Ulster Commentary

The world's first golf ball specifically for women has been produced by a Ballyclare (Co. Antrim) firm, Mantle Golf Ltd. Lady, it is designed, developed and marketed by Tge T Products Ltd., whose chief technician, high dirobility golf balls are already commanding world sales.

No one, says the firm, has ever seriously attempted to take into account the fact that the average lady golfer simply does not have the same hitting power as the average man.

The firm's basic thinking has been to produce a ball which, firstly, will permit itself to be deformed by a less powerful stroke than will a normal ball and, secondly, will retain those properties in order that correct performance is gained.

Paul Lindsay, says the firm, is not a con, yards of elastic and a cover. It is, in fact, a blend of modern polymers into one homogeneous piece.

Psychology Of Latter-Day Sport

Editor:
The Intelligencer:

Interviewed recently on CBS News, Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland Athletics, now three time winners of the American professional baseball finals, said: "Those are a gracious loser and I will show you I know how to win."

This remark reminds us once again that we need to be reminded, that professional sport is not "sport" at all but part of the business sector of society. Implicit in the concept of "sport" is the concept of "sportsmanship" or "fair play" philosophy explicitly rules out this concept as far as professional games are concerned.

Therefore, might I seriously suggest that it is inappropriate for reference to report news stories of the results of professional games on the business page instead of the sports page.

This procedure would have two beneficial results. The sports pages would be devoted exclusively to "sport," that is amateur sport, and the business page is not presented cumbersomely mainly of dreary stock listings and financial charts. Confusion, would be subtracted by accounts of stickwringing and other assorted mayhem.

Bata Plant Marks 30th Anniversary

PICTON — Bata Footwear of Picton, a division of Bata Industries Saturday held its first open house to mark its 30th anniversary here.

The plant, employing approximately 300 area residents on a full-time basis, manufactures the North Star jogging shoes. About 2,400 pairs of these shoes are manufactured daily as the plant operates on two shifts.

Opened in Picton November 21, 1944, Bata Footwear initially produced a wide range of shoes including casual footwear for men and women, sandals and canvas cloth footwear. Since 1970, it has assembled only the North Star line from pre-cut components shipped from Batawa.

Recently, production was facilitated through installation of a new conveyor line. It operates from a central control panel to distribute shoe parts to workers at the sewing machines.

Bata Ltd. was established in Canada in 1940 and in 1945 the centre of Bata activities moved from Batawa to the Bata International Centre in Don Mills.

Bata makes and sells about 300 million pairs of shoes annually through more than 200 company retailers and nearly 3,000 Bata stores.

The business was founded in 1894 at Zlin, Czechoslovakia by the late Thomas Bata. Today, his only son, Thomas J. Bata of Canada is chief executive of a world-wide organization comprising 100 independent companies operating in 87 countries.

Saturday's open house at Bata Footwear permitted local residents to tour the plant and see North Star jogging shoes in production.

Free balloons were distributed to youngsters and free draw tickets on a flight bag and jogging shoes were offered to all visitors.

Open House

Clara Terwilliger was among production line workers on duty Saturday during open house staged by Bata Footwear at Picton plant.

The event, including guided tours of the plant, marked the company's 30th year of operation in the town.

Deputy-reeve Rejects Bid for Re-election

PICTON — North Marysburgh Township deputy-reeve Astrid Hand is the only member of Prince Edward County Council who has stated to date, that she will not seek another term of office.

Mrs. Hand, who served four years as a township councillor before becoming deputy-reeve in 1972, has moved from her Prince Edward County farm to Belleville.

Hallowell deputy-reeve William Rutherford has stated he will run for reeve in the December 2 municipal elections. He now is completing his first term on county council. He combined years and service of Prince Edward, Keith MacDonald in on a hunting trip and was unavailable for comment.

Lewis Wight, reeve of Hillier, has announced he will again seek office as have South Marysburgh reeve Clifford Walker and Picton reeve Ross Cronkwright. Reeve Cronkwright last week said he had no intention of seeking Picton's mayoralty unless pressured by cutbacks of provincial grants. He commented he is "happy" as reeve and has no real ambition to take higher office at this time.

North Marysburgh reeve Ross Wells, a member of county council for two years, has stated he will seek re-election.

Sophiasburgh reeve George Mastery, Ameliasburgh reeve Russell Thompson, Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson, and Athol reeve Keith Perry remain uncommitted in their election plans. Reeve Anderson has promised an announcement Wednesday.

Hillier deputy-reeve Allan Pettingill, Picton deputy-reeve Larry Richardson, Sophiasburgh deputy-reeve Jack Sprague, Ameliasburgh deputy-reeve Roger Rosher and Athol deputy-reeve Harold Sills also are reserving final decisions on election plans until a later date.

Wellington reeve, Robert Boyce, now holidaying in the Bahamas, was unavailable for comment.

Deputy-reeve Richardson has indicated he will seek office, but this time as a councillor, and as deputy-reeve. He was elected as a councillor in 1972 and took the deputy-reeve's chair held by Ross Cronkwright, when Mr. Cronkwright became reeve at the death of the late mayor Harvey J. McFarland.

Station Entered

PICTON — Picton service station operator Leonard Deetta today can dispute the old adage that lightning never strikes twice.

Last Thursday, he reported a break-in at his Highway 49 gas bar and a second forced entry on Friday. Last Saturday the station was entered a third time. Total take of the break-ins was 48 packages of cigarettes and a quantity of soft drinks, potato chips and candy bars. Charged in connection with one of the break-ins is Colin Gourley, 19, of RR1, Picton.

Roast 'Roasted'

TRENTON — Sunday dinner had to be postponed for a permanent resident of the downtown Gilbert Hotel Saturday.

Summoned when smoke appeared in the hallway on the hotel's second floor, local firemen quickly found the source of the concern — a charred roast in an oven on a hot plate stove. It had caught fire while boiled coated for the meal.

Nothing else on the premises appeared to be damaged, however, a fireman reported.

Quinte Cuisine

For eight years a resident of Belleville, Barbara Lenk and her family moved here from Saskatoon. Active in the community, Mrs. Lenk is a member of St. Julien's IODE and the East Branch Library discussion group. Now that her sons are away at school in Kingston, she bakes less, but still enjoys working in the kitchen. This torte recipe is one she makes for company and for "potluck" IODE meetings.

Walnut Torte

Cake:
¾ cup sugar
eight eggs, separated
½ lb. grated walnuts three tbsp. fine breadcrumbs
two tsp. vanilla

Beat the egg yoke with the sugar until thick and light in color. Add vanilla.

Beat the egg-whites separately until stiff and dry.

Grate the walnuts. Don't use a blender for this job, as it makes too fine a mixture. Use a nut grinder.

To the egg yolk mixture add in four portions, the walnuts and the egg whites, alternately, folding very gently after each addition. Sprinkle bread crumbs into this mixture and fold them in.

Have two spring cake pans well-buttered. Divide the mixture into the pans and bake in a preheated oven at 275 degrees for half an hour, or until done when tested with a toothpick.

Cool.

Filling:
½ lb. unsalted butter
¾ cup icing sugar
2 egg yolks
¼ cup strong cold coffee

Cream the butter with the icing sugar. Add the egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add the cold coffee one tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition until all the coffee is absorbed.

Cut each cake in two layers. Put filling between the layers and on the top and sides of the four-layer torte. Decorate with walnut halves.

Instead of coffee, two or three squares of melted chocolate (cooled) could be used.

This torte freezes very well, and so can be made in advance of the time you'll need it.

Halloween Family Fun

Nicholson College Auditorium was the scene Saturday evening of one of the biggest and best Halloween parties in town.

A trial run for the trick or treat costumes that will be worn on night-time travels this Thursday, the Family Halloween Fun Night, sponsored by the St. Michael's Catholic Women's League, is in its third successful year.

Well over 200 adults and children jammed the gym from 7 to 9 p.m., almost all of them dressed in costumes both rented and homemade.

The old favorites were all there — the witch - shaped ghosts, the scraggy-faced tramps, the gypsies with old lace table cloth shawls and crimson lipstick on, the little boys dressed as girls, and vice versa, the fairies, gnomes, devils and hopefully - last appear year after year.

Around the walls there were all kinds of games to play, penny tossing, bobbing for apples and ball throwing. Children of "just-walking" age up to preteen teen-agers were given halloween treats as they came in the door by members of the CWL.

Midway through the evening judging of the costumes took place, and winners received prizes like cuddly toys and games.

Hees Accused of Male Chauvinism

OTTAWA (CP) — Hansard reporters had a shattering Friday over what one cautious official described as a "personality conflict" between the Commons Speaker and Agriculture Minister Whelan.

Whelan, Speaker Lamoureux's first-year parliamentary romance of the year all but ended in divorce.

George Hees and Elton Woolliams, Tories who said very little, were absent Tuesday.

But was particularly bothered by the exchange between Whelan and Lamoureux in Hansard, which records almost every spoken word — sometimes misses side comments.

Mrs. Hall said in an interview that she was consulting with Tory House leader Robert Stanfield about Mr. Woolliams and Progressive Conservative colleague Hees' estimates. "I don't think she's a pretty girl, but pay attention to me."

When Mrs. Hall rose later in the day to complain about the exchange, she mentioned the affair but not the name of Mrs. Jacques Parizeau, wife of Quebec Liberal MP, Prince Edward-Hastings) is "shocked" that "How do you spell it?"

Public obviously was involved, Mrs. Hall said Friday.

Mr. Hees made no further comment appearing on the Commons record, but Tory Doyle (L.-Moncton) "is shocked" said Friday she heard nothing.

"I've never seen anything like it."

Miss Begin said her English is not good enough to allow her to understand the apparent play on words, "but I could see it was a dirty thing."

Neither Mr. Woolliams nor Mr. Hees could be reached for comment on Mrs. Hall's charge.

Mrs. Hall, a former Vancouver journalist, said the remarks are typical of the low sometimes aimed from the Conservative benches at women MPs. Flora MacDonald (Kingston and the Islands), the only woman Conservative, was not in the House at the time of the incident.

Referring to the Monsanto scandal, which rocked Ottawa in 1969, Mrs. Hall fought back Friday by calling Mr. Hees "the aging sex symbol (and Gerda Munsinger) impressed with."

"Hees's days are spotted by coming to sexist at his old age," she said of the 64-year-old former trade minister.

Mr. Hees was a cabinet minister during the Diefenbaker era later became known as the Munsinger affair, one of the scandal, the wrongdoing on his part was established when a committee of Mrs. Hall's charge, the incident several years later.

Nancy Bunnell isn't a millionaire "women's libber" but she took exception to a recent remark by Howie Meeker when he compared body-checks handed out by the Soviet Union hockey team to those she could extract from a girl. Ms. Bunnell says she considered the remark derogatory, and states flatly that girls are not weaker than boys generally.(CP Photo)

'The Muscle Gap Diminishing'

HALIFAX (CP) — Excitable Howie Meeker, during the recent Soviet Union-Canada hockey series, commented on Soviet bodychecking at one point: "Girls could check better than that."

Nancy Bunnell, who also knows something about sports and admits being excitable herself, took exception to the remark.

"I took that right away as a derogatory statement — as if we were stereotyped girls, weak and puny," said Ms. Bunnell, an instructor in Dalhousie University's school physical education and co-ordinator of women's athletics for the university.

She affirmed that girls are not weaker than boys generally.

"I've got tons of literature on that and I could go into a long story on the developmental, the physiological, the reflex bit.

"Basically, men are about 10 per cent larger and heavier in muscle mass than women. But, in comparing the performances that are being registered in Olympic sports, swimming, running, mainly the muscle gap between the two sexes — the gap is diminishing.

"The men have gone to about 10 per cent heavier and the women are catching up."

Ms. Bunnell said she could never be a spiteful women's liberationist but prefers the feminist designation. "I think we should get away from the stereotype, away from roles. I say to us," said Ms. Bunnell, an instructor in Dalhousie University's school physical education and co-ordinator of women's athletics for the university.

She affirmed that girls are not weaker than boys generally.

"I've got tons of literature on that and I could go into a long story on the developmental, the physiological, the reflex bit.

"Basically, men are about 10 per cent larger and heavier in muscle mass than women. But, in comparing the performances that are being

"I'm trying to make sure that the women here get as much money as the men in proportion to the number of people involved in the sport."

She said ski women's athletic teams can compete for the cost of sending a 40-man football squad.

"I certainly think women are important enough to get a fair deal."

She joins those who say Canadians are unfit, compared, for instance, with Europeans.

"I think we are changing slowly, with the rise in popularity of jogging, cross-country skiing, cross-country skiing . . . But the change isn't coming overnight, unfortunately."

Things like the federal government's Participaction program are helping, as well as foundations coaching clinics and the like.

"Everything is gearing up and right now everyone is thinking of the Olympics and everything is building up to them. I'm only hoping the interest don't die down after the Olympics because when people may think we're going to do better than ever before, which I think we will, we won't with all the gold medals. I hope people don't become disillusioned. . . ."

Ann Landers

Even Sigmund Freud Couldn't Stop Smoking

Dear Ann Landers: You said in your column a while back that cigarette smokers are escaping in oral satisfaction that stems from an infantile and immature need.

Did you know that Dr. Sigmund Freud was the most inveterate smoker who ever lived? He was well aware that his tobacco habit was enhancing the already poor health-record of certain physical disabilities which plagued him for years?

Freud's efforts to stop smoking lasted for more than a half a century. He records his persistent craving and the lengths he went beyond human endurance" when he did abstain for a period of 14 months. Freud was, after all, a mortal man, but don't you think the father of psychoanalysis would have recognized the existence of a psychological problem if there had been one?

What is there in tobacco that produces the craving? It is nicotine—and nicotine is habit forming. I submit, the habit is more physiological than psychological. It's a problem of the body rather than the mind.—Other View

Dear View: You cannot separate the mind from the body. They are one.

Of course nicotine is addictive. So is alcohol. But no one knows why some people can use both in moderation and others cannot. The best authorities say that the problem is both physical and emotional—but mostly emotional.

As for Uncle Sigmund, he had many hangups and suffered a great deal because of them. Also, he was through with sex at 41. Well-balanced, he wasn't.

Dear Ann: Do you have room in your column for a letter from me Kid's Lib? When I read that 13-year-old boy's letter I almost threw up. I am 13 and that letter went all over our classroom. Almost all the kids agree your answer was great. The two who thought you were too strict were in trouble all the time.

We are liberated enough—in fact, aces of us are too liberated. We wish our parents would take us off the hook by saying "NO!" so we wouldn't be called chicken when we don't want to do certain things.—Thank, Ann.—Few Yes

Dear Few: You're welcome! I'm for you, too.

Queen's Cousin Devoted Mother Kills Her Sick Baby

READING, England (AP) — "I laid her on her face so she would not swallow her tongue. I wrapped her in a blanket so she would not get cold . . . My intention was that she should die quickly, peacefully and painlessly."

Police quoted Elizabeth Wise, a third cousin of Queen Elizabeth, as recounting in these words how she used drugs crushed in milk to kill her nine-month-old blind and deaf daughter Emma on June 9 after doctors told her the child had no hope of living.

Mrs. Wise, 38, pleaded guilty to manslaughter Friday on grounds of diminished responsibility, and was placed on probation for 12 months, meaning if she commits no other offence in that time she will not receive further legal punishment.

"I regard this as an extreme case even among exceptional cases," Judge Kenneth Jones told Mrs. Wise. "In my judgment you have suffered enough."

The court was told that three-quarters of the child's brain had been destroyed by disease, and that she could not swallow and was fed by a tube through the nose.

Mrs. Wise, separated from her husband, was staying with her friend Jennifer Cobbitt when the child died.

Mrs. Cobbitt testified: "I have never seen a maternal instinct so strong — any mother, and I have four children.

"Her devotion was absolute. She would spend many hours feeding the child drop by drop.

"The baby often gave terrible screams of distress. She seemed to be rejecting any desire to be fed, or to live."

The judge in summing up said: "The doctors are genuinely puzzled as to how this child lived so long. I have little doubt it was your devotion which kept her alive.

The intense care you gave to her.

"Therein lies the tragic irony of this case, that in the end it was you who took her life. I accept that you acted as you did, although wrongly. In what you considered to be the child's own interest."

Mrs. Wise is the daughter of Sir Henry Abel Smith, who was the Queen's personal representative in Queensland, Australia, from 1958 to 1966. He is a great-grandson of Queen Victoria.

Successful Living Return to Sender!

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Mr. Hoarder moved away three years ago. His mail still comes to my address. For some time I re-addressed it for him, but I find he will not bother to mail it every time.

I called the police station, and was told to tie the letters in a bundle with a note telling him to stop annoying me. But more mail keeps coming. What can I do?

Dear Very Annoyed: The Post Office tells me that if you put this mail back into your mail marker "not Known Here", the postman is obliged to return it to the sender. Give this a try.

Dear Doris: Please send me your leaflet on "Why Smoke?" Twenty-five cents enclosed.

I enjoy your columns very much every day in our newspaper, especially the ones on smoking, as I'm always trying to find ways to quit, once and for all.

My biggest desire it to be a nonsmoker, but I always have some kind of excuse. Like after the next dance or there are people coming to the house, or when school is out for summer. I have to have those cigarettes!

I have eight very important reasons to stop: My husband and seven children, plus all the other reasons.

Dear Blue: It isn't easy. Most of us fill the void with some false stops, swearing off forever — which turns out to be just a few days!

There is considerable controversy as to whether smoking is a real addiction, or whether the user can simply make a resolution and stop, with no withdrawal symptoms. Individuals differ greatly. I know one very fine woman who has eventually given up the idea of stopping and merely calls herself an addict.

The reasons for smoking enter into this, too. One young person smokes because she was held down too strictly at home— and smoking is a declaration of independence. Another person is too keyed up and rushed with his everyday work; the cigarette represents a kind of relaxation. But it is a false friend.

Would you risk leaving your loved ones through painful illness and death — brought on by your own negligence?

Certain techniques work for some people. These are outlined in my booklet "Why Smoke?" It is on its way to you, and to all the others who have written in for it. Let's have some reports of success.

Future of FMHA Still Undecided

By CHRIS AI MEY
Staff Correspondent

FRANKFORD — At the eleventh hour, the fate of minor hockey in Frankford is up in the air. Almost 200 persons attended a meeting in the Legion hall Monday afternoon to learn that minor hockey will have to fold if ice rates are not forthcoming.

Reeve Bill Rose suggested that by accepting these prices, time and many other hockey rates could be cut to $5,000 from $8,000. Now the Frankford Minor Hockey Association has to decide whether or not to accept the proposal.

The first OMHA game in the Frankford area is slated for Jan. 18. It is hoped that ice will be made by Nov. 1. Members of the FMHA do not want to wait until the last minute to inform the OMHA if it did have to pull out of its commitment, but the issue might not be speedily resolved by FMHA, the elements being what they are.

Frankford council will also have to agree to the reeve's proposal that non-prime time rates be $15 for the FMHA and in past years, not the $20 for players under 18, the new rate for this being prime time. The reeve says that non-prime time rates have not been established.

Last year FMHA cut its season a bit short and had $700 left after spending $7,325. Ice time cost $5,039 last year, and could, at prime time rates, go to $8,300 this season.

FMHA rinks last year were $15 single and $25 per family. This year the registration fee went to $20 per child for up to two in a family, and three or more pays $25. A child is registered for $20.

Reeve Rose said that Trenton's arena went $7,500 in the hole last year and the town has a responsibility to the ratepayers to pay more for using it. Belleville is looking at the same situation, he added.

Frankford's arena is already $6,500 in the red this year. The reeve said he hoped that by the end of the year most of this would be balanced out by rentals. If not, and if council did not pick up the tab, the reeve says it would have to be added on next year's taxes to put the operation in the black.

As well as wages, fuel, hydro and other costs going up, there has been a drop in Frankford gate receipts. Frankford got $2,000 grant from Sidney last year and $2,500 from the recreation committee in 1972. To date nothing has come from Sidney and the recreation committee is looking the money for sports complex.

The reeve said after the meeting that he didn't want Frankford to get involved with the arena and the town was proposing. "It's bad public relations," he said.

Huskies 1 for 2

PORT PERRY (Special) — With goalie Wayne Cordingley the chief culprit, Port Perry Flamingos reversed a Frankford Huskies from making a sweep of their Ontario Hockey Association junior C league series when the two clubs hooked up here, Sunday.

Huskies, who won 8-4 Saturday victory over Port Hope Tuesday in a game played at Campbellford, rallied on goals on target, Terry Lee Lean with 55 seconds gone in the third period to kill Cordingley's hopes of a shutout.

The Frankford team lost the services of defenceman Tom Ferguson in the first period. He was rammed into a corner and suffered a dislocated shoulder. The steady rearguard could be out of action for two weeks.

Jerry Campbell, Saturday, Huskies got a pair of goals each from Gary Payne and Gary Crandell to chalk up their first league win after two setbacks. Scott Pospart and Jeff Brown had the other Frankford goals.

Replying for the Panthers were Mike Wilson, Mike Davis, Brent Birsett and Neil Pemberton.

BEATS SAM SNEAD

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Roger Watson of Cary, N.C., called in an 85-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to defeat Sam Snead in a playoff and then parred three holes of sudden death to beat veteran Sam Snead in the PGA club pro golf championship.

Al Mack Looking For Football Title

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

TRENTON — A 15-year-old Grade 10 student has a good chance to add further sports prominence to Trenton high school this fall's outstanding performance on Saturday.

On Saturday Allan Mack accumulated 113½ points in the Quinte Secondary track and field meet to win the boys' senior division field title.

The meet open to boys and girls of three categories — 15 and under, 16 and 17 and under and 17 and under — was organized by the Quinte Amateur Football Association and operated by members of the Knights of Columbus council 2638.

Already young Mack has set his sights on the intermediate championship being held at Trenton high school in November. He hopes to duplicate the feats of another Trenton high school student Cheryl Lewis who went all the way to win the national junior title and pass championship in 1972.

On Saturday young Mack's longest forward pass carried 25 feet and his 100 yard dash marked the outside point of the 14 events open to the all-round throwing contest was performed.

Allan isn't the only member of the Mack family living in Trenton with exceptional football skills. His younger sister Laurie last year was the first girl ever to qualify for base, kick and pass provincial competition in Ottawa. She lost out Saturday to 13 and under winner William McDowell in an effort to try for the Ontario title again.

Results of competitions on Saturday were: 15 and under — Allan Mack, Darrell Haw, Bobb Kidd, Mark Scoccato and David Cridland; 13 and under — William McDowell, Jeff Steiner, Robbi Wilson, Brent Little and Robert Beaton; 11 and under — Chris Haw, Mark Acton, Wilson Lee, Mike Greenwood and Jim Turner.

Late Goals Ruin Bids by Peewees

Wipe out the last 39 minutes of each of their Ontario Minor Hockey Association games on the weekend and Belleville Bells Minor Peewees were looking good.

The team, showing signs of being able to hold their own in Triple A company, twice went to the lake flurries by the opposition.

First Kingston, Saturday. Rollins had themselves a 1-1 tie with seven minutes to play but bowed 4-1. Five days later the Belleville marksman, Mike Mahoney, collected Rollins were on the short end of a 4-3 score halfway through the game and looked capable of pulling out at least a tie. But in the last 10 minutes, the home side rapped in four without a reply to wrap it up.

Scoring for Belleville was handled by Noble and Tony Parks.

At the bantam level, the McIroy Construction Miners romped and crowed the scoring on home ice, Sunday, but in between Kingston scored four times to take a 4-2 decision in a well-played match.

Kevin Meagher and Greg Sproat potted the McIroy goals.

Belleville Kinsmen Bantam Major's hooked up in a pair of exhibition games, losing 7-3 to Wellington Monday, Saturday, and dropping a 4-2 decision in Brighton, Sunday.

Danny Vance scored both Kinsmen goals Saturday with Mike Hamilton getting the assist. Sunday, it was Gary McIlvery and Hugh Graham with the goals while Danny Duffy and Peter Mandrow were picked up helpers.

The Kinsmen Minor Midgets shaded Stirling 4-3 in exhibition action. Gary Goegan collected two Belleville goals with singles for Jeff Orr and Howie Dean.

Two goal efforts by Rob Chase and Sandy Waterson sparked Lions Major Midgets past Bowmanville 5-4. Paul Hayman had the other marker for Lions.

Belleville Bobcat, Bob Thompson, splits the defence in front of the Markham Royals goaltender, Doug Cardy, in Metro Junior B action in Belleville Sunday night. Thompson didn't score on this occasion, but he did collect an assist in the Cats' 7-4 victory over the Royals. The Bobcat forward didn't get an opportunity to finish the game as he was injured in the third period.

Bobcats Finally Break Streak

By MARK BRETT

Belleville Bobcats got back on the winning track and also gained a measure of revenge last night by defeating the Markham Royals 7-4.

Wayne Calberry was the big gun for the Cats as he picked up his first hat-trick of the season.

It was a new team that took to the ice as the Cats, under coach Bob Boyle, looked their sharpest in a long time. Boyle took over as coach after Tim Williams resigned Friday.

Calberry opened the scoring for the home team with the help of Robby Fuster, the team Captain.

Fuster feinted the Markham defenceman as the speedy winger stole the puck and went in for a shot.

Fuster's shot was stopped by Markham goalie Doug Carty but Calberry was right on the spot to bang home the rebound.

Belleville's constant forechecking by all their forwards kept the Royals off balance before the visitors got started.

Andy Ricketts, playing his second game as a Bobcat, came up with a two goal performance for the night.

Ricket's first goal put the Cats in front 2-1 at the 5.37 mark of the first.

Ricketts took a pass from defenceman Rick Langstaff just inside the Royals blue line and let a hard shot go that travelled right along the ice past Cardy.

Less than a minute later Markham got on the scoreboard as a good two-way passing play by Steve Tar and Gary Dillon resulted in the goal. Moore had a chance on Tar's hard shot.

The locals added two more goals before the period ended to take a 4-1 lead into the second.

Scott Sands and Calberry each picked up a goal to round off the scoring for the opening period.

Sands' goal came as he held the puck until the last second before backhanding a shot through a maze of players.

Calberry's goal came from much the same as his first. Fuster was the world's horse stealing the puck away and shooting it with Ricketts picking up the rebound.

Tempers flared in the second period as the game appeared to get out of hand.

The players backed at one another throughout the course of the period until everything broke loose.

When the smoke finally cleared at the end of the period, each team had picked up three fighting majors.

Fortunately no serious injuries were incurred by either team from dangerous high sticks that went unchecked by the referee.

Markham scored the only goal of the period to make it 4-2 Belleville.

The Royals goal came on some good digging by Dillon who finally managed to put the puck by Belleville netminder Bob Moore.

Andy Ricketts had the best chance for the Cats in the second period. He had just stepped on the ice to help kill a penalty and got a lead pass that put him in the clear. Only a good stop by Cardy kept him from a hattrick.

Belleville opened the scoring early in the third period as a good individual effort by Sands earned him his second goal of the evening.

Midway through the third period Belleville put the services of winger Bob Thompson as he was hit by a hard line blast.

Foster also sat out the third period with undetermined injuries.

Calberry's final goal of the night came on another shot from just inside the blue line which handcuffed Cardy.

Moore, in net for the Cats, played an extremely sharp game especially in the third as he was called upon several times to come up with saves from point blank range.

Jim Richardson, hanging in with some hard forechecking, set Ricketts up for his second and final goal of the night.

From there on, the Cats were content to keep the visitors bottled up in their own end.

Things backfired, however, as the Royals came back with two quick goals late in the third, but there was never any serious threat.

The Cats outshot Markham 43-35. Each team was assessed nine minor penalties and three majors for fighting. Belleville's Calberry was also handed a 10-minute misconduct and a game misconduct.

Belleville plays again this Friday at 9 p.m. at the Memorial Arena, when they take on the Kingston Voyageurs.

Promised Grant Never Arrived

FRANKFORD — Perhaps Sidney Township council doesn't know it yet, but there are 63 young people residing in Sidney who are registered to play minor hockey in the Frankford area.

In April the Frankford Minor Hockey Association wrote to Sidney, asking that 20 per cent of the players were from the latter, that they asked for a grant of $1,800. Nothing was given.

Now the ratios has reached the point where 33 percent of the players are from outside Frankford. Murray Donnelly's tally of players comes to 17, and Trenton and Belleville two each. Sixty-seven Frankford children are registered for minor hockey.

In view of the fact that minor hockey might fold in Frankford, a grant from Sidney and Murray townships might solve the problem. "We would be home free if they did," reasoned Bill Rose, reeve, Bill Rose.

Why has Sidney been slow to respond to requests for money for Frankford?

Perhaps Trenton Sidney council has been approached by two groups from Frankford for money. First, FMHA sent in their letter, and then the village council made a request.

Rose told a group of almost 100 attending a Sunday meeting in the Legion Hall, that he has made many trips to Sidney. He was told that a group from Frankford and already knee-timer and he told Sidney to divide the money. "I can't, I haven't got anything." He had asked for $18,000.

Later, during a private meeting with the FMHA, reeve Rose said he was unsure to grind if FMHA got the money, but he pointed out that Sidney could designate how it would be used. "There is $18,000 hanging with string attached," he said.

FMHA treasurer Dorothy Wright waited to know if $8,000 was for seats, and $2,000 for minor hockey. The reeve said no.

"It would go to capital expenses, not to offset operating costs, I told Sidney to designate it, and that ended matters. The next letter we have received is in an entirely different vein. I don't know where we stand now," reeve Rose explained.

MHA approached Murray Township council and asked for $1,800 and according to FMHA this was granted, but the money has never showed up.

Cobourg Team Wins Pop Helyer Trophy

Cobourg Tory's, first place team during the Eay of Quinte Soccer League regular season schedule, didn't have much luck in Trenton Challenge and Belleville Cup play-off playoff matches. But on the weekend, the team gained some measure of consolation by capturing the Pop Helyer trophy.

The Pop Helyer event, staged annually in memory of Jack Helyer of Trenton, who gave of his time and energy during the BQSA's early years, is open to Quinte area, regular season.

Tory's scored a convincing 4-1 win over Trenton Whitley Centennials in the final played Matching Belleville Parsons and CFB Trenton by identical 4-0 scores to get in the championship match.

Whitley's advanced by taking Belleville Golden Mile Restaurant Olympics 3-1 and Trenton Spartans 1-0.

Hawks on the March But It Proves Costly

By GLENN COLE
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even though Chicago Black Hawks scored 19 goals in two National Hockey League games during the weekend, coach Billy Reay was still a bit worried.

"These explosions worry me," he said. "I always feel that the next game."

Chicago hammered St. Louis Blues 10-3 in Chicago Stadium Sunday night after thrashing Toronto Maple Leafs 9-4 at Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday. Their next game is in Montreal against the Canadiens Wednesday night.

In other Sunday action, Buffalo Sabres edged the Canadiens 3-2, New York Rangers downed Atlanta Flames 4-1, Toronto edged Washington Capitals 4-3 and Boston Bruins smashed Kansas City scouts 8-2.

Saturday, Montreal defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-0, Buffalo blanked St. Louis 3-0, New York Islanders shut out Minnesota North Stars 4-0, the Rangers beat Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2, Los Angeles Kings clipped California Golden Seals 5-1 and Philadelphia Flyers scored a 3-2 win over Vancouver Canucks.

Sophomore Darcy Rota, who scored three times with his first goal coming with four seconds remaining, let the Black Hawks' scoring Sunday.

But the Sunday win, the Hawks' fifth straight, was costly as defenceman Keith Magnussen suffered a broken right wrist and Stan Mikita sprained a shoulder. Magnussen is expected to be out for six weeks while Mikita will miss two or three games.

Despite the close score in Buffalo, the Sabres were by far the better team in their game against the Canadiens.

Craig Ramsay scored the game-winning goal at 9:38 of the third period when he outmaneuvered Jacques Lemaire and poked the puck past Ken Dryden while teammate Jerry Korab was in the penalty box.

Greg Polis, acquired by the Rangers from the Pittsburgh Penguins during the summer, scored the 100th goal of his NHL career as New York's win over the Flames, moving New York into a three-way tie for first with the Islanders and Flyers in Division I.

The Leafs recovered from their Saturday night loss at George Ferguson's second goal of the game with 9:01 gone in the third period broke a 3-3 tie and sent the Capitals down to their seventh defeat in nine games.

Kansas City, forced to play its first eight games on the road because of construction difficulties, delayed the building of its home rink, finished the trip with its seventh loss in eight games.

Veterans Phil Esposito and John Bucyk each had a pair of goals as Boston extended its winning streak to five games.

Racers Upset Nordiques And Do Toros A Favor

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

The lowly Indianapolis Racers gave Toronto Toros some breathing space Sunday night in their fight for top spot in the World hockey Association's Canadian Division.

With second-place Quebec Nordiques playing the winless Racers, the Toros' hold on the division lead seemed to be in jeopardy when a breakdown in the icemaking equipment at Cleveland's new arena forced postponement of their game there.

But the Racers handed the Nordiques a 5-3 loss, their first of the season, thereby the still unbeaten Toronto team with a two-point edge over Quebec.

Winnipeg Jets defeated Michigan Stags 3-2 and Minnesota Fighting Saints forced Chicago Cougars 6-5 in Sunday's other games.

In Saturday's games, New England Whalers whipped Indianapolis 6-1, Quebec defeated Phoenix Roadrunners 4-1 and Houston Aeros edged Minnesota Fighting Saints 3-2.

Workmen were digging through the new concrete floor for a $25 million coliseum south of Cleveland in an effort to clear the blocked cooling line blamed for postponement of the Crusaders' home opener.

The opener was moved to Wednesday, against the Saints.

Steve Andrascik scored one goal and assisted on two others for the Racers, who handed the Nordiques their first loss in five games.

Rick Pumple, Joe Robertson, Bob Sicinski and Bob Whitlock were the other Indianapolis scorers.

Ars Erik Sjoberg and Danny Johnson scored while teammate Larry Horning was serving a hooking penalty in the third period to assure the Win-

Harrison A Crusader

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association said Saturday they have obtained centre Jim Harrison in a trade with Edmonton Oilers.

The Crusaders gave up veteran centre Ron Buchanan and undisclosed future considerations to get the 27-year-old Harrison, who was under assignment by the Oilers for refusing to play for them.

Shaver, Nightingale Capture Gold Medals

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., completed a near flawless free-skating program Saturday to win the men's singles gold medal in Skate Canada '76 competition.

Shaver received 5.9 of a possible six from each of the nine judges for his freeskating program.

The leader after compulsory figures short program, Shaver finished with 339.46 points and Glen Patrick of Toronto was next year at Calgary by Toller Cranston of Toronto.

Canadians took both single's titles in this year's event, with the women's gold medal going to Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa. Irena Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov of the Soviet Union, the leaders in their event from the opening day, easily took the gold medal in the dance event.

More than 19,000 spectators watched the international competition.

Mizuru Sano of Japan, with a flawless freeskating display climbed from fifth place to take second place behind Shaver. He had 218.59 points and 34 ordinals.

Charles Tickner of the United States finished third with 217.20 points and 35 ordinals.

Robert Rusbeen of Toronto placed fourth with 210.59 points, while Stan Rebonok of Toronto placed eighth in the 11-man field with 200.28 points.

An excellent free-skating performance gave Miss Nightingale her win over Anetta Potzsch of East Germany, who was winner of the compulsory figures and short dance.

Miss Nightingale had 221.93 points and Miss Poetzsch 220.76. Wendy Burge of the United States took the bronze medal with 216.39 points.

Barb Turpening of the Vancouver placed ninth with 202.68 points while Susan MacDonald of Vancouver was 11th with 195.86 points.

The Russian winners of the dance event won all three divisions of their event, finishing with 154.58 points to beat out Colleen O'Connor and James Mills of the United States, who had 151.98 points.

Needl's Transfer Okayed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has approved the controversial transfer of Greg Needl to Calgary Centennials from Toronto Marlboros.

Needl, who last year lost an eye in a hockey accident, moved to the Western Canada League from the Ontario Hockey Association Major Jun. ior series without being waived through the Ontario league.

Although the Marlboros and Needl have had no objection to his transfer, some other OHA teams did not protested.

But Gordon Juckes, executive director of the CAHA, said Sunday a meeting earlier in the day in Montreal formally approved the transfer without objection.

"It was all rather routine," he said in an interview. "We had a letter from the league saying the transfer and stating that the Toronto team had no objection to it.

"And, since the player wanted it, and his parents wanted it, we could see no reason for not approving it."

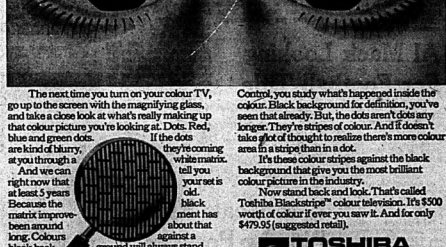
Why $500 worth of stripes in front of your eyes beats $500 worth of spots.



The next time you turn on your colour TV, go up to the screen with the magnifying glass, and take a close look at what's really making up that colour picture you're looking at. Dots. Red, blue and green dots.

If the dots are kind of blurry, they're coming out through a shadow mask matrix. And we can right now that tell you at least 5 years your set is Because the old. matrix improvement has been around about that long. Colours against a black background. ground will always stand out much better than colours against a white background.

So maybe it's time for a new colour TV.

When you do decide to go shopping take the magnifying glass with you. When the salesman turns a set on, go through the same procedure.

Examine the screen up close with the glass. The dots look much clearer now, because they're coming through a black matrix. Now stand back and look at the picture. You may be so impressed with the brilliance (as compared with what you've been seeing at home), that you'll start getting out your chequebook right then and there.

Don't do it.

Interception Kills Ticats

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts scored a pair of touchdowns, picked off a pass by Hamilton quarterback Tom Jones on Saturday afternoon and pushed the Tiger-Cats to the brink of playoff elimination.

Argonauts, who coached a high school football team in California last fall, stopped a Hamilton drive with a big interception and set up the touchdown that clinched a 19-11 win in the Argonauts in their Eastern Football Conference game.

Hamilton quarterback Jones who moved the Argos into the third and final IFC playoff spot, one point in front of Hamilton. The Tiger-Cats must beat Toronto in their final league game at Hamilton next Sunday.

Toronto had a short 19-11 lead when the fourth quarter when Jones led the Tiger-Cats on a methodical march that put the ball on the Toronto 36, in field goal range for Hamilton kicker Ian Sunter.

It was at that point that Ted Tinsley grabbed a Jones pass apparently intended for star flanker Rod Richmond or Hamilton Henley.

A few plays later, Toronto quarterback Mike Rae connected with split end Chuck Hurd for the 71-yard touchdown that banned the Toronto victory.

Hurd caught the ball at the Hamilton 29 and defensive back Lewis Porter, who was covering him, fell while trying to deflect the ball and gave him a clear run to the end zone.

"The pass was underthrown," Porter said in an interview. "I turned around to see where it was and I fell. I think I stumbled and he picked it off."

Jones interceptor had given the Argonauts their narrow lead earlier in the fourth quarter.

Jones and another at 8:38 of the third quarter. He missed on a field attempt in the fourth quarter.

Hamilton overcame a 9-5 halftime lead when Jones passed to Garney Henley for a 42-yard touchdown play and Sunter kicked the convert.

A 37-yard pass from Rae to Hurd set up Andruzyshyn's fourth field goal, putting Toronto back in the front. Sunter, who had booted a first-quarter field goal, added a 42-yard single before the third quarter ended to leave the Ticats trailing by a point.

A record CNE Stadium crowd of 35,507 saw Rae complete 17 of 27 passes for 221 yards. Hamilton collected five passes for 125 yards and Mike Eben made seven receptions for 79 yards.

Doyle Orange gained 102 yards on 11 carries and Ed Shuttleworth 54 on 13 trips for Toronto.

The Hamilton ground game produced only 74 yards. Jones completed 14 of 30 passes for 201 yards, with Henley taking five passes for 81 yards.

I Think He'll Win Says Ali's Mom

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Mom Cleveland Clay says her boy, Cassius, always has been a looker—even when he was a little bashful with girls. He still is—but it's not good to cross him when he goes mad.

"He always was doing things to make people laugh but underneath he could be very moody and serious," said Mrs. Cassius Marcellus Clay, Sr., of Louisville, Ky.

"I think he is very serious now, in spite of all that posing you see in the ring, he wants to win. And I think he will win."

Linebacker Roger Gowa returned a pass from eight yards and defensive back Howard Stevens added 27 yards with a Winnipeg fumble.

Familiar Story In the West

By JOHN SHORT
The Canadian Press

Playoff positions in the Western Football Conference were settled during the weekend and the top three clubs finished in the same order as last year.

Edmonton Eskimos, who edged British Columbia Lions 31-8 at Edmonton Saturday to clinch first place with 19 points and trounced Montreal Alouettes 19-2 to wrap up second place at Regina Sunday with 18 points.

The Saskatchewan Roughriders, Winnipeg and B.C. eligible for the last playoff spot, but the Stampeders settled that problem a few hours later in Calgary by stimulating the Blue Bombers 44-11.

B.C. has one game left and could tie Saskatchewan in points, but the Riders are safe in second spot because they defeated the Lions in head-to-head competition. The Roughriders have concluded their regular-season schedule.

B.C. won the season series with Winnipeg and has the same advantages over the Bombers, who could tie the Lions in points if they upend Calgary next weekend and Ed monton defeats the Lions.

B.C. will visit Regina Nov. 10 for the deciding playoff game, the final. The winner will visit Edmonton for the Western bowl the following weekend.

The Roughriders held Montreal scoreless after capturing the Eastern Conference a week earlier—until the final minute of the quarter, while Edmonton and Calgary took each other's measure but did not look back.

Six pass interceptions did the job for the Roughriders. The second thieves were Ted Dushinski and Pete Athanasiadi with two each and Ted Dushinski and Ian McEachern with one each.

Saskatchewan's George Reed got his 129th touchdown, tying the record set by Jimmy Brown, formerly of Cleveland Browns in the National Football League.

Leif Patterson took an eight-yard pass from Ron Lancaster for the other Saskatchewan touchdown. Brian Berg converted both and added a 16-yard field goal.

The only Montreal points came on a safety touch following an errant lateral to Bobby Thompson from Lancaster.

Quarterback Tom Wilkinson and receiver George McGowan sparked the Eskimos, who scored the first two times they had the ball.

Wilkinson completed 11 of 19 passes in the first half for 194 yards and added a 26-yard touchdown toss to McGowan in the second half.

Calvin Harrell smashed for two short-yardage touchdowns and Trevor Kennerd added a season-high scoring total of 21 points.

Peter Liske hit Leo Harris from the 10-yard line in the two and quarter for B.C.'s only touchdown. Ivan MacMillan converted and added a pair of two singles on wide field-goal attempts.

Five touchdowns in the second half carried the Stampeders, who have won three in a row since Jim Young replaced Peter Liske at quarterback. Included were two touchdowns by the defensive team.

Linebacker Roger Gowa returned a pass from eight yards and defensive back Howard Stevens added 27 yards with a Winnipeg fumble.

Cardinals Remain Undefeated

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis Cardinals continued to look like the supermen of the National Football League on Sunday afternoon, running their unbeaten streak to seven games with a 30-20 win over Washington Redskins.

Two of the biggest plays made by the Cardinals were touchdown passes by Jim Hart to Earl Thomas and Danny Abramowicz.

Hart, hot and cold throughout his NFL career, is currently the prime reason that the Cardinals are the league's only unbeaten team.

While improving their sparkling record, the Cardinals tightened their hold on the National Football League's Eastern Conference's Eastern Division lead while the Redskins slipped further down the ladder with a 4-3 record.

The Redskins, off to their worst start under coach George Allen, rumbled first for scores on a pair of field goals by Curt Knight.

In the other NFL games, Los Angeles Rams beat New York Giants 24-10; New England Patriots defeated Minnesota Vikings 17-14; Buffalo Bills trimmed Chicago Bears 16-6; Miami Dolphins stopped Baltimore Colts 24-16; Oakland Raiders whipped San Francisco 49ers 35-16; Houston Oilers upset Cincinnati Bengals 34-31; Cleveland Browns edged Denver Broncos 23-21; Dallas Cowboys trimmed New York Giants 21-7; Detroit Lions nudged Green Bay Packers 19-17 and Kansas City Chiefs turned back San Diego Chargers 34-17.

Pittsburgh Steelers, leaders in the American Conference's Central Division, beat Atlanta Falcons tonight.

LAWRENCE McCutcheon scored two touchdowns 31 seconds apart in the fourth quarter to lead New York Jets to 23-6 victory over Minnesota. Plunkett hit Jim Plunkett threw a 10-yard scoring pass to Bob Windsor with three minutes left to give New England a dramatic victory over Minnesota. Plunkett led the Patriots on an 85-yard drive in the closing minutes.

Substitute Larry Watkins ran on yard for a touchdown and John Leypoldt kicked three field goals to propel Buffalo past Chicago.

Kenny Malone and Don Houghton, a pair of Bills-used to running backs, scored second-half touchdowns to help Miami beat Baltimore.

International No Sweat for Dahlia

TORONTO (CP) — Dahlia, the multi-national who earlier this year became thoroughbred horse racing's richest filly, breezed through the Canadian International championship as expected Sunday.

The four-year-old chestnut, owned by millionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt of Dallas, Tex., and ridden by veteran English jockey Lester Piggott, came from well off the pace to win by a length and a neck.

The filly was stabled in Ontario and trained by Maurice Zilber, hardly worked up a sweat in her dash along the inside of the pack before Piggott let her loose with the chestnut over Woodbine's mile turf course. Marshall turf horse, two-minutes and 40 seconds, shaving a second off the track record set by Dahlia earlier this year.

Her share of the Canadian record, $132,700, pursed for the $1,388,700.

Piggott looked like she didn't even run," said Zilber of the jockey when he returned to the paddock after returning to France to go back into training will be the Washington International at Laurel, Md., a week from Saturday.

"Quite phenomenal," said Zilber of the ease with which Dahlia sent off by the crowd of 25,000 as the 3-to-5 favorite, moved through the leaders at the top of the stretch.

"She wasn't even blowing," he said after visiting Dahlia in the winner's circle for the fifth time in nine starts this year while seeing her garnered $1,000,000 mark. "I didn't understand.

"It was more fresher than she was. I expect Lester was, too.' Big Spruce, owned by Max Gluck of New York, was Dahlia's only serious threat. Carney's Point, owned by Jack Radford of Toronto, grabbed third place, another length and a half back. Two more of the London Company, owned by Bertram Firestone of New York.

They were followed by Prochazen, the only horse filly in the field, owned by Ed Seltzer and Dan Fairbrant of Cove Point, Md., and Security, Secret Knight and Good Port.

Piggott, who recently purchased by a syndicate which includes Toronto industrialist R. F. Tayler, is a majority shareholder and ridden by Canada's champion jockey Sandy Hawley, grabbed the early lead.

Winner of the Epsom Derby earlier this year had twice been to Dahlia in subsequent starts, the three-year-old colt held the lead by as much as 10 lengths before fading in the final turn for the wire.

Dahlia, with Piggott obviously holding her near the back of the pack, stood seventh on the first turn past the main grandstand, holding to the rail while keeping pace with the leaders.

She continued to hug the rail, moving from sixth to the 7/16 pole to take the lead at the top of the stretch, barring uproar horses before settling into a steady gallop that was matched only by Big Spruce, who was down on the outside.

The big filly, carrying 123 pounds—three pounds fewer than the other aged colts and grounds more than three-year-olds in the race, returned $3.80, $2.20 and $2.60 to her backers.

Big Spruce, in picking up his second-place money of $25,605, paid $2.80 and $2.20 while Carney's Point took third place and won $18,230. He paid $3.50 to his backers.

MARIO ANDRETTI

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Russell Pate of the University of South Carolina easily won the Niagara International marathon on Saturday, covering the 26.2 mile course in 2:32:32, lead at the start.

Redman Senior Champion

5000 Final to Andretti

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Mario Andretti took the lead when Bobby Unser's championship Eagle broke and went on to win the final race of the Formula 5000 season Sunday.

But the prize he had sought all season—the series championship—went to England's Brian Redman, who drove smoothly to a runner-up finish in the race. Redman leads Andretti by just five points better to pick up the title.

Andretti, with ranks as probably America's best road racer, had started the 75-mile race in the front row beside Unser.

Unser, who earlier had finished in the runner-up spot behind Bobby Allison in the third heat of the International Race of Champions series, marched his championship car into the lead at the start.

But he went only eight laps before fiames suddenly shot out of the rear-end motor and he was through for the day. Andretti took forty lead he never relinquished.

Driving a Lola-Chevrolet, Andretti posted an average speed of 122.172 miles an hour, a track record for Formula 5000 machinery. Nations set the old race mark of 118.415 last year.

Andretti picked up $18,600 for his victory, bringing his season's total to $65,700.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Legislation extending current prohibitions against discrimination, to include persons in social damages to victims of discrimination and changing the Manitoba government's human rights machinery, now is in effect.

The Manitoba Human Rights Act, which received royal assent the last session of the provincial legislature, went into effect last Friday, prohibits discrimination in housing rental based on race, religion, colour, nationality, ancestry or ethnic origin.

Potato Flakes Fall on Town

KINGS LYNN (Easter) — Residents in this east coast fishing town of Lynn were surprised they thought it was snowing but on closer inspection, the white flakes looked more than last mashed potato.

It was mashed potato.

The flakes covered gardens, cars, piped up windows and turned black cats white after a machine in a local food factory malfunctioned.

Instead of pouring a mashed potato flake mixture into neat little bags, the machine was whipping the substance into the air. The potato mixture then covered up to 300 feet around the processor plant.

PM's Wife Tells Of Her Illness

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Trudeau, wife of the prime minister, says she was "reaching kind of a crisis stage" in her life when she entered hospital recently for treatment of an emotional problem.

In an interview Sunday with Gerda Taylor on the CTV program W5, Mrs. Trudeau said that following the July 8 election campaign, she felt very, very weary and very emotionally tight."

"I was very, very frightened when I actually went to the hospital knowing I was ... now classified emotionally ill," she said.

Mrs. Trudeau, 26, who married the prime minister in a quiet ceremony in Vancouver in March, 1971, said she entered the hospital with several major questions to answer concerning her future life. "I really just got to be mother, wife, whether I should remain and a bit and try and do something in Canada on a more ... professional level, ..."

She said she was annoyed by the speculation and innuendo that surrounded her admission to hospital.

"I'm a pretty private person and I ... sort of felt I deserved the right to have a time to rest and I just seemed to really an invation."

Mrs. Trudeau was asked why she became so involved in the last federal election campaign if she is such a private person.

"Yeah, I could have (stayed out) and I would have if I didn't think that I could really personally help my husband because with him so well and I know what a beautiful—oh I've said this before and I'm not going to say this again, anyway—that he's a very warm human being and I didn't feel that those immakers, i.e. the press or public opinion, really understood what kind of man was offering himself to lead the people of the country."

She is "a private, but shy he's so shy and so private that it's very hard for him to let people know how much he cares inside, and I thought that perhaps I could help by making it just a little easier, you know."

Mrs. Trudeau said one of the greatest difficulties in adjusting to the role of the prime minister's wife is the lack of personal freedom.

"I don't have that freedom and it's one of the real realities of my life here which I find very difficult. It's like being a prisoner because I'm never alone, except inside the house.

"But sometimes you have to get away from your surroundings in order to really have

Millionaires, 77, Agrees Husband Can Have Girls

LONDON (Reuter) - Michael Wilson, the 29-year-old Welsh miner's son who plans to marry 77-year-old American millionaire Doris Rachel Fisher, says he has made a set pact with his bride-to-be.

"Seriously, we're not marrying for sexual attraction," Wilson said in an interview published by British newspapers Sunday.

"Miss Fisher and I will sleep in separate rooms after the wedding."

Wilson continues himself as "just a normal guy who wants to marry a woman."

Pictured drinking with pretty girls in a club on the English resort island of Guernsey, Wilson is reported to have said: "Rachel said I enjoy yourself, and that's why I'm doing it."

He said that even after his marriage he would be able to have girlfriends, adding that his future wife—an aunt of U.S. investigator Senator Nelson Rockfeller's wife—would not mind.

"We've agreed about this, and that's why we say problems," Wilson said.

"I'm a perfectly normal boy doing a normal job who wants to marry a woman."

Concern Said Expressed In Immigration Report

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says it has confidentially learned that a number of recent immigration ads of French-speaking immigrants.

The newspaper says that the confidential document expresses concern over the decline in the number of French-speaking immigrants.

The document also suggests that the category of immigrants known as nominated immigrants contains a high proportion of poorly qualified to the Canadian labor market, the newspaper says.

The green paper will be the basis for public discussion of immigration policy, after which the government will bring down legislation to change the 1952 Immigration Act.

The newspaper says the document now engaging the government is contemplating keeping the current immigration levels — one of immigrants from non-traditional areas and no nominated immigrants.

It says the green paper also suggests the government will require a policy to maintain the current proportion in Canada of English and French-speaking persons.

Data in the paper show a sharp drop in the proportion of immigrants from Europe and a sharper rise in the proportion from Asia, the Caribbean, Africa and Latin America, the newspaper says.

Food Allergies Cause Paranoia

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Harry Hoffer, a Saskatoon psychiatrist, says a deficiency of the B3 vitamin niacin can cause paranoia schizophrenia. Psychiatrists meeting here Saturday heard Dr. Hoffer say people appear depressed and anxious.

Some forms of schizophrenia are caused by vitamin-deficiency disorders, he said.

Dr. Hoffer said he became interested in allergies six months ago when a 19-year-old patient failed to improve despite treatment with massive doses of vitamins, a special diet, and use of tranquilizers and electro-shock therapy.

The girl was paranoid and she heard voices before and after the extensive treatment, he said.

Dr. Hoffer said he asked the girl and her parents if they would be prepared to fast for four days, but anticipated that a four-day fast unsupervised by a physician would be dangerous. He said he decided to supervise the fast himself.

Hoffer said acute schizophrenia is dealt with on the vitamin therapy, Dr. Hoffer said. Chronic schizophrenics not getting well on the vitamin treatment have been greatly helped, he added, by the combined food allergies.

The patient was put on a vaccine to reduce her sensitivity to those foods, combined with reduced doses of vitamins, and given a diet in which offending foodstuffs were rotated in small quantities.

Of 60 patients who have fasted under his direction, Dr. Hoffer said, 40 were normal after four days. Thirty of the patients were allergic to dairy products. A few heavy smokers were found to be allergic to tobacco smoke.

Dr. Hoffer said acute schizophrenics to which the vitamin therapy is applied, and chronic schizophrenics who show allergic would be deprived as well.

The patient was worse and was given vitamins during the fast, he said. But, on the third day she began to improve.

When she woke on the fourth day she was completely normal, he said. The paranoia had gone and she did not complain of hearing voices.

The patient was given water during the fast, Dr. Hoffer explained, but on the fifth day she was given milk. Within an hour, he said, she was hallucinating again.

When he sent the girl to an allergist for tests, Dr. Hoffer said, she was found to be allergic to house dust as well as 36 other substances.

The patient was put on a vaccine to reduce her sensitivity to house dust, combined with reduced doses of vitamins, and given a diet in which offending foodstuffs were rotated in small quantities.

Of 60 patients who have fasted under his direction, Dr. Hoffer said, 40 were normal after four days. Thirty of the patients were allergic to dairy products. A few heavy smokers were found to be allergic to tobacco smoke.

Public Announcement

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announces the following decision effective October 31, 1974.

DECISION: CHEM-74-328

CORNWALL, DESERONTO, OTTAWA, ROCKLAND, ONT.; LA SALLE, AYLMER, LIVRY, QUE.

DESCHENES AND TOURAINE, QUE.

Application by Cablecom Inc. for the transfer directly or indirectly of the effective ownership or control of:

a) Business of Cablecom Limited, comprises of a cable television system in Rockland, Ont.

b) Ottawa-Cornwall Television Limited, licensee of CJOH-TV-4 Ottawa, CJOH-TV-6 Cornwall and CJOH-TV-4 Deseronto, Ont.

c) Lamontagne Television Limited, licensee of cable television systems in Aylmer, Lucerne-Deschenes, Hull and Gatineau, Que.

d) Skyline Television Limited, licensee of a cable television system in Ottawa, Ont.

e) the undertakings, undertakings operated by and of the broadcasting undertaking of 254,868 common shares then issued and fully paid in the capital stock of Cablecom (52%) of Bonbeni Communications Holdings Ltd., to Campeau Corporation.

DECISION: DENIED

This application was heard by the Commission on October 16th, 1974, at a Public Hearing held in Ottawa, Ontario.

Campeau Corporation ("Campeau") is a diversified real estate company based in the City of Ottawa and engaged in land development, construction and sale of housing, the development, construction and management of commercial and industrial properties and the sale of lumber and building products. Except for a small interest held by Bonbeni Communications Holdings Ltd., a private company, Campeau is the owner of all the licensees of a cable system serving part of the City of Ottawa, Cablecom-Ottawa Limited, which has no operating undertaking or experience in the operation of broadcasting undertakings.

Bonbeni Communications Limited ("Bonbeni") through its subsidiaries Cablecom Holdings Limited, Cablecom, operating television station CJOH-TV Ottawa, which relays programming to cable systems in Cornwall, Ont., and provides alternative Canadian television programming to cable systems in Ottawa, Ont., Deseronto, Ont., Rockland, Ont., and Gatineau, Que. Bonbeni is also the owner of Cablecom Limited, which owns and operates cable systems in Rockland, Ont., Aylmer, Que., Deschenes and Touraine, Que. As of April 1974, Bonbeni had a total of 14,000 subscribers. Bonbeni Limited which serves part of Ottawa.

The Commission is not satisfied from the evidence produced in the written material and at the Public Hearing that it has been considered adequately and fully by the shareholders of Bonbeni the responsibilities made provision for the utilization of Bonbeni's various broadcasting undertakings. In particular, the proposed financing undertakings. In particular, the proposed financing arrangements would, in the opinion of the Commission, sufficiently specific to expressing their preparation, plans for their broadcasting undertakings or in expanding how Bonbeni under Campeau's ownership would discharge its responsibilities, which Bonbeni is a dominant member.

The Commission also took note of the concern expressed by the intervenors regarding the possible conflicts of interest that might arise from the ownership of a company engaged in the development and management of a broad range of real estate activities, including an broadcaster, by the Broadcasting Act. The Commission advises that such conflicts of interest, including public relations, personnel planning, the re-zoning of lands and the establishment of cable television rates, are potential for conflict between the objectives of a developer and those of a broadcaster. The Commission considers that the ownership and management responsibilities of broadcasting undertakings to provide balanced opportunity for the discussion of conflicting views on public issues to be concern. In the opinion of the Commission, the representation of Campeau's proposed acquisition by these concerns.

In view of its denial of this application, the Commission will expect a further application for the divestiture of the Bonbeni shares held by Campeau in Bonbeni Holdings Ltd. to be placed before it not later than April 1st, 1975. Such application should include proposals for the ownership of the Cablecom undertakings in the event of the Commission expressed in this and previous decisions and should be accompanied by evidence of the shareholdings of Western Broadcast Holdings Ltd in Bonbeni.

In its Decision 74-56, the Commission stressed that it expects the dominant CTV station will not only provide a local service but to contribute to regional and national services as well. The Commission noted that CJOH-TV in the complex responsibility within the CTV network of reflecting in the news of Canada the National Capital area, with its distinctive bilingual and bi-cultural character, as well as the other characteristics of the Ottawa Ontario triangle, with their varying historical, social and cultural traditions. The Commission has indicated that Bonbeni, with unrealized static and technical facilities, has been unable to fulfill the obligations of broadcasting programs not only for the CTV Network but for other networks, and the licensee's application the Commission will expect any future applicant to demonstrate an awareness of these functions of broadcasting and to develop concrete proposals to ensure their fulfilment.

SURREY, B.C. (CP) — As 11-in-1 circle, up and down and 7-year-old Surrey boy has taken a then look of super fait in the picture of what he is convinced is an unidentified flying object today.

He saw the object Oct. 19 (UFO).

"It just went round and round from the kitchen window of his home in Old Vancouver suburb after he noticed two RCMP officers standing in a parking lot, pointing in the sky toward the east.

The picture, taken at 4 p.m. Oct. 13, shows a circular 45-foot-black object with a sharp nar row glow around its edge. David said there were no distinguishable markings on the object which he estimates was about 400 feet away.

Man Hanged at Hull

HULL, Que. (CP) — A 75-year-old man was found hanged in his cell early Saturday morning in an apparent suicide, police said.

James, a member of the Ni-ves People's Caravan, which has taken over a federal building on an island in the Ottawa River near here, was found hanging in his cell at 4:37 a.m.

A spokesman for the caravan demanded an inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the incident and said the council at the so-called Indian embassy would make every effort to keep the young people on the island and away from what he termed "possible police harassment."

Probe Whelan's Decision

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Sunday he was not forced by his fellow cabinet ministers to call an inquiry into the loss of 28 million eggs.

The federal minister said in an interview on radio station CFRB the decision was left up to him.

About 28 million eggs rotted in Canada earlier this year because of inadequate storage space. They were destroyed by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency.

Mr. Whelan said the number of wasted eggs is small, compared with Canada's total production, but "we have to realize we have to quit wasting."

Country In Heart Of Capital

By JIM McCARTHY
Fredericton Daily Gleaner

FREDERICTON (CP) — Urban dwellers in many Canadian centres long for a daily escape from the asphalt jungle to natural surroundings but are forced to settle for a vacation or a weekend jaunt in the country.

Fredericton residents can take this all for granted.

Odell Park, a 30-acre) preserve located in the heart of the New Brunswick capital, is an avenue to recreation and relaxation for hundreds of visitors and residents daily.

Jack Doherty has park superintendent, sees it as one of the last natural settings to survive the pressures of urban development.

"It's quite a thing—not many cities in Canada can make the claim of having a natural park."

Mr. Doherty and his wife live just inside the main entrance of the park. Their bungalow and immediate surroundings set the trend for the park—clean and well kept.

The facility is not designed as a wildlife sanctuary, therefore a home to some. About 10 deer are kept at the park and Mr. Doherty says several wild deer have taken refuge there.

"It's surprising, they are about as tame as the ones we keep in the park."

Several deer reared at the park have been released by forestry officials into natural wildlife surroundings.

The deer are one of the main interests for strollers in the park.

"Children are naturally curious and interested, but it's surprising the number of adults who haven't seen a deer close up."

About 60 wild ducks arrive each summer.

"We released the ducks last year into the St. John River at the end of the season—and those wild boys knowed were killed by weasels. It's difficult to keep them inside. I think they are better off if released."

Ponds for wildfowl are clean and fed by a natural flow of water. The deer pen also contains a natural spring.

France Permits Minorities Right to Speak Mother Tongue

PARIS (CP) — France, which for a long time has resented students to learn a second international language, is really appears ready to grant minorities within its borders the right to study their own mother tongue.

The government of Premier Giscard d'Estaing, bowing to pressure from left-wing parties, regional nationalists and the most powerful educational organization in the country, will likely adopt legislation this fall to approve the teaching of such dialects as Basque and Corsican in public schools.

France, like Spain, has largely abolished most Western countries in granting linguistic rights to minorities. As recently as 1972, Ikcard's late predecessor, Georges Pompidou, said there was no place for minority languages in a country "destined to put its seal on Europe."

The change of heart under the new administration has probably been prompted by the growing strength of the Socialist and Communist parties, both advocates of minority rights, the European Bill of Rights which outlawed discrimination on decades of agitation by regional groups, and mounting criticism from the 400,000-member National Education Federation of France.

Rising militancy among the Breton of Brittany, Alsace, Corsica, the Basque regions in the south and in Occidental in defense of their language's dependence and occasional terrorism by nationalists in Corsica have also prodded the government.

Most of the minorities have their own artists, writers, poets and authors and their languages are still often spoken at home. In Occitan, an area encompassing 30 departments, two million people speak various dialects and another six million can understand them.

Although the ban was teaching minority tongues is only partially lifted, there has been an increase in the number of young Bretons and others taking special courses to regain fluency in dialects threatened by the power of French.

Previous French governments' opposition to the survival of minority tongues seemed to contradict their strong actions to promote bilingualism in the country.

All French children must bring to study a second language when they begin high school, the favorites being English, German, Spanish, Italian and Russian. They are also given the option of studying a third and, occasionally, a fourth.

In 1974, 75 per cent of the 4.5 million students beginning their secondary education opted for English and 16 per cent for German, also a strong favorite for a third language because of France's close political and economic ties with the West Germans. Other languages, notably Portuguese and Spanish are becoming more popular because of the large number of immigrants in France since the Second World War.

There are more than a million Portuguese in the Paris area, and the French government two years ago added their language to the list of options available in schools.

Russian, mostly chosen as a third or fourth language, was picked by only 25,000 high school entrants last year.

There are usually about four or five hours' instruction a week in each course and secondary students sometimes visit countries where their chosen second language is spoken during summer holidays.

Research Aims at Avoiding Surgery

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Research now being done into the causes of the most common diseases — gall bladder ailments, cancer and hernia — is aimed at eliminating some of the pain and discomfort resulting from surgery.

Dr. D. M. Grace, an assistant professor of surgery at the University of Western Ontario faculty of medicine, said that medication for gallstones, super-cold freezing therapy to kill skin cancer cells, special plugs to stop stomach artery bleeding and intravenous feeding for persons without bowels to absorb the food they eat are all methods under experimentation at present.

While surgery, the only hope in the past, remains an important factor in treating such diseases today, there are ways being investigated to avoid surgery in some cases, Dr. Grace said in an address to the London Medical Secretaries Association.

The same technique is being used to treat hemorrhoids, he said.

Traditional surgery for hemorrhoids can involve a fairly lengthy stay in hospital. But the cryosurgery approach, while by no means "the final answer," has proven capable of getting the affected person back to work faster with a minimum of pain involved, Dr. Grace said.

Some ulcer patients require surgery to stop stomach bleeding which may be threatening their lives. But Dr. Grace said studies with dogs have shown it is possible to pinpoint the location of a bleeding stomach ulcer with the use of angiography—a method of following the bloodway through an artery.

Because the stomach has more than one artery, it was deemed possible to use a type of "jell form" block to stop circulation at the ruptured point in the artery without surgery and without damaging the stomach tissue which must receive oxygenated blood constantly.

While not a "recommended route" yet, Dr. Grace said the technique has been used once in a patient who was in critical condition. The technique could be extended to certain types of bleeding artery and fracture accidents as well, he added.

Dr. Grace said the use of hyperalimentation intravenous feeding—of a patient who was no longer capable of acquiring enough nutrition from eaten food because his bowel had been removed due to disease was another technique under study.

The surgical alternative for such patients would be a bowel transplant and to date none have been successful, he said.

None of these methods are part of regular routine in hospitals at present, he said. But the hope for the future is that, in some cases at least, surgery will be avoided.

Transport Band Wows Audience

By WILLIAM CAMPBELL

Sunday night, approximately 60 Quinte residents were treated to a concert of exceptional quality. The concert was sponsored by the Rotary club of Belleville, with proceeds going to the crippled children's fund. It was performed by the Air Transport Command band under the direction of Capt. Kenneth R. Moore, C.D.

The band is almost a misnomer, and should be orchestra, because at times through the evening you would believe you were listening to a symphony.

For approximately 50 minutes I sat in a hall the size of Centennial and yet be down to a whisper and in the next instance fill the hall with sound and yet not be too loud is a remarkable feat in itself not to mention the fact of being so together in playing they sounded as one.

The program itself was mainly in the modern vein phrasing and modern chord structures. The opening piece was Fairday by Campbell, which was a bright tune showing good tempo and good musicianship.

An overture a Brilliance by Tuthill gave an opportunity for us to hear a well-rendered opening by the French horn section with nice solos by sax — brumpet and xylophone. This piece seemed to alternate from fanfare to tone poem about three times.

The piece A Change Pace by Nestico was a light Lalloy Anderson style melody with a more modern chord structure and phrasing and it showed us an exceptional high quality clarinet section. Other modern pieces were The Sounds of The Carpenters, arranged by Canvas which included We're Only Just Begin — Rainy Days and Mondays and For All We Know. A special arrangement of Carmen by Nuet but arranged in a Jazzo Lee — Tijuana Brass style was a crowd pleaser and showed up the talents of a superb rhythm section.

The overture Cheknets by Ben Bogisch, a director of bands with the Canadian Forces could become a classic of this era. The modern trend ended with a piece called Where It's At by Giovannini. The fanfare work by the trumpets and trombones was full and rich.

Solos were rendered by Sgt. Robert Murray who played a trumpet solo Young Miss With a Horn from the movie of the same name. He had a big full tone and played with a good deal of feeling. It is piece like this that show up the quality of this band as the background to the solo was well rendered with a good touch of color.

An Euphonium solo by Wo Leslie Pike had to be heard to be appreciated. The technique was exceptional as was the xylophone solo by Cpl. Peter Bellerose called Xylophobia which was a bit with the audience. Two guitar solos made a nice change of pace played by Sgt. Cecil Rose. He played Wind Song by Wes Montgomery and Guasi tanemera.

Two marches and a musical tribute to the RCAF concluded the evening.

There were a few spots where the soloists were overpowered slightly, but on the whole an excellent concert.

The evening concluded by the 1974 Tiemup presenting a plaque to Capt. Moore from the crippled children, to thank the members of the band, for their help in raising money for this worthy cause.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday, October 29

Aries (March 21-April 19) — You'll have little patience with family situations you'd not usually tolerate. You'd be a clear bore discussing them.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Recognized values you taken for granted will be due to your own attitude. Don't point yourself into corner with neighbors. Be kind.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Friends you'll deal with will interact as generously as they usually do. Be sure to pick up your end of the tab voluntarily.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — To achieve your goals today you'll have to be a trifle thick-skinned and able to cope with a few setbacks. If you persist, you'll win.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Be on your toes now as you can think your way around troublesome but will be zapping up. If one plan doesn't work, be ready to try another.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — This is not a good time for you to get involved with persons in joint ventures unless each knows exactly what to expect from the other.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — This is not a good time for you to get involved with persons in joint ventures unless each knows exactly what to expect from the other.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — You're likely to try to dodge an issue because a difficult decision is involved, but you can't escape by wasting time.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — You've got to feel there's urgency where your work is concerned, but don't let haste get to you. Get your own thoughts over-with you can't be rushed.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Don't gamble on other people or situations over which you have little or no control. You won't come out ahead.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Try not to reawaken old issues that you and your mate don't see eye-to-eye on. It will spell what could be a pleasant day.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — You're better equipped today to do physical chores than those of a mental nature. Take a break from the inside work.

Pisces (Feb. 20-Mar. 20) — Take a hard second look at anything that is passed off as a bargain. You could be taken at disadvantage if you're too impulsive.

Stanfield Outlines Plans

PCs Won't Waste Time Defending Own Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party won't waste time defending its own economic proposals when the government introduces its new budget, party leader Robert Stanfield says.

"The issue of the budget is not going to be the position of the Conservative party," Mr. Stanfield said on the CTV television network program Question Period, taped for broadcast Sunday.

"What's going to be discussed is the government's position," he said.

"Our tactic is going to be to expose in its full nakedness, for everybody to see, just how much or how little there is in what Mr. Turner proposes," he said referring to Finance Minister John Turner expected to introduce the budget sometime in November.

But Conservatives also will make constructive suggestions during the budget debate, Mr. Stanfield added. "We always do."

But the Conservative leader would not say what measures should be contained in the new budget.

"You better ask Mr. Turner," he said, adding that he thinks the "poor guy is in a dilemma."

"I don't think he knows what to do. I think he's going to ride along substantially the same position as last May, hoping that somehow or other these fellows in Washington will get the world . . . and their own economy straightened out and in three or four years things will be all right in Canada."

Mr. Stanfield also was asked to comment on factors that may have led to his party's defeat in the July 8 election.

He shrugged off a suggestion that voters may simply have rejected Conservative proposals for wage and prices controls.

"I'm not sure that the policy was all that damaging in terms of how people actually voted," he said.

"But clearly it gave the prime minister something to shoot at and therefore is questionable tactically for an opposition party."

One interesting thing he had noticed about the election campaign was "the way journalists sort of laid down and let Mr. Trudeau walk all over them."

"(They) allowed him to conduct exactly the kind of tightly controlled campaign that he wanted to conduct.

"I just got the impression that the journalistic corps was for the most part . . . rather frightened."

Mr. Stanfield then was asked whether his own public image had contributed to his party's losses. He failed to inspire the confidence of the electorate?

"I'm not very objective in judging myself. Actually I think I'm a very lovable and attractive guy," he shot back.

Mr. Stanfield also said he has not yet made any definite decision about when he will step down as party leader. He announced soon after the election that he planned to give up the leadership within about two years.

"I haven't fixed any definite time as to how long I'd stay as leader," said Mr. Stanfield.

"I left that question open as a decision for me to make in consultation with the party executive and members of the caucus and that is what I intend to do.

"I obviously have no vested interest in basking on just for the sake of basking on."

Labor President Asks Food Probe

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — David Archer, president of the 100,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor, called today for a royal commission into food prices to determine "who is ripping off" the consumer.

Any government body to investigate the alleged rip-off should study the food industry from the "farm gate to the dinner plate," he said in a keynote address to the OFL's annual convention.

Mr. Archer said farm marketing boards and monopolistic speculators were not the sole cause for recent inflated food prices.

Much of inflation has been created artificially and is not the result of world demands, Mr. Archer said. He said declaring inflation was the most important issue facing this year's convention.

Women Want Property Changes Retroactive

TORONTO (CP) — A two-day conference on family property law, organized by the Ontario Status of Women Council, ended a "day with delegates suggesting that legislation aimed at reforming these laws should apply to existing as well as future marriages.

"Equal co-ownership of the matrimonial home should be given immediate and retroactive effect as a general principle which should apply to all matrimonial homes," states one of the dozens of resolutions adopted by delegates.

Proposed provincial legislation would not apply to persons already married when the legislation comes into effect, if such persons want to be subject to it they will have to sign a statutory declaration to this effect and file it with the registrar-general.

The government's proposals — in the form of Bill 127 — came out of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, an independent agency set up in 1964 to review laws and recommend changes. The commission has submitted five reports to date and the family property law report is the latest.

There were 800 women from 40 communities at the conference held to discuss Bill 127.

While agreeing with certain aspects of the bill, delegates passed many resolutions taking total sharing of matrimonial property to more radical ends.

Bill 127 was given first reading in the legislature last spring. Second reading is expected early next year following a series of public meetings throughout the province being conducted by Robert Welch, Ontario attorney-general.

In any new legislation, delegates agreed, the words husband and wife should be replaced by the word spouse.

Defence Budget Not Cut

CALGARY (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson has rejected claims that the armed forces are the only government agency facing budget reductions because of inflation.

Mr. Richardson, in Calgary Saturday for his first official visit since becoming defence minister, told a group of officers from the regular armed forces, militia and retired members that every government department is facing reductions.

He said the defence budget has not been reduced but the projected increase of $164 million will not allow the department to maintain the same per-capita level that has been contracted in the past.

Some of the big food companies had been inflating inflation for the sole purpose of boosting their already exorbitant profits," he said.

Mr. Archer also said organized labor must seek to have more of its supporters elected to government, take steps to help the unorganized and unprotected and change legislation to make it more favorable to labor.

The desire of workers to organize has been thwarted by an anti-union labor code that can only be analyzed as pro-management," he said.

Nixon Doing Well

Operation Is Performed to Tie Off Clotted Vein in Left Leg

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former president Richard Nixon's surgeon said today that Nixon is doing well following an operation to stop a blood clot in his left leg from moving any further toward his heart or lungs.

Dr. Eldon Hickman, who performed the hour-long operation, said Nixon's condition is "stable." He said Nixon returned to his room at Memorial Hospital Medical Center here for recovery.

Nixon's personal physician had said the operation was required because the clots in Nixon's leg posed a threat to his life.

"With the threat the clot could become a pulmonary embolism, we placed a clip to partially occluding but not completely occluding the vein," Hickman said. He said the clip is permanent.

He said the operation was successful and that the former president is "recovering in the normal manner."

Hickman said Nixon will probably be in hospital for "another week," then the recovery "should take four to six weeks at home.

The operating theatre was guarded by Secret Service agents, and reporters were restricted to a conference room.

The hour-long operation was to have begun at 8:30 a.m. PST, (5:30 a.m. EST).

The decision to operate was made late Monday after a medical team determined the tests showed no worsening signs of condition from the phlebitis Nixon suffers in his left leg.

In Washington, Nixon's younger daughter Julie Eisenhower, said doctors wanted to operate Monday night "but he was too weak, he's exhausted." She said Julie "was amazed at the skill of her mother, Pat. ... said he is the hospital during the operation.

A source close to Nixon said earlier in the day that the former chief executive was experiencing pain during his hospital confinement.

Arabs Reach Accord

Arafat Recognized Palestinian Leader

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The Arab summit conference has recognized Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) as the leadership of a future independent Palestinian state to be established after the West Bank of the Jordan River is liberated from Israel.

But the Arab leaders are leaving Egypt, Syria and Jordan a free hand in peace negotiations with Israel.

The endorsement of the Palestine guerilla movement appeared to doom resumption of the Geneva Middle East peace conference soon since Israel refuses to deal with the PLO. That, the way appeared open for the Jordanian, Syrian and Egyptian plan advocated by United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

After three days of intensive discussions, the kings and presidents of the Arab countries agreed on a formula Monday declaring the PLO the sole legitimate claims of the PLO and Jordan to control of the West Bank territory, which Israel captured in the 1967 Palestine war and Israel took in the 1967 war.

A spokesman said the leaders unanimously approved a resolution "reaffirming the rights of the Palestinian people to set up an independent national authority, under the leadership of the PLO as the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people on any Palestinian land that is liberated."

"Arab countries must support this authority when it is established in all fields and at all levels," the resolution said.

King Hussein of Jordan and Arafat embraced expressions of mutual support, the spokesman said. However, conference sources said the king expressed explicit "reservations" to the resolution. They explained that this would allow him to negotiate with Israel without being identified with the PLO.

The spokesman said the summit called on Egypt, Syria, Jordan and the PLO to organize relations among themselves so they can implement the summit decision. The other sources said this might produce agreement between the PLO and Jordan for Jordan to represent the Palestinians in negotiations with Israel.

The sources also reported that Sadat made clear he intends to pursue further peace efforts in the interests of Egypt. He thus refused to be bound in by any complications that might result from the endorsement of the PLO.

Stanfield Outspoken

Report by PM 'Bag of Fog'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's report to the House Monday on his Commonwealth trip to Tyrone and Dalgleish.

"I'll tell you what you got today was a bag of fog," said Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield at the conclusion of an acid attack.

He and T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) strongly criticized the prime minister for not clarifying what he really sought in talks with leaders of the European Economic Community.

The prime minister said in his statement that Canada seeks "ways of engaging the community in a dynamic, co-operative enterprise."

"We wish to add a new, yet parallel dimension to the existing links we are already developing with the countries of Europe," he said.

Mr. Stanfield started by congratulating the prime minister for giving the impression of being on a working trip.

He said there were no benefits and no details on this trip — that has to be progress in itself.

He was referring to some accusations of the prime minister on past foreign trips—such as sidling down banisters in London.

He said the government, after waiting for years to seek an arrangement with the economic community made an unfortunate presentation that was not up to scratch and showed the government had not done its homework.

Spending Ceilings Lifted For Individual Hospitals

Over-all Limit Remains

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller said today that individual spending ceilings for Ontario hospitals in 1975 have been removed, but not over-all spending ceilings.

"Individual hospitals do not have specific ceilings, but all hospitals in total do," said the minister in an interview.

He said a percentage increase for over-all hospital spending is confidential until after the 1975 hospital budgets have been submitted.

In a letter to all hospital board chairmen and administrators last week, the ministry asked the hospitals to submit 1975 operating costs on the basis of known dollar increases instead of working within a fixed, predetermined percentage change.

The ministry has tried using percentage ceilings in previous years to limit growth in operating costs. In 1973, it imposed a five-per-cent growth limit and tried to limit 1974 increases to 7.9 per cent.

But wage settlements during the year will bring that increase to about 20 per cent, said Mr. Miller.

The 1975 health budget is expected to be about $5 billion.

Mr. Miller said now that ceilings on individual hospitals have been removed, he hopes that increases will reflect real needs.

Ceilings were a simple way to control spending, but Mr. Miller said such simplicity is not necessarily good if it does not allow for individual variations within the system.

Mr. Miller said that the increased spending will not bring about an increase in Ontario Health Insurance Plan premiums.

James Bain, a health ministry spokesman, said hospital budgets will be pruned and modified by provincial authorities to ensure that the total falls within the over-all provincial budget ceilings.

U.S. Ready To Accept Neutrality

NEW DELHI (AP) — Henry Kissinger says the United States government has abandoned its cold war opposition to governments that take neither side in the U.S. rivalry with the Soviet Union.

"The United States accepts nonalignment," the U.S. state secretary said Monday in a major address to the Indian Council of Foreign Affairs. "In fact, America sees a world of free, independent, sovereign states as being decidedly in its own national interest."

Kissinger acknowledged that Washington is partly in debt to the late Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first prime minister and one of the pioneer advocates of non-alignment, for "this new American view." He suggested it might have been adopted earlier.

Nationalization Moves Planned

Cooking Won't Make 'Staph-burgers' Safe

OTTAWA (CP) — People can safely eat billions of the type of harmless food-spoilage bacteria usually found in ground beef, but the meat may not be safe even after cooking, if it contains high levels of staphylococcus bacteria, a National Research Council scientist said Monday.

However, there does not appear to be any ground beef produced domestically with high enough levels of staphylococcus bacteria to concern the public health interest, Dr. David Clark, a microbiologist and secretary treasurer of the United Nations international commission on microbiological specifications for food.

While most staphylococcus bacteria are harmless to humans, a small percentage of them produce toxins which are not destroyed by cooking and can cause food poisoning, said Dr. Clark, who is studying ways to control food poisoning during the storage and handling of fresh beef.

Common staphylococcus bacteria, usually present on human skin and nose, bacteria from animal or human excrement, can be expected to be found in ground beef, Dr. Clark said in an interview.

Only perfect handling by meat processors and rigorous sanitation procedures could keep these bacteria at bay.

This situation is not dangerous because it takes high levels of staphylococcus bacteria to produce the harmful toxins and because coliform bacteria are readily killed by cooking beef said.

New Teaching Technique Outlined to Trustees

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward school trustees Monday received a progress report on primary literacy for county schools from special services coordinator Jack Williams.

Mr. Williams gave a slide presentation showing Prince Edward students in the primary grades led by their teachers in learning experiences.

He accompanied the slides with a narration by a supervising principal in Kenora, Sister Margaret Towney, who was an instructor at a principal's course attended this summer by Mr. Williams.

The narration suggested the concept of desks in rows with each pupil's activity may be outdated. It was suggested pupils should be permitted to "spin" into the halls or yard. Desks might be grouped instead of left in rows.

It was noted communication is developed by extensive repetition of language, just as the repeated handling of objects instructs in accomplishment.

By pre-determining what exists for the child in the environment, the teacher becomes in control of the new system.

The system encourages a spontaneity permitting a child to "scramble" to tap the real book or "just watch a flower grow," thereby meeting the need for scheduled rest periods.

In discussing this type of primary learning, Mr. Williams observed principals can expect to meet with opposition.

He said the system works for two reasons, first because there is ample teacher training and, secondly, the teacher is tracking the child as he moves through the educational experience.

"There has to be a structure that isn't noticed but one that the teachers are aware of from day to day," said John McNeil, director of education.

"It's up to the teacher to engineer tomorrow's learning environment to be one she knows what each child will experience that day," added the director.

Mr. McNeil said learning is not "accidental" in this primary education system but is part of a plan.

Mr. Williams noted few classrooms have found their way to this approach in primary education, as most teachers are trained in a different method. He said Ontario is one of the few places in the world where only one year of teacher-training is required.

Hilltop trustee Clara McPaul questioned if the system stressed any spiritual training and was told there are some situations where the curriculum offers a moral learning opportunities. There is no written approach to this, however.

Mr. McPaul suggested it is important to point out the need for a basic moral structure in society.

Mr. Williams, discussing the new primary education system, said it may seem he is attempting to introduce learning through play into the schools. This cannot be done until the teacher is ready and understands it.

"It's up to her, I'm not pushing," said the special services co-ordinator.

He commended every primary classroom in the county has some of the new approach and every teacher is aware of it. There are, however, only three or four classrooms in the county where teachers are using the method with feelings of complete safety. The program is not wide spread enough yet for an evaluation.

Bloomfield trustee Hallcrest trustee Ted Ritter asked if the system would lead itself to open area instruction in the primary grades and was told that it would. Students involved in the primary learning system range in ages from four to eight years.

Bishop Says Church Neglecting the North

TRENTON — Bishop of the Yukon John Frame, said here Monday Anglican churches across Canada have neglected to support the work of the 260 missionaries in the Canadian north.

Both in dollars and in the clergy sent to the north, said Bishop Frame, the level of support that has been given to the church in the north has not been very great.

In speaking to the Quinte Area Anglican Council of Canterbury Hall, he said the northern church is in need of a little help.

Today, the church administers to approximately 18,000, a quarter of the north's 36,000 population.

Until recently, most of the missionary work was done among the native people by clergy from England, the United States and Europe.

"When you take those 260 men, a very small proportion of them are Canadian, a very small proportion of them have come from the diocese of Ontario, or the diocese of New Westminster in the south of British Columbia. It's only of late that we're getting Canadian clergy into the scene."

Bishop Frame said the north needs dedicated men who are willing to stick their necks out in the Christian endeavor."

Pettingill To Run

BELLEVILLE — Hillier township deputy-reeve Allan Pettingill has announced he will seek the reeve's seat in December municipal elections, challenging incumbent Lewis Wight.

Deputy-reeve Pettingill was elected to Prince Edward County council in 1972.

He is an agent with Hembrook Real Estate of Picton.

Reeve Wight, who has stated he will definitely not seek election, first was elected to county council in 1953 and served a two-year term as reeve. He then stepped out of municipal politics for several years, returning in 1970 as Hillier Township's first deputy-reeve. In 1972, he was elected as reeve at the retirement of incumbent Ross Benway.

Students Study County

BLOOMFIELD — Extensive geographical research programs this week are being conducted in Prince Edward county by seven students in their third year at Trent University.

The students, accompanied by professors Alan Hellelser and Alan Brunger, are studying a wide variety of individual projects including Prince Edward county's potential for winter tourism, the relation of rail facilities to industry and the disappearance of hamlets in South Marysburgh township.

Since their arrival in Prince Edward last weekend, the students completed an overview, or general tour of the county, to provide material for their study. Several local residents have addressed the group in relation to their projects and there has been much general discussion of research techniques in geography.

Students participating in the program are John Casserly, Judy Skidmore, Richard Bevan, Kevin MacFarlane, Grant Hayman, Reg Northcott and Bob Mahjman.

Officials in Dark About Algae Cause

By AL LABAS
Staff Reporter

KINGSTON — Environment ministry officials admitted Ontario's utilities commissioners no clear-cut reason for the reported rapid growth of algae in Trenton Lake during a meeting here Monday.

Trenton PUC members have claimed the algae growth is the result of sewage discharge at corn processing wastes by Produits Processors Ltd. into Mayhew Creek, feeder stream of the Trenton Lake Reservoir. The lake is the town's major source of drinking water.

The latest spill occurred Sept. 28, a reported 50,000 gallons. Monday's meeting was requested by the PUC to clear up the apparent discrepancies in ministry of environment (MOE) statements on the severity of the pollution by the corn wastes.

MOE officials said they could not pin point the reasons for the algae growth, but confined several possible causes.

— Either the duration of the spill was the 50,000 gallons reported by the company or it was longer and ever a greater period of time.

— The spray irrigation system now used by the company to discharge wastes may not be adequate.

— Algae growth may be spurred by some other discharge of nutrients or may be caused by a natural phenomenon.

Under questioning by PUC chairman Charles Gillers, MOE officials conceded there is no way of knowing how long the plant had been adding wastes to enter Mayhew Cr.

Gordon Taylor, district officer with the industrial abatement section, said the company had told officers of the wastes had discharged for between 24 hours.

"We have nothing at all to refute that claim," he said.

He said one spill did not create the rapid algae growth.

Regional director Erwin McIntyre suggested algae might be increasing through wastes entering the creek from local farm operations.

A change in an area farmer's operation or the spillage of fertilizer might make the difference, Mr. McIntyre said.

Municipal officials found in 10 pounds of artificial fertilizer to spur the algae growth.

Underground seepage to Mayhew Creek through land near the road by the corn company, in its spray irrigation system, also has been cited as the problem. The company sprays its waste effluent — approximately 50,000 gallons a day — onto 40 acres of land behind the plant.

Mr. Thom said the organic wastes may be travelling to the creek underground.

An MOE study of Trenton Lake algae, now underway, may provide some of the answers, said ministry officials.

Monthly monitoring by the PUC will provide further information, ministry officials told the PUC it would participate and assist in the study. Results of the tests are expected to begin shortly.

Water Wheel

A century-old water wheel, salvaged from Consecon Creek, Monday, was placed at Ameliasburgh township museum. The Little Giant Turbine wheel was donated by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority now building a dam at Consecon. The wheel was manufactured by J. C. Wilson and Company of Glasco. After its removal from Consecon Creek earlier this month, the water wheel was sand blasted and painted for display. Monday it was delivered to the museum by Quinte Machine and Repair Company Ltd. and dropped into place on a cement slab.

Games For Moscow

So Moscow is to be the host city of the 1980 Olympic Games. Those who know the Soviet Union and how things work — rather don't work, there — doubtless have misgivings about such a choice.

Then we have The Christian Science Monitor for one suggesting that Russia is the logical choice. "In view of east-west detente," says The Monitor, it is high time that a Communist country have the opportunity to host the games . . ."

This is a spurious enough argument, given the kind of foul-ups and bureaucratic claims and confidence-to-ignore-the-'shit' tales been circulated by visitors to Russia.

Here is what The Globe and Mail's Dick Beddoes said in one of his columns following the hockey series: "Given the host, harassed promoters of arriving tourists, it boggles the brain, to realize the Russians are challenging for supremacy everywhere — on the ice, in space, commanding their lofts at tennis and demanding their rights abroad."

But there is another, brighter image of the Soviet sports scene that in fairness should be mentioned. It is of rows and rows of handsome male and beautiful female athletes, spread across those great arenas, on the days when the Communist world shows off its accomplishments.

It is a picture which gives credibility to the Mayor of Moscow's promise of the Olympics Soviet-style as "a grand sports and cultural festival of the youth of the world."

If they can fire all the petty officials and little Caesars of both sexes who dog the footsteps of visitors from abroad, maybe things will work out all-right.

Getting Together

An experiment that reflects imagination and compassion is finding an outlet in centres as widely dispersed as Vancouver and Owen Sound.

On the one hand, in Vancouver, it is bringing together the very young, among them children of single parents, and elderly retired folk, in a grandparent-type of relationship that is of great emotional benefit to both.

The Owen Sound effort is a co-operative nursery school for three-and-four year-olds in a senior citizen's home. The one in operation now is seen as a possible model for others, properly supervised and with senior citizens helping to make it work.

The possibility is seen also of nursery school facilities in high schools, with students in an assistant or observer capacity.

These are enlightened efforts that help fulfill an often neglected or missing psychological need among the young and the old.

By coincidence they are an outgrowth of something a Chinese-born Canadian said about social mores here. ". . . there's the Western attitude to friends," said Hsin-Yen Shih, director of the Royal Ontario Museum's Far Eastern Department, in a recent interview with Susan Carson of Weekend Magazine. "You know, almost none of my Western friends are friends of more than a different age. At a party everyone is the same age. In Canada, very few people make friends among children or older people. There is a kind of blocking off from one identity to another that I find very depressing. Because life can be so much richer."

The experiments in social development described above illustrate the truth of this.

Fresh Look

A coat of paint can work wonders. A good example is the fresh look of the Knights of Columbus building which confronts everyone approaching downtown from North Front Street.

It is a modest fawn color now, with dark brown facings, nothing startling but a distinct improvement on the old, a good example too for other potential face-lifts on older buildings.

A portion near the top of the Knights of Columbus building was left for completion and the job — and not through in this course a painter was up there, on what seemed like the longest ladder in many a day, finishing off the job.

It all makes for a better appearance at that end of town.

U.S. Close—And Convenient

Diversification Of Trade Elusive Dream For Canada

BY JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Canadian News Service

Canada's ability to make a major diversification of her foreign trade away from the dominant U.S. market, is being questioned as Canada's former Cabinet Minister Trudeau talks with the French about bi-lateral trade arrangements, according to the opposition.

The French, shortly visited, said our dilemma and on the basis of our east trade performance with them, there is great potential there, Mais! Per years previous I had separate talks with an export trade diversification.

Ottawa's technocrats also express a long way in the last decade or so and the men who made the decisions. Four some of it. In a French technological exhibition at the Canada Science Centre this month.

In the last year and again in Paris, Mr. Trudeau covered the wide range of major world trading nations or potential ones with whom we would like to do more trade. These include Japan, the Pacific rim nations and the Soviet Union and the nations of China.

He did not mention Brazil for other hemispheric economic giant after the United States, either. Perhaps that was an oversight, or because he finds their language difficult to pronounce personally translatable.

But Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie has been to Brazil and has spoken of a $1 billion Brazil-Canada trade by 1985 if major efforts are made now to diversify into that economy.

Now did Mr. Trudeau mention Britain in the same breath as the others, a market which many Canadian firms have "found" in the last 15 years. It is having its fiscal and monetary difficulties which could soon have noticeable effects on consumer purchasing power.

The harsh fact is, none of our repeated efforts at fresh meaningful diversification have worked. The next door American market is too powerful for the U.S. customers is close to Canadian control and their staff do not have to travel very far to sell goods.

And the U.S. market, in spite of incipient protectionism which is a recurring phenomenon, is not as industry when it really starts to penetrate, is a lot easier to work in than exotic developing nations with endless import quotas and grafting officials, or in Europe where the Japanese have made much greater inroads than we will ever attempt.

Then there is the constant concern about Canada's "high cost" economy, the cry of the day. We are to be very careful not sell in the world as much as we would like to or as our politicians had promised.

But is this really true anymore? Labor and material costs have escalated in Japan. So have fuel costs. In that country as well as in Britain and West Germany. Europe, gas and industrial costs cost much more than in Canada.

British labor costs have also climbed, as a result of powerful political action—and often industrial inaction—to get pay hikes.

And in the United States some labor costs are now so high, that one of the spouts of China dias imported goods is that they are that cheaper in the American market, if still claimed to be dearer in the Far East.

Ottawa Prepares For The Television Of Commons Hearings

BY DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Canadian News Service

TORONTO — The federal government appears to be on the eve of starting the television broadcasting of the House in Ottawa.

Speaker Lender Mitchell Sharp has publicly indicated he would favor such a move and the main question now would seem to be one of logistics; matters such as how the broadcasting would actually be handled, who would do the actual taping, just what procedure should be followed and who would do the editing.

It is probably that in the not too distant future we will be facing the same problems.

It is understood that the Camp committee on the legislature favors some form of television and probably will make a recommendation in this direction in its final report which is expected soon.

Such a recommendation, however, is one matter, while putting it though is quite another.

In the first place televising the proceedings of a Parliament can be a very expensive proposition.

This is particularly true if a decision is made to do it live.

If the entire proceedings are to be recorded this probably would mean two or three cameras, two sound technicians, a console, and other expense such as directors' salaries and lighting.

On the question of who should be in charge of the operation, there seem indications from both the CBC and the CTV network that they don't want to tackle the job.

It seems unlikely that government would be expected to pay the shot and then make the program available to any network or stations that wanted them.

Adding in the big question here, aside from cost.

If the government is to do the editing the possibility would seem up for a free propaganda service, which would be reprehensible.

Then there is the further question of just how much space the Ottawa channels would have, and whether after the initial novelty wears off stations would want to carry them.

There would seem to be little doubt that eventually there will be some televising of proceedings both here and in Ottawa.

But not before a good many kinks are worked out.

Limited Price Controls in Mexico

Kingston Whig Standard

When the Mexican Government recently decided to institute a broad system of price controls by many objections came from private business and industry. The prices of 39 staple foods, from bread, meat, milk, eggs and bread, plus 146 other products will be subject to strict price controls. Chemicals, metals and other industrial products will be controlled also with consumer items.

The controlled prices can be increased only when production costs have gone up by more than 5 per cent and after the Government approves such action.

During the past year inflation in Mexico has been estimated officially at 20 per cent. The prices of many basic foods, however, have increased by as much as 45 per cent. The Government has decided to take action because, as Finance Minister Luis Alvarez, "to protect the purchasing power of the average sectors of the country, which are the ones most severely affected by inflation."

It is the official view in Mexico that most of the responsibility for the high rate of inflation rests on the private sector, which is accused of making record profits from the unstable cost-of-living situation.

It seems inevitable that price controls would be expected to pay the shot and then make the program available to any networks or stations that wanted them.

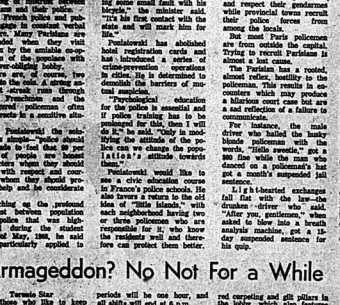
Jokes As Anectdote To The Times

Kingston Whig Standard

A man in British Columbia who says the state of Canada deeply depresses him, has received plenty of advice in a book of jokes to give him a lift, but there is one thing else.

Mary Dick puts the idea of gratitude jokes from all over the country and pooling them in a book "so that we can all laugh together." But the publishing efforts to ask their readers to send in their favorite jokes, preferably with only expletives deleted.

All the collection of jokes we have received so far, however, is chiefly confined to the U.S. and Canada, and the Canadian contributors have proved on the whole to be about as boring as wading through a telephone book ten pages at a time. Surely



Police-Public Relations Concerns The French Minister Of Interior

BY PAUL MAJENDIE
PARIS (Reuter) — Interior Minister Michel Poniatowski has set himself the monumental task of improving the police-public relationship in France.

The French police force, with its image as tough, is stepped for having some contact with his bicycle, the minister said.

"It's his first contact with the state and will mark him for life."

Poniatowski has abolished hated registration cards and had introduced a charter of crime-prevention operations in cities. His is determined to demolish the barriers of mutual suspicion.

"Psychological education for the police is essential and if police training has to be prolonged for this, then I will do it," he said. "Only in modifying the attitude of the police can we change the population's attitude to the police."

Poniatowski would like to see a civic education course in France's police schools. He also favors the setting up of the idea of "little islands," with each neighborhood having two or three policemen who are responsible for it, who know the residents well and therefore can protect them better.

Attention must be paid to the way in which a young person is treated when he, for example, is stopped for having some contact with his bicycle, the minister said.

Most French villagers know, and respect their gendarmes while provincial towns recruit their police forces from among the locals.

But most Paris policemen are from outside the capital. Trying to recruit Parisians is almost a lost cause.

The Parisian has a rooted, collective hostility to the policeman. The result is encounters which may produce a hilarious court case but are a sad reflection of a failure to communicate.

For instance, the male driver who hailed the husky female police post-driver a words, "Hello sweetie," got a fat fine while the man who danced on a policeman's hat was a month's suspended jail sentence.

Light-hearted exchanges fall flat with the Paris drunken driver who said, after you, gendarme, or when asked to blow into a breath analysis machine, got a 15-day suspended sentence for his quip.

What Has Happened to Competition?

Brockville Recorder and Times

It could be the price of milk or bread or gasoline. Many people today feel they are being taken to the cleaners when prices soar in the supermarket day to day. One man reports buying a pail of paint for $10 and a few months later he was charged $14. It costs one day and having to pay $4 more the next day, at the very same building supply outlet. Many people have noted that visits to local supermarkets have convinced her that prices are constantly rising. Others point to the fact that clerks these days is continually changing the price of an item already on the shelf. And each change is upward, rather than the other.

The trouble is that too many Canadians are aware of it and many others don't really care in the feeling there's nothing they can do about it anyway.

Consumers are caught in a form of price fixing that used to be considered illegal because competition was said to be there to too high and there'll buy elsewhere. But it's not that way "at the price will be the same elsewhere. Price fixing seems to have become widespread among the manufacturers and wholesalers from whom

After 8 Years

Bill Fostering Competition Gets Approval in Principle

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight years in the making, the government's restrictive competition bill moved a hesitant step closer to reality Monday night with approval in principle from the Commons, 141-87.

But despite government pleas for speedy consideration of the bill, half of it received little competition policy designed to protect consumers and to foster business competition, it likely will be some time before it becomes law.

The first part of the policy would establish a new anti-trade practices commission to investigate questionable trading activities. The second part, covering monopolies, has not been introduced yet.

The bill now goes to committee for detailed study and hearings, dozens of proposed amendment and, if we plan to an invitation from Consumer Minister Andre Ouellet are an indication, the process will not be to get changes.

Second reading for approval in principle began last week ago with Mr. Ouellet inviting the committee to begin on Monday night so plans to hold hearings on the bill in committee and that the improvements will be based on submissions from the public and other interested parties.

The government has received more than 125 public submissions on the original bill and more than 200 were received on earlier but similar version introduced in May, 1973. Plans for the bill began in 1966 and twice it has died on the Commons order paper.

Gordon Towers (PC—Red Deer), describing the bill as a "mish-mash, worm-infested, illconceived piece of hypocrisy" called Mr. Ouellet "the immediate withdrawal until the government has introduced Mr. Towers's proposed amendments. He wanted it amended before it went to committee.

But Mr. Ouellet stood firm saying outside the House that the opposition will have to wait until committee to hear their amendments.

"I'm not going to withdraw it now, that's for sure," he said.

"Some of the opposition members don't seem to be aware of the rules."

Mr. Towers said the bill is long and confusing and will not protect small retailers from the present unbridled or other practices that larger competitors might use.

This was echoed by Ron Huntington (PC—Capilano), a small businessman who has built his company from scratch.

"The standard of living of the Canadian people is very dependent on a vital, aggressive small business sector," he said. "A large portion of the economic growth in the small business sector."

Mr. Huntington said "trivia and regulation" are snuffing out the vitality and aggressiveness of the business community.

He contended that the bill, in its present form, will make it "more difficult to compete" or impede the big guy."

Unless it is presented to me, it would appear to be misleading and misrepresentative."

The bill would forbid misleading advertising, plus misleading representations, pyramid selling and consumers would by given more protection on guarantees and warranties.

The commission proposed in the bill would have the power to stop such practices as company refusals to deal with certain businessmen and deals in which a supplier requires a customer to buy a product only from him.

All Parties Want New Law On Election Costs Altered

OTTAWA (CP) — The government and opposition parties say they are preparing to rewrite large sections of the present Election Expenses Act before it is tested in an election vote.

They say the new law, with its election spending limits and subsidies for campaign costs, gives the municipalities an open invitation to exploit the government, the other parties and the voters.

As all-party committee already has prepared 32 amendments to the legislation and party spokesmen say more proposed changes are on the way.

John Reid, parliamentary secretary to Consumer Minister Mitchell Sharp, says the bulk of these are technical housekeeping amendment. But others were aimed at tightening the act and eliminating provisions which require parties and candidates to name contributors and detail gifts exceeding $100.

There is pressure from some quarters in the federal Liberal party to block the New Democratic Party tactic of using the new law to raise tax deductible funds for provincial and municipal party operations. But so far there is said to be no decision to require federal parties to split themselves from their provincial wings.

CAME TOO LATE

The act was produced by all-party consensus and came into effect May 1, too late for the July 8 general election.

It limits election spending by parties and candidates, requires parties to name official agents to receive and publish an account for campaign contributions, demand full disclosure of gifts exceeding $100, provides some government subsidies of campaign costs, limits election advertising, and allows up to $1,000 in donations for campaign contributors.

Fertilizer Use Curbs Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has suggested a boycott on the use of fertilizer for golf courses and family gardens to help hungry nations get the supplies they need to grow crops.

He told the Rotary Club here Monday that Canadians should help support Food-based Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) efforts to buy fertilizer needed by Asian, African and Latin American countries.

The FAO has already collected $18 million to buy fertilizer, Mr. Whelan said. But it estimates a need for more than $1 billion "to do the complete job of providing just the minimum amount of fertilizer needed in India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Africa and some Latin American countries."

Cash would do more good than a boycott of fertilizer used on golf courses and gardens Mr. Whelan said.

"But that (a boycott) would be a help too, especially if we sent the cash we save to . . . the FAO in Rome."

Day-care Changes Draw Criticism in Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members slammed Social Development Secretary Margaret Birch Monday for day-care policy changes proposed in June.

In a heated attack during debate of social development estimates in the legislature, they criticized the proposals to relax teacher qualifications and reduce the number of teachers required in centres.

Margaret Campbell (L—Toronto St. George) said present regulations provide a minimum acceptable level of day care and she could not support any further reductions.

Pension Fund Interest Low

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon quizzed Ontario Treasurer John White Monday about interest paid on investments by the Ontario teachers' pension fund.

Mr. Nixon asked the treasurer to justify an investment of $79 million from the fund at 8.05 per cent interest when the government offers "more than two per cent more" to lenders on markets here and in the United States.

He also asked Mr. White to look into circumstances "which led him to transfer the money . . . before the agreements and commitments had even given their approval."

The treasurer said he would look into the matter.

Grocery Stores Advised They May Ignore Subsidy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Retail Council of Canada has advised grocery stores that they are under no obligation to pass on to consumers a 26-cents-a-pound subsidy skim milk powder suddenly, council spokesman Alistair Smith said Monday.

Mr. Smith in a telephone interview from Toronto, Mr. Smith said retailers have been told they "run the risk of a certain amount of government criticism" if they refuse to pass on the subsidy.

But there is no law requiring them to sell at set prices simply because of the government subsidy program.

Under the year-old program, the government makes payments to processors who keep their prices from rising. Processors, in turn, are asked to make sure the lower prices are passed on to consumers by retailers.

While the government can withhold payments to processors which don't pass on the subsidy, it has no power to determine retail prices, Mr. Smith said.

He commented shortly after Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet told the Commons that federal investigators are looking for ways to prosecute retailers who don't pass on the full subsidy.

Michigan's Ombudsman Spent 36 Years in Jail

LANSING, Mich (AP) — James Spivey thinks he knows more about prisons than most criminologists because he took a 36-year course in penology the hard way—behind bars.

"After all that time living with prisoners you know what they put up with, you know what the administration is pulling off," he said with a laugh.

Spivey, 52, has been free since 1970 and lives in Detroit, married and the father of a five-year-old son. He is putting what he learned in prison to use as Michigan's legislative corrections ombudsman. He handles grievances both from prisoners and prison employees.

Spivey was convicted of murder in 1934 when police said he drove a getaway car after a fatal shooting. He was freed after his lawyers discovered his trial transcript had been destroyed and his conviction rested on the unsigned confession of another man convicted in the case.

Spivey said he never knew the other man and has consistently denied his guilt.

Since he left prison, Spivey has devoted himself to working with youngsters in trouble, mainly through church organizations.

The legislature created the ombudsman post last year and Spivey got the job simply by applying for it.

"I studied for this," he said. "I took up sociology, business administration, chess, law. I stuck with law for about 20 years (through correspondence courses), until I found out that everything was what the judge's discretion.

"I'm not 'dirtier,' Spivey said. He said he waited a long time to try to get his sentence commuted on appeal, "you don't have the money, you don't have the knowledge."

He said not all prisoners know their legal rights.

"When you're handing a fellow 10 years or to life and he doesn't know, 'Here's your rights,' do you think he's listening? It's a nightmare you wait to awake from."

Spivey was 23 when he entered prison.

"I was too shocked to be angry," he said. "I was in a daze, not really aware of what had happened. When it hits you, when 'Hey, I'm in for life' really hits you, you build up a hope that the truth will come out."

Spivey said prisons are worse now than in the past. Up to the 1940s, "wardens gave rewards as much as punishment as possible; after that it tightened up."

He said not all prisoners know their legal rights.

"When you're handing a fellow 10 years or to life and he doesn't know, 'Here's your rights,' do you think he's listening? It's a nightmare you wait to awake from."

Spivey was 23 when he entered prison.

Spivey said prison officials sometimes exaggerate their problems to get more money from the legislature and that prisoners themselves often stretch the truth to get better living conditions.

Michigan Governor William Milliken recently released the findings of a study of prison homosexual rapes but refused to release the report itself on grounds that prisoners who testified might face retaliation from other prisoners. Spivey said both the homosexual rape and prison retaliations are not as bad as people think.

"Young prisoners will say they're being harassed sexually to get transferred out of an institution to a camp situation.

"Retaliation isn't a very real danger. You might have a handful of 'dangerous' men. The average man in prison is there to go home, he's not there to add terms to himself."

After all those years in jail why did he decide to take a job that brought him back into a prison?

"What was done to me—that's why. I don't think it is the meaning of living, that human beings should imprison other human beings' lives. I think we should add to each other's life.

"Life is so short."

Rangers in Rhodesia are waging a campaign to save the black rhinoceros, which is threatened by poachers who want it for the horn. The black rhino is now of the nation's five most vulnerable wild animals. The number of rhinos in Rhodesia is not known, but in the Chizarira game reserve the figure is estimated between 300 and 1,000. (CP Photo)

Radios Used to Guard Rare Black Rhinos

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP) — Sophisticated radio telemetry equipment is to be bought as part of a continuing effort to save the vulnerable black rhinoceros.

Dr. Graham Child, director of national parks and wildlife management, says transistor radios will be fixed around the animals' necks after they have been drugged. Then their movements will be tracked from a central receiving station.

"What we need to know most are the rhino's habitat requirements and this is the best possible method of obtaining the information," Dr. Child said.

The black rhino is one of Rhodesia's five most vulnerable wild animals, the others are the wild dog, cheetah, leopard and brown hyena, although the leopard is said to be making a strong comeback.

It is not known how many black rhino are in Rhodesia but at the Chizarira game reserve, where the research is to be carried out, it is estimated the figure may be between 300 and 1,000.

The rhino is threatened mainly by poachers who hunt it for the horn, which is believed in many parts of the world to have aphrodisiac qualities.

The researchers hope the latest attempt to gain information on the black rhino will give them answers to such questions as what area it requires and adulthood.

what aspects of the available habitat it is using.

The black rhino has a slow recovery rate because gestation is 22 months and it takes five years for the species to reach

Dr. W. H. Fry, gynecologist-obstetrician in Belleville, chats with Kinette president Lynda Bergeron and past-president Kay Quirt before the dinner at which he was guest speaker Monday evening. His topic was the change of life and how to deal with it.

Life's Change—Nothing to Fear

The "change of life" was the topic Monday evening when more than 80 Kinettes gathered at the Belleville Shrine Club for a Zone One meeting.

Clubs from Trenton, Picton, Napanee, Kingston, Cobourg-Ashbrid and Gananoque joined the Belleville members for a dinner and a talk given by Dr. W. H. Fry, local obstetrician-gynecologist.

"No one here needs hormone treatment yet," Dr. Fry told the under-40 audience.

But to be forewarned is to be forearmed. The modern view of menopause is that it is a deficiency disease, like diabetes or low thyroid conditions.

"A gynecologist has an obligation, today to point out to patients that menopausal symptoms can be treated with estrogen replacement therapy. Whether or not we need to fear cancer changes."

The changes a woman can expect as she nears the end of her reproductive years can be divided into three stages, said Dr. Fry.

Pre-menopausal symptoms, which can begin as early as the late 30s, menopausal, during which menstrual periods become and post-menopausal.

With the end of fertility, the ovaries stop producing estrogen, the female hormone which exerts a powerful effect on other glands, tissues and organs of the body.

Many of the problems that befall women in their later years, such as depression, muscle and joint pain, and even the seemingly unrelated breaking of bones are a result of estrogen deficiency.

Fortunately, the estrogen level can be raised, more often by daily pills, than injections. Degenerative symptoms can then abridged by the hormone increase so that the aging process is slowed down.

But estrogen therapy does not either prolong fertility or provide a fountain of everlasting youth, Dr. Fry emphasized.

"What it can do is minimize or even prevent menopausal disturbances, such as hot flashes, headaches, anxiety, skin changes, bladder disturbances and vaginal irritations."

Not every woman requires extra estrogen, Dr. Fry said, since every system is different, and some women have few unpleasant changes during the menopause. A physician can tell from a personal medical history, from physical examination, and from a cell count called a Papanicolaou, Jr. test whether or not a patient will need estrogen supplementation.

"I think it's important to note that the human female is the only species that lives beyond its reproductive time. At the turn of the century, a woman's life expectancy was 50. She didn't have many estrogen-deficient years to go through.

"Today, as much as one-third of a woman's life may be post-menopausal, and there's no reason for these years not to be happy healthy ones."

At the conclusion of his talk, Dr. Fry answered questions from the audience. He was presented with a gift by the Belleville Kinettes.

Five Belleville Kinettes, Linda Mann, Betty Frolick, Diane Dalpee, Margie Honey and Janet Noble performed a brief comic sketch about the change of life.

District Co-ordinator Lis Lindsay presented the club with a district banner. The evening closed with a social hour.

Belleville Sea Cadets Learn From Each Other

Thanks to you it's working

United Way

You've heard Belleville's Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, those young fellows in nautical gear who provide band music for city functions. You've seen the same boys down at the harbor, working at maintenance and repair of their boats, sailing and rowing during the summer months.

What you probably haven't seen or heard are the weeks and years of drill, practice, and rigorous training that go into the making of a seacadet.

In the Navy League building on south Front Street, boys between 13 and 19 years old take part in a program designed to teach high quality seamanship and leadership skills.

As Commanding officer Barry Bevan says, the cadets' activities are meant to give boys a philosophy of operation that will carry them into the making of a sea cadet, confident, secure way.

"A large part of our emphasis is placed upon teaching the Cadets how to pass on the knowledge they've gained," says Mr. Bevan, himself a teacher at King George Public School.

During the year between 70 and 80 boys learn the ropes of the sea cadet program, and most also learn how to play a musical instrument.

"Being a band isn't our primary function," says Mr. Bevan, but it usually works out that boys join to be part of the group.

"I think the musical training is very important, to teach them the importance of individual performance at the same time as being a harmonious member of a group. Music does bind us all together."

One of the attractions of the Sea Cadet program besides travelling with the band — is the chance to learn really useful skills. The boys are encouraged to be self-sufficient and resourceful, and are rewarded for achievement by progress through the ranks.

"A boy knows where he stand, within the Sea Cadet structure," Mr. Bevan explains.

"He knows there are rules, he knows he has rights, he knows what the results of his behavior will be."

The boys dues for the Bronze Bell Standard awarded for proficient seamanship, and for the Canadian Yachting Association Junior Sailing Standard and the Canadian Power Squadron boating award.

The force is on developing physically fit, responsible citizens rather than service men, although the standards are the same as those for the reserve forces.

Supported by the Navy League of Belleville, the Sea Cadets are dependent upon the $3000 United Way donation which pays the boat, boat and have operating costs of the building they use. What is left over from that sum — usually a little more that $200 goes towards the training program and travelling expenses. The Department of National Defense provides money for the equipment, uniforms and musical instruments.

As a regular Thursday evening meeting, Sea Cadets study seamanship with wooden model sailboats.

UNICEF Cards On Sale

The 1974 selection of UNICEF cards, giftes and calendars is now being sold from over 1,000 outlets around the country, with the net proceeds going to the many UNICEF projects to help children to over 100 developing countries.

As well as an assortment of standard-sized cards with seasonal greetings, the 1974 collection includes a number of attractive U.N. languages (English, French, Spanish, Italian and Chinese) and mini-notes, the 1974 UNICEF calendar, a choice of boxes of favourites, post-cards, the 'mix and match' set, where a choice of messages can be matched with any card, a gift box containing the cards and mini-notes, the 23 inch 1975 wall calendar and the 1975 diary.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the start of UNICEF greeting cards. In that time, UNICEF cards have been sold in 150 countries, and since 1949, Canadians, when UNICEF had been formed, have been active in collecting a yearly total of $1 million dollars for the second successful year. Hope for a new record is high. It should not be forgotten that there are more children in the world today than ever before, with 60 child sizes in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Ontario. Another encouraging sign is that this UNICEF card order campaign is ahead of last year's at this time.

This card is a Canadian contribution to Unicef

Old Folks' Homes Come to Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Quarreling with the kids and crowding in tiny apartments are problems that confront many elderly Japanese, but not Jiro Kozumi. He's one of the relatively few living in a senior citizens' home.

He is typical of a growing number of Japanese who are breaking with the traditional idea of three generations living under one roof.

The changing attitudes began gaining momentum often make it hard for old and young Japanese to get along. And as in the case of Mr. Kozumi, his pension isn't enough room in many crowded apartments.

The average age of Japan's population is rising with unusual speed and the trend is expected to get worse. Last year the government set improved welfare programs while burdening the economy with more non-productive consumers. Built in political pressure for economic changes are expected to be present.

Mrs. Kozumi, an 83-year-old grandmother, is a healthy, spry lady who really doesn't like her modest traditional straw-mat room and the narrow hallways where she lives at the Shisei Old People's home.

The widow moved into the home 10 years ago. Before that she had been living with her oldest son, his wife and their two children in a four-room apartment. His biggest room was only about eight-by-10 feet and the smallest was like a walk-in closet in a Western home. "... I had no room to keep my things. I gave up my space," she said. "But I'm very happy here."

Mrs. Kozumi gets a monthly pension of 4,500 yen ($2). Her eldest son's share is paying the monthly bill of 19,000 yen for their mother's room. The rest is covered by local and government subsidies for each resident.

The home's chief has rooms where elderly couples can live together.

About 100,000 people, or two per cent of the 110 million Japanese over 65 years of age, now live in old people's homes but the number has doubled in 10 years and is expected to continue growing sharply. Akio Tomoo Yamura, head of the National Social Welfare Council.

The percentage of old people is rising so sharply in Japan because of the decline in the birth and death rates after the Second World War. It means that the percentage of Japanese over 65 will reach more than double the eight to 15 per cent in the 40 years from 1955 to 1995, the government estimates.

For the Purple-Thumbed

VANCOUVER (CP) — "It's green, yes," is Magda Bayda' pet phrase when talking to her house plants.

Mrs. Bayda has learned from her mistakes and transmitted her experience, in a book—House Plants for the Prairies, Thumb, published by 101 Productions of San Francisco.

"I've had so many plants that I'm sick of what they do with them now," she said. "I know why they died and what I did wrong to kill them."

She doesn't believe in long explanations and long words to make plants grow.

"I do talk to them, yes. But talking does more for me than for them. It's like talking to a cat. I tell them about my problems, and I avoid the phrase if I talk to them, is 'Grow, damn you.'

"And, I get manic, but not for them. Whatever I do, my plants are flourishing.

"Mrs. and more people are discovering the pleasure of green around them and the pleasantness of green. Instead of having your house furnished with furniture you can have the empty three rooms with plants."

She is the right kind of care and conditions most plants will grow for anyone, in her book, Mrs. Bayda recommends "cast-iron plants which will last through anything" and "the beginner and then, gradually, vegetables, herbs and flowering plants.

"Then grow a pineapple plant complete with a miniature bromeliad with soft silver blooms for a frankly sensuous effect."

It's reassured about three foot across. The fruit was about half the size of a football, Mrs. Bayda said.

"The little pineapple sat there for two or three months. It was a long time before I brought myself to eat it. It was like eating the chicken that had grown to maturity."

Mrs. Bayda and her plants live in San Francisco.

Successful Living

Time to Start Your Christmas Log

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Last Christmas I went to a party where the fireplace was blazing away with logs of all colors. It was beautiful. The hostess told me the logs were made of old newspapers. Can you tell me how they are soaked in, then dried out.

Would you have instructions for making them?

Christmas is coming.

Dear Christmas: Don't tell me! I just said goodbye to summer! Yes, I have the instructions for making Christmas fireplace logs, and they do have to be started this fall, should be ready to dry out properly. Right away is none too soon.

I'm sending the leaflet. Anyone may have it by writing in, enclosing 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. I also for leaflet on making fireplace logs.

Dear Doris: I am a teenager and I went to a birthday party two weeks ago. I gave the person a present but none of the others who were there did. Most of them just gave a card.

Is this the way things are done? I thought that when you go to a birthday party you usually give a gift. Please tell me which is correct.

Confused!

Dear Confused: It is confusing! The usual practice is to give a gift, but if I were the receiver, and if I were putting on my own party, I'm sure I'd be embarrassed to accept such gifts. It would seem like encouraging me to do in order to get presents!

I know one young fellow who had his own shed at the door to welcome his guests: a shed there holding his head out and his mother was horrified to hear him saying to those arriving, "Where's your present?"

It is the good wish that is important, whether it be expressed with a card or something more substantial. Don't worry that all the others will. Your friend should appreciate your kindness, regardless.

A little make-up tastefully applied, can do a job for a girl.

(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available in coupon form and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your order in care of this newspaper.)

Listening Centre Abolishes Old IQ Testing Methods

VANCOUVER (CP) — A "listening centre" at General Wolfe school may be the basis for abolishing the IQ test system in Vancouver schools.

The centre, begun as a pilot program in 1972, was initiated at the request of the Parent-Teacher Association.

It is run by Hilde Golden, who has a bachelor of education degree from the University of British Columbia and a fifth-year diploma in special education for children with learning and behavioral disorders.

Miss Golden works in audio and visual perceptual areas and other activities. She works with two special classes and seen between 60 to 90 children a week.

The centre combines the testing and training techniques developed by Dr. Reuven Feuerstein of the Hadassah-Wizo-Canada Child Guidance Clinic and Research Institute in Jerusalem.

Miss Golden explained the method stresses a child's cognitive ability. "It's a culture-free thing and can be used by anybody. It is almost totally non-verbal and also works in the abstract."

The method is called the learning potential assessment device and the training program, which lasts two years, involves 400 hours of direct exercises.

So far 4,500 children have been involved in the program.

Of 35 children placed in the "hopelessly retarded" category, 30 now are attending regular high school.

Miss Golden was one of 15 North Americans invited to attend a three-week seminar on low-functioning children at Dr. Feuerstein's clinic in Jerusalem.

Miss Golden said the underlying reason for Dr. Feuerstein's research was the introduction of so many cultures into Israel in the last 25 years.

"He realized that certain groups needed extra help. He discovered that many children get special classes didn't belong there and he found disorganized in testing."

Dr. Feuerstein's methods are being studied at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education and the Peabody Institute in the United States.

Since her return from Jerusalem Miss Golden has written a paper for the Vancouver school board and given in-service courses to teachers and hopes to write. She will also give a series of talks in other schools as the method can be expanded through the city.

Ann Landers

'Horror Story' At The Bank

Dear Ann Landers: No earth shattering problem, but I love to complain. In the past months, I have:

1. Made a payment to a bank against a new loan and it was credited to someone else's account. It seems the bank gave me a coupon book with someone else's account number on it.

2. Cashed a $25 cheque at a drive-in-window and received cash in the amount of $250.

3. Deposited my paycheque into my checking account and received a deposit slip for $25. The discrepancy was corrected instantly 2000.

In all these instances the errors were finally corrected, but the bank did not pay me a cent. Yet when I make a mistake, I am charged $1 to $4. Moreover, they don't even bother to apologize for wasting my time.

Shall I keep banking with the fools and save the humiliation when I have a long line ago.

Are banks as wealthy as they can afford to be snobbish?—A Fan of Ralph Nader

Dear Nader Fan: I asked Walter Lee William F. Murray, chairman of the board of Harris Trust and Savings Bank in Chicago. He replied:

Dear Ann Landers: That letter was a real horror story. If I were that person I would change banks.

I'm sorry what these 25 and 26 charges were for, but if a bank is going to charge for each item, it should balance that fall below a stain minimum, and other common errors associated with account valuation. Your correspondent has every right to expect top-grade service in return—and to complain strongly if that's long ago. I forward the customer's letter to the customer service department at the bank.

William F. Murray

Dear Mr. Murray: Thank you for sitting in my seat today. Your advice, "change banks", was right on the button. I have the person who wrote—and all are who are not treated with courtesy by their banks—will take your words to heart.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't possibly talk to anyone about this problem and when I tell you what it's put with today, you'll see why.

I am 27 and was divorced in 1972. My husband was an older man and I discovered too late he was an alcoholic. He refused to get help. I confess I married him because I had an out-of-wedlock son who needed a father, and this man appear to fill the bill.

In January I married a charming, 38, movie-star handsome man who had never been married. Ed and I went together only a few months but I was sure he would be the perfect husband and father.

Now I need to know how a woman can tell if her husband is a child molester. Before we were married Ed was a very good friend of these two girls. Both parents he has barely touched me. I've asked him to discuss the incident several times but he says he still loves me but he must stay away from the girls.

Four nights last week Ed was out with "the boys." He works in a field I won't name, but most of them are professional people. For now I tell her sure! Is this grounds for divorce?—Not Alone

Dear Alone: It's unlikely you'll be able to tell for sure, but from your letter I suspect your hunch is correct.

These days, in most states, divorces are granted for "incompatibility" and "irreconcilable differences." I'd say you have both.

Night Wear Back For Entertaining

NEW YORK (CP) — Pyjamas used to be regarded as strictly bedtime attire for males. This was until they changed over from the Victorian night-shirt.

Then girls, especially the emancipated university-college students, took to pyjamas for lounging around in white lace. Both had slim bottoms and long tunics. It was the beginning of the pyjamas-for-evening fashion.

Then the Italians took over and introduced the "daring" midriff-baring shirt, that used to be known as the palazzo pyjamas—a perfect name for evening pyjamas, elegant enough for a palace. So the pyjamas came out into society, going everywhere from an at-home party to the most formal event.

Paul Courreges had started something else, the high white boots and white skirts, and the skirts crept up to mini and then to ultra-mini length, evening dresses dropped out of sight. They were left behind, only for short lived, "hot" pants fad.

Now that fashion is once again lady-like and elegant, evening pyjamas are back on the fall fashion scene. And many of them are a return to the pants and tunic that Courreges introduced 10 years ago.

Carye also evokes the 1930s feeling with mushroom satin pyjamas worn with a ruffle-lined velvet cardigan in bitter chocolate. Another look is one like silk crepe-de-chine or double matte jersey for the pyjama suit with soft shirt or blouse for a frankly sensuous effect.

Pat Sheller noted what he considered the place of the pyjama in the evening scene:

"Pyjamas are to-day's answer to the evening that is neither formal nor informal."

Pat showed his pyjamas in bi-colored matelasse, grey flannels trimmed in silver; in bath velvets and sensuous satins in colors and soft textures. Malcolm Starr is also a believer in the evening pyjama, especially in the classic style.

Ellen Tracy succumbed to the interest in evening pyjamas. Matesenite included a "Tuxedo" in a delightful pattern of precious metal colors and a "Tuxedo" shirt. Leo Mandorci introduced champagne-color chiffon pyjamas with its own tunic.

In Canada, Miss Sun Valley of Toronto is showing both at-home pyjamas and also semi or formal styles. One at-home style is a cotton knit in Cossack-topped or hooded tunic style in newly popular colour in lovely clear shades of sky blue, pumpkin and pink. The evening pyjamas are in crepe-de-chine. One has a full-sweep, long-sleeved tunic. Another is a one-piecer, reminiscent of the 30's, in muted floral patterns.

Claire Haddad of Toronto, internationally known for her at-home and lounge-wear, believes that firmly in glamorous party pyjamas but she is not interested.

Included in the Bandon group are two palazzo styles, one in black crepe de chine, has a tunic top with Swiss dot ruffles and flounces. The other is a classic wrap tunic in jewel tones.

Yall Dodd of Lee Yall Designs revealed a series of pyjamas inspired by the Montreal Mode's fall show. The wide and flowing pants are teamed with soft satin shirt blouses for a more feminine effect.

Magazine Published For Log House Clan

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — While mortgage rates are climbing and reasonably priced housing is becoming critically short across Canada, a magazine is being published here in attempts to provide answers to such problems.

The first edition of The Canadian Log House, a magazine dedicated to the log builders of Canada, has been selling briskly.

Mary Mackie, who wrote copy, edited, designed, pasted up, and worried over each page of the twice-yearly publication, said the project was born of necessity and the love she shares with her husband Allan for the strength, beauty and permanence of log construction.

Mrs. Mackie said the volume of mail and questions her husband received caused her involvement in publishing a magazine.

Since Allan published his book, Building With Logs, letters have been pouring in. All prospective builders have been leaving right inside a route road into the bush to find the Mackie log house, about 20 miles west of Prince George, to talk to the author.

COST MUCH LESS

At first the couple tried to ignore the mail and concentrate on finishing the family home and Allan's building course at New Caledonia College. But when the volume of letters reached 2,000 in 1972 they decided that a magazine was the answer.

"When you know that the right information may help a family find a superior, inexpensive home, your simply cannot turn your back on their requests for help," Mary said.

Newsprint logs are usually ready for use, the cost of building with them is considerably less than the conventional frame house, where the price is inflated by sawmill labor and the middleman's markup.

Frame houses also created insulation and interior and exterior surface facing. A well-constructed log house needs no insulating in the walls and its attractive surfaces need only to be treated with a preservative.

In the Prince George area, where good building logs are plentiful, many builders have completed homes for more durable than frame houses for a fraction of the cost.

Allan received a Canada Council grant in 1972 to travel across Canada, studying log buildings of almost all shapes and designs.

Mary and Allan built their first log house on the south bank of Francois Lake about 100 miles west of Prince George in 1951.

They built another on a 1,-000-acre ranch they homesteaded up the Marion River from Houston, in west-central B.C., but left after six years because they were concerned about their children growing up without socializing with other children.

Ten years passed and Allan solved it by building, teaching night courses at New Caledonia College later a full time course for log-building hikers.

The product of that course is a striking 1,500-square-foot home erected at a serviced lot on Kerry Street. The house and lot were mortgaged by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and sold on completion for $62,500, the proceeds being used to pay for materials and the cost of the course.

Not Your Typical Log Cabin

Mary and Allan Mackie survey a log home in Prince George which sold for $62,500. The house was built as part of a night course at the College of New Caledonia where Allan taught log homes, the couple has started a twice-yearly magazine. (CP Photo)

Trenton Rejects Industrial Officer

TRENTON — A bylaw to establish the post of industrial commissioner here was thrown out of council Monday after selection that there is no need for the position in Trenton.

Councillor Robert Wannamaker said the opposition to the bylaw, saying he was the only point in hiring anyone when the town had only 40 acres of potential industrial land remaining.

"I can't see that it's feasible for us to go ahead to hire someone for this job when we only have 70 acres left in town," he said.

He said an industrial commissioner's duties would be performed by the newly-hired clerk-administrator Sidney Sharp. Mr. Sharp assumes his duties Nov. 4.

Increasing available industrial land in Trenton, another councillor, is further complicated by provincial government steps on any further annexation of township lands.

Trenton's development officer would be responsible to the chairman of Trenton's industrial committee. The job would be to encourage industrial growth in Trenton, promote the town, and act as liaison officer between existing town plants and town hall.

The position will first proposed in late September by chairman of the industrial commission John Bean. He suggested present clerk O. W. Larry as a likely candidate for the job.

Monday Councillor Bean did not speak on the bylaw.

Council Room received late for the council meeting, and was not aware what was being discussed. It said later the bylaw will be brought up for discussion again, adding "we can document Trenton's need for an industrial commissioner."

His statement came after a heated discussion with councillor Edward Tidd over the manner the bylaw was presented in council.

Councillor Todd objected to the bylaw, saying it should have been discussed in the committee of the whole session first prior to its introduction Monday.

Because it involved a personnel matter, said Councillor Todd, "it should've be discussed in open council."

Protesters Consider AIM Help

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TYENDINAGA — Protesting Mohawks locked in dispute with the band council on this reserve were told Monday night they have the support "if needed—of the American Indian Movement (AIM).

But, first, the Mohawks themselves may have to exhaust their protest on this front, the government, Alex Edwards, a director of AIM's Toronto chapter warned a meeting at the reserve community centre.

"If we have to, we will come back here and go to jail for you," said Mr. Akiwenzie.

But, "before we make that step you have to try yourselves," he said.

The AIM spokesman said he and six young representatives from the Native Peoples' Embassy in Ottawa attended the meeting as observers.

Their presence, and the meeting — called to organize an election by opponents of the band council — are the latest developments in the controversy now in its second month.

Fired by formation of an industrial corporation on the reserve, the dispute has caught confrontations that have seen provincial police called to the reserve twice.

Monday night's meeting went ahead despite Chief William Brant's statement earlier this week that the group had no authority to call a general meeting. The community centre would not be open.

As the Mohawks left the hall later, they found effigies of the chief and a councillor — Carl D. Brant — hanging from the entrance gates. Mr. Brant is president of Tyendinaga Mohawk Ltd., the industry producing shoes approved by Bata Footwear and the corporation which fired the controversy.

Mr. Akiwenzie warned that the industry is a first step by the federal government to develop the reserve into a municipality and a loss of native rights and identity.

"You people are what are known as guinea pigs," he said. "If it works here then it's going to work all over the country.

"When that happens you no longer have rights. You lose your identity as an Indian person."

The Mohawks "have a serious situation here and you're going to have to face that situation or you're no longer going to be called Indians," he told the meeting.

They would have to fight for their rights, he said, and right even here in this block of their roads, "cut off your whole reservation" to white outsiders.

About 40 Mohawks turned up for the meeting, but complaints were voiced that people on the reserve now were afraid to show their support for those opposing council.

People are afraid of becoming involved in a melee if provincial police are called, said one Mohawk.

Others claimed reserve residents are being threatened.

Mrs. Linda Maracle said her husband had been told by a councillor if he didn't take his name off a petition opposing the disputed industry, he wouldn't get a council-built home.

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, also came in for criticism for his support of Chief Brant. Some protesters said they felt Mr. Ellis should have also dismissed from his post with council's opponents before taking a stand.

Trustees Okay Name Change

BLOOMFIELD — The Prince Edward Board of Education has approved a name solution by Wellington village trustees to change Wellington Consolidated School in memory of its late principal C. M. L. Snider.

Mr. Snider, who died several months after his retirement in 1973, had been a staff member of the school for more than 40 years.

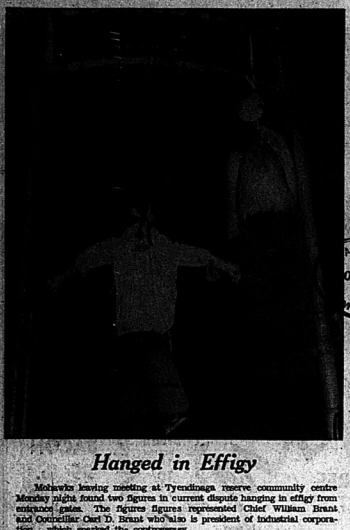
"He was an exceptional man held in high esteem by all persons in the area," said Pinnington trustee Everett Robinson.

Hillier trustee Clare McPaul said there is strong community support for the name change resolution and said the name of Consolidated School simply suggests a continuation school that no longer exists. Students now attend Sir John Edward Collegiate Institute for secondary schooling.

Trustees agreed the school should be re-named as soon as the change can be properly effected.

Athol trustee Hatton Martin suggested a memorial plaque should be hung in the school, explaining the name change.

Hanged in Effigy



Mohawks leaving meeting at Tyendinaga reserve community centre Monday night found two figures in current dispute hanging in effigy from entrance gates. The figures represented Chief William Brant and Councillor Carl D. Brant who also is president of industrial corporation which sparked the controversy.

Mead Johnson Recalls Infant Drug Product

All cans of an infant drug product made by Mead Johnson Canada in Belleville have been recalled from Canadian hospitals by the company.

About six one-quart cans of Liquid Lytren Oral Electrolyte Solution are involved, The Belleville plant manufactures all of the solution for Canada and the U.S.

The Canadian action follows a general recall of the product last week by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. The U.S. agency said bacteria found in the solution is a threat to life, although no problems have been reported. The drug is fed to infants through disposable nurser bottles to prevent diarrhea, vomiting and dehydration.

Michael J. Burnett, the company's manager of regulatory affairs in Montreal, said the recall is "a precautionary move" and that "possible can defects" might be responsible for the bacterial contamination.

"This is to... solely used product, but we want to have a close look," Mr. Burnett said.

A federal health protection branch spokesman said inspectors will visit the Belleville plant to investigate. The Canadian plant is a subsidiary of Mead Johnson and Co., Evansville, Indiana.

Board Offers School As New Nursery Site

TRENTON — Town council reversed Monday its previous decision for the now-vacant North Trenton School as the location of the Trenton Day Nursery.

Now housed in Grace United Church, the nursery's lease expires Dec. 31, 1974. It is currently looking for new quarters.

Council's decision came after a request from Hastings County's social services department the funding source for the nursery.

Preliminary talks have already taken place between the department and the Hastings Board of Education, which has offered the North Trenton School and Dufferin Street School as possible nursery sites.

Renovations to the North Trenton School would be covered by the provincial government.

At present, 17 children use the nursery. With expanded facilities, it is hoped 34 children will be accommodated.

In other business Monday, council set the pay rates for the upcoming municipal election's deputy returning officers and poll clerks. The former will receive $26, the latter $18. Both rates are up from 1972.

Goblins Move In

Christmas is the traditional time for outdoor decorations, but one homeowner in Prestonsburg has gone all-out for Hallowe'en. This pumpkin man is seated outside a house off County Road 28. The owner has added more pumpkins, sheaves of corn and Hallowe'en cutouts on the windows to turn his front yard into a display for the season of ghosts and goblins.

Baby Dies In Crash

A six-month-old baby was killed Monday when the car in which she was a passenger ran into the back of a diesel CN Rail CN ore train running northbound toward Marmora.

Tina Broadbent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Broadbent of RR 3, Frankford, was in her mother's arms at the time of the accident. The crossing not equipped with signals, is located about three miles north of Frankford on the Glen Ross Rd. Ontario Provincial Police spokesman said this was the first fatal accident at the crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Broadbent escaped with minor cuts and bruises. The car was a write-off.

BGH Budget In Works

Belleville General Hospital's budget will be submitted by the Dec. 1 deadline set by the Ontario health ministry, Alderman Ben Corke said today.

Alderman Corke is finance chairman of the hospital board.

The ministry has removed ceilings on 1975 hospital budgets as it was learned Monday. But any hospital failing to file an operating budget by the deadline will have its funds allocation determined by the ministry.

Alderman Corke said there is "no worry". The budget would not make the due date.

Thief Finds Empty Safe

A thief was frustrated early today when he cut through a safe at Allen Hadley Ltd. on North Front St., Belleville and found it empty. It had been unused for 28 years.

But the break-in at the main shop of the youth building of the company resulted in a fire that did "several thousand dollars damage," police said.

The thief broke into the building by smashing a front window and ignited at least three in the process of opening the safe with a cutting torch, police said.

About 4:30 a.m. an employee, Ross Robinson returned a truck to the lot and discovered the fire. It was quickly extinguished by Belleville fire department.

Police said the cutting torch used by the thief was taken from the Allen Hadley workshop. Drawers in the building were ransacked, but as he believed nothing was taken.

McCurdy Rejects Re-election Bid

Reg McCurdy, Monday night announced himself as the only Sidney Township councillor who will not be seeking re-election in the upcoming Dec. 2 municipal contest.

Reeve Gord Wilman, 11 years in Sidney politics; deputy-reeve Glen Meyers, six years on council and four years on school board; Ernest Kells, 12 years on council and Hadley Richardson, 4 all said they will run in the December campaign.

No council member preferred to comment whether he would be seeking election to the reeve's chair. Reeve Wilman was acclaimed to his position.

Councillor Kells, when asked if he had any aspirations to contest the reeve, said "that's a good question." In jesting fashion, the councillor later said: "Sir (Hanley) was acclaimed last time. He shouldn't get a free run this time."

Councillor McCurdy, this fall is finishing his sixth year as a township councillor and said during an interview he had enjoyed the experience of working towards the development and betterment of the community.

During his term of office Councillor McCurdy has served on several township boards and committees and has been Sidney's representative to the Quinte Planning Board for several years.

"I have enjoyed my work with the township particularly during my service to the planning board," said the councillor.

The councillor said his reason for stepping down was "in most selfish," saying he wants to be able to devote more time to his architectural drafting career.

The councillor said, however, he does not want to disappear completely from public affairs.

"I'd prefer to stay on the township board ... I'm not going to disappear," he said.

Approval Sought

William Salusbury, a 25-year resident of Sidney Township asked for council's approval Monday night for the development of approximately four building lots in the vicinity of Gent Subdivision. Council said it would consider taking over a right of way that would guarantee public access to the Salusbury property. Going over the drawings with the owner are Reeve Gord Wilman and Deputy Reeve Glen Meyers.

Mohawks Told to Hold Own Reserve Election

TYENDINAGA — Officials of the Indian Affairs department have said voters on the reserve here could hold their own election by native custom. Mohawks were told Monday night.

A recent protest group sent to Ottawa was told "we are entirely within our rights to have an election by custom on this reserve," said Ernest Maracle, a member of the delegation.

The delegates represented Mohawks opposed to the elected band council.

Native custom sees the election of councillors as the Iroquois chose their chief. At present, the chief is elected along with his councillors.

Mr. Maracle was among speakers at a meeting called to organize a Nov. 30 election the group hoped to the band council. The council has served one year of a two-year term.

The meeting, conducted by Chief Maracle, member of the band council but leading spokesman for Mohawks protesting council actions, approved calling an election.

Spokesmen for the group now will draft election procedure and present it to another meeting next Monday.

Knudsen Seeks Seat

Brian Knudsen, a Belleville investment dealer, said today he will run in this year's city council election.

Mr. Knudsen, who will be 32 next month, says he is interested in planning and preserving the natural features of the city.

Aside from city councillors, all mayoralty candidates have declared themselves to date. Meantime, two of the six city councillors have decided against seeking reelection for which nominations open next Tuesday.

Born in Belleville and a graduate of Moira Secondary early from the city six years getting a bachelor of commerce degree and working in Ottawa and Toronto.

BRIAN KNUDSEN

Belleville's pleasant living conditions and growth potential drew him back, said Mr. Knudsen.

"I would like to participate in that growth and that is why I'm running for council," he said.

Manager of a local investment-dealer company, Mr. Knudsen is the Canada Savings Bond organizer for payroll savings for the east-central Ontario region — an area which stretches from Kingston to Oshawa and north to Peterborough.

He is campaign chairman for the Canadian Cancer Society in Belleville and district and a director of Belleville Kinsmen.

He and his wife Lynn have a baby daughter.

Islanders Rout Seals 10-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There are skeptics who still doubt that New York Islanders are for real since they started the National Hockey League season, despite six victories and a tie in eight games—a record surpassed only by Los Angeles Kings, who have played two more games.

Those doubters took heavier Monday night's 10-1 rout of the California Golden Seals to give them seven—in a row—for the first stretch which starts Wednesday night and will have the longest year. New Yorkers playing against New York Rangers, Philadelphia Flyers twice, Boston Bruins and Atlanta Flames.

In the only other NHL game, the Kings blanked Pittsburgh Penguins 3-0.

Islanders coach Al Arbour is a believer, though, as are his players.

Says Arbour: "All we gotta do is keep on working the way we have been and we'll come out all right."

Ed Westfall and Bill MacMillan produced a pair of three-point efforts and single scores came from Billy Harris, Gary Howatt, Ernie Hicks and Bob Bourne as the Islanders took 47 goals on 25 shots.

The Islanders finished last in their division their previous two years, winding just 31 of 156 games. Over two years they allowed 384 goals while scoring just 302.

The Golden Seals have played seven of their first 11 games on the road, resulting in six losses and a tie. They have given up 31 goals—far worse than the defensive record of the expansion Washington Capitals. And Washington Capitals, Ang' Monday night's bombardment forced coach Marshall Johnston to pull starting goaltender Gary Simmons in favor of Gilles Meloche.

With an eight-goal lead at the time, Arbour took the opportunity to give backup netminder Glenn Resch some work. Billy Smith had started the game and lost a shutout on Bob Stewart's shot at 13:42 of the middle period.

Rod Seiry and Don Kozak scored for Los Angeles, while Rogatien Vachon made 27 saves in recording his 23rd career shutout.

In tonight's only NHL action, Detroit is at Vancouver.

Toros 6 for 6 At the Gardens

TORONTO (CP) — With six victories in six home games, one night think Toronto Toros coach Billy Harris would prefer to stay in Maple Leaf Gardens forever. But after whipping Phoenix Roadrunners 7-1 Monday night Harris said he doesn't mind going on the road now.

"I think the players want to get away for a while," he said after Toros outclassed their diminution of the Canadian civilization of the World Hockey Association before a crowd of 7,225.

Tommy Simpson, who has played only 17 minutes in the games because of a knee injury scored his sixth and seventh goals of the season Monday.

Other Toronto scorers were league scoring leader Wayne Dillon, Pavlov Nedomansky, Tony Featherstone and Ralph Backstrom with two apiece and Dennis Sobchuk, who's first professional goal. Hugh Harris and Jim Dorey.

Toronto goalie Gilles Gratton, making his third start of the season, stopped 33 shots. Jack North of Phoenix had 37 saves.

TOO MANY ERRORS

Phoenix coach Sandy Hucul said Toros' opponents had too many mistakes and will continue to have problems until they stop.

"They (Toros) had the fanatical edge tonight," he said. "We made mistakes that cost us the game, and until we cut down on the mistakes they're going to continue to be costly."

Harris said he wants a meeting in the next three weeks with general manager Buck Houle to discuss cutting the team roster down to size.

He said that Monday he likes 20 players on a club, with three goalies. He now has 26.

"It's tough on the players when you have to sit guys out," he said. "I've been in them think they don't have a good game or a good shift they may be relieved. It causes a lot of tension."

Toronto hit 3-0 after the first period, opening the scoring lead in the second and added two in the third.

Phoenix' Mark Stevens drew two-minutes penalty for high-sticking after Pat Hickey was hit in the eye, but Hickey said later it was an accident.

"The stick went right in my eye," he said. "I was worried for a while when it hit me that I might lose an eye."

The cut, on the left eyelid, was treated with a stitch.

The win Monday moved Toronto into first place on second-place Quebec Nordiques, who have eight in Canadian division standings.

Tonight's only WHA games have Toronto at Chicago and Minnesota at Michigan.

Morrell Earns Mixed Title

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The first bonspiel of the season concluded Sunday afternoon at the Quinte Curling Club. Frank Morrell skipped his foursome to the Bay of Quinte Mixed Bonspiel title with the only perfect record in the week-long, 64 rink competition.

Morrell and his rink, Bonnie Wormald, vice, Ken Wormald, second, and Nina Gault, lead, won five consecutive games to earn the championship.

"I've been for championship rinks before, commented Morrell, "but I've never skipped one.

The Morrell rink had some stiff competition throughout the spiel, but the toughest came in the final game against Jack Preston's rink. That game went right down to Preston's final rock before Morrell's 14 lead was good enough to take the championship.

The two rinks seesawed back and forth through the first six ends before Morrell finally took the lead. Preston took one in the first and fourth and Morrell got one in the second and third. Preston took two in the fifth and Morrell replied with two in the sixth to leave the rink in a 4-4 deadlock.

In the seventh and Morrell broke out for three and that was the match. Preston battled back with singles in the eighth and ninth, but couldn't house anything in the tenth.

"The toughest game in the game came in the eighth end," said Morrell, "we had gone three up in the seventh and he had three counting in the eighth until we got that double take-out. Instead of them getting three they only scored one and that was the difference."

Preston's rink had won five games to the final on Sunday, but their unbroken record fell in their sixth outing left them with the runnerup award in the First Event. Preston's rink included his wife, Evelyn, Nick Dowsett, second, and Marg Dowsett, lead.

In "the other" Event Alec "Buck" Ingram was the skip of the winning rink. He too had to fight to earn his title. After seven ends of play he held a narrow 7-4 lead over Finlay McCorquodale's rink. In the eighth, however, Ingram took two and added another in the ninth to bump into a one lead. McCorquodale came within an inch, though, of pulling off a four ender in the tenth, on the final rock of the game.

Ingram's rink included Mary Livingston at vice, Bob Strahan, second, and Sandra Strahan, lead. McCorquodale's rink consisted of his wife Norma, vice, Bob McBourne, second, and his wife Helen, lead.

The Ingram rink lost only their first match of the spiel and finished with a five and one, won-lost record while capturing the Second Event championship.

Joe McKay skipped his rink to a 4-1 won-lost record to win Third Event honors. Marie Ball was McKay's vice and Wayne and Shirley Dye were the second and lead, respectively.

McKay handily defeated Dan Cowley's rink 6-4 in the final. Cowley's rink, runnerup in third event, consisted of Ann Cowley, vice, and Ken and Phyllis Holmun at second and lead, respectively.

It only took Phil Doyle eight ends to win the Fourth Event. He rink whipped Jim Dallas' rink 13-4. Doyle counted two in the first and Dallas replied with one in the second. From there on it was all one sided. Doyle counted four in the third, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and three in the sixth. Dallas came up with three in the seventh, but failed to add the topper in the eighth and walked off with the title.

The Fourth Event winner was comprised of Phil and Mattie Doyle, at skip and vice, respectively, Mac Gault, second, and Joyce Candler, lead.

Members of the runnerup, Dallas rink, are Jean-Sisler, vice, Charles Chevrer, second, and Betty Chevrer, lead.

8 Teams In Molson Tourney

Another weekend brings another soccer tournament.

Sunday's Molson Invitational should wrap up the 1974 soccer season in the area.

And it is a top notch event.

Not only are teams from Toronto and Peterborough taking part but local squads will be adding "guest players" to their rosters for the tourney.

Games will be played at the Sir James Whitney School and Centennial Secondary School with the action getting started at 8:45 a.m. and closing with the championship final at 2:45 p.m.

Joining Bay of Quinte Soccer Association teams in the tourney will be Trent University of Peterborough, bolstered by players from that city's Premier Soccer League playoff champion Vi-Mar.

A strong Toronto Spartans entry is entered along with Belleville Olympics of the Premier League.

BQSA teams are Cobourg Fury's, Belleville Golden Mile Restaurant, Trenton Spartacus, Belleville Parsons and Trenton Whittle's.

Golden Mile, Spartans, Cobourg and Spartacus will look up in A Division games while Parsons, Olympics, Trent University and Whitley's meet in the B Division. Top team in each group play for the Molson Trophy.

Power Swings To West

TORONTO (CP) — The power has swung to the West for the first time in seven years in the annual tabulation of Inter-Provincial Canadian Football League games played this season.

The CFL said Monday that clubs posted 11 wins in interlocking play with their Eastern rivals in 1974 while losing eight and tying one.

They won only six games last year.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders who both have been eliminated from the playoff picture, and the WFC Edmonton by each winning three of four games with the Eastern Conference.

The three teams that made the playoff scene—Edmonton Eskimos, Saskatchewan Roughriders and British Columbia Lions—combined for five wins and six losses and a tie.

And for the first time since interlocking play started in 1961, Saskatchewan had a losing campaign against Eastern clubs with a 1-3 season, sweeping a sweep with a 17-3 victory Saturday over Ottawa Rough Riders.

Western clubs have won the interlocking contests in only four of those 14 years.

Fans Getting a Boot Out Of CFL Action

TORONTO (CP) — It's a downright miscarriage of justice to say the Canadian Football League is losing its fan appeal with so many games being decided by the last play.

Reports of an dissension because of the lack of touchdowns in the Canadian game are few and far-between.

Canadian fans are still deciding the outcome of games, but the fans are flocking to the 10-club CFL stadiums in increasing numbers.

Professional Eskimos have broken seasonal home records in successive games, 35,009 turning out for their 31-6 victory over British Columbia Lions.

Three of the four games on the weekend produced all-time home stadium records for regular scheduled games, including 35,007 at Toronto's CNE Stadium to watch a 19-11 Argonaut and 22,284 in Regina where Saskatchewan Roughriders dumped Montreal Alouettes 26-7.

In recent weeks, seasonal records were also posted in Vancouver (30,248) and Ottawa (24,149).

And, with each of the four playing a 16-game schedule, compared to 14 in previous years, a maximum for the CFL's suggested Monday that 1974 will produce a record year for overall attendance.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats' Ian Sunter and Dave Cutler of Edmonton Eskimos continued to top their respective scoring races in the East and West. Cutler, in his rookie year, is putting his best to good use.

He's within eight points of establishing a season scoring record.

Rebuilding Job

LONDON (Reuter) — England, playing under new manager Don Revie for the first time, begins the search for former soccer greatness with a European championship match against Czechoslovakia Wednesday night.

After a decade of success with Leeds United Revie now must rebuild England's soccer reputation left in ruins by the failure to qualify for this year's World Cup finals.

Foreman the Favorite

Ali Appears Sharp

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Muhammad Ali continued his taunting tirades and George Foreman remained sombre as the two settled away the hours leading to their prestigious battle Wednesday for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

With bongo drums beating and native dancers cavorting through the boulevards, tension began building in this sultry capital where the black American stars have come to pay homage to their ancestors and battle 15 rounds or less for the ring's richest prize.

Both Foreman, the titleholder, and Ali, a former champion who had the crown taken from him because he resisted the U.S. military draft, have been made much of their odyssey to the land of their forefathers. Yet each seems guaranteed a $5 million purse.

As time for the opening bell approached—4 a.m. local time, 10 p.m. EST today—Foreman had the heavy favorite role in escalating Ali sentiment.

The latest odds quoted from Soho and his government have risen $1.6 million as a guarantee of the live gate, the portals may be thrown open if some tickets are unsold for the first heavyweight bout in this part of the world.

There will be two curtain-raising bouts: Between Assane Mbaye, heavyweight Hilmi Clark and Boy Williams—sparring partners of Foreman and Ali respectively—and a welterweight contest between Mbayi and Jubilee Ola, champion of Dahomey.

Junior Games Rescheduled

TORONTO (CP) — Two of three games scheduled in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series for tonight have been rescheduled because of the heavyweight championship title fight in Zaire.

The OHA office reported Monday that the arenas in Hamilton, where the Flamps were to entertain Oshawa Generals, and Kitchener, where the Rangers were at home to London Knights, were committed to closed-television coverage of the fight which starts about 10 p.m. EST.

The Kingston Canadians-Ottawa 67s game at Ottawa will be played as scheduled.

The Oshawa-Hamilton game was put forward one day and will be played Wednesday night while the London-Kitchener game was rescheduled to Dec. 11.

WFL Calls Emergency Meeting

Now, Fire May Be Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An emergency meeting of World Football League owners today may decide the fate of Chicago Fire, the latest WFL casualty to face possible extinction.

John Bassett, league executive committee chairman, said Monday night the 11 a.m. EST meeting would discuss the possible immediate withdrawal of the Chicago franchise.

He called the Fire management irresponsible for dropping out when it had three games remaining, all on the road.

"If this keeps up, we won't have anybody left to play," said Bassett, owner of Memphis Southmen as well as chairman of the league committee which screens new franchise holders.

But Don Anderson, WFL vice-president in charge of public relations, denied that the Fire had informed league headquarters it was halting operations.

Fire owner Tom Origre and coach Jim Spavital were unavailable for comment Monday night.

If the Fire is finished, it would become the third WFL franchise to go under before the 20-game regular season is completed. The Detroit Wheels and Jacksonville Sharks have suspended operations.

The league started its inaugural season with 12 franchises.

Meanwhile, Florida Blazers also suffering severe financial troubles, are the subject of a court battle in their Orlando home, and a number of other teams are having money problems.

Chicago was scheduled to play in Philadelphia against the Bell Wednesday night.

Other games scheduled for Wednesday will affect the hopes of Florida Blazers and Memphis for the single victory each needs to tie for a divisional title.

With three games remaining, the Blazers (12-5) are two games ahead of Charlotte Stars in the East and the Southmen (14-5) hold a two-game Central Division margin over Birmingham Americans.

The Americans will be trying to stay in the Central race by knocking off Florida, and Memphis will have its hands full with the Hawaiians (7-10), still scrutching to stay in second place in the West.

In Wednesday night's other games, Western champion Southern California (13-5) is at Charlotte (10-7).

Shreveport is at home Thursday to Portland in a battle of Western teams tied at 6-10-1.

Kingston Orchestra Returns to Belleville

By EUGENE LANG

Approximately two-thirds of Centennial Secondary School Auditorium was filled for a program by the Kingston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Alexander Brott, which opened what will be the fourth time that the orchestra has made an appearance in this city during the last five years.

The brilliant young American pianist Jeffrey Siegel made his initial Belleville local appearance as its soloist in two of the four offerings on the scheduled program.

The opening selection was made up of seven movements from the original Water Music Suite of Handel, and the total vitality of the opening Overture to the brief finale at the closing Hornpipe the orchestra brought forth a finely wrought conception that never for a moment sheen in the strings' mellow poignancy in the best sense and sheer, and a powerful, brilliant attack in the brasses.

The Haydn Symphony No. 104 in D Major (London) is one of the peaks of late 18th century writing and the culmination of this celebrated Austrian composer's symphonic style. Dr. Brott elicited from his men a fine, finely integrative performance of this lyrical opus. Dramatic power was forthcoming in the opening adagio that acted as a foil to the sprightly paced allegro that followed. In the slow movement, the strings were beautifully wrought in a richness of harmonic texture set with delicate tones from the winds. Then could have been more posh from the horns and trumpets in the Haydn movements, however.

The piano soloist, Jeffrey Siegel chose the 3rd and last sparkling Ravel G Major Piano Concerto as the opening number. His was a gay and lively recreation of this heavenly familiar work. In the finale, he showed a brilliant technique at his command, and gave a brittle percussiveness which accentuated the tecnto-like pitfalls that Ravel spiced throughout his work.

The second concerted work by the soloist was the Tchaikovsky Andante from the Cesar Franck, one of the landmarks of 19th century French orchestral compositions. Here Siegel gave a somewhat lackadaisical interpretation of this frequently performed selection, with considerable lack of sensitivities tempered by a tendency to overplay in the more melodic passages.

In summation, a fine concert from open to close and one which, if the symphonic organization, The Celiste Arts Council and Ethel Mabee Ltd. can be proud that they were instrumental in bringing to this area. May the results be repeated and the ensemble come back more often.

One Crisis Number Proposed

The feasibility of setting up a single emergency number to be used in any type of emergency will be examined by the city.

At a meeting of the city's Police Commission Board, Thursday, Chief Douglas Crabbe made note of the fact that a city such as London, Ontario, and cities in various other provinces in Canada make use of one number for all emergencies.

In London anyone can dial 911 for any emergency instead of separate number for police, fire, ambulance, etc.

Chief Crabbe mentioned he was been in touch with Bell Canada's manager, George Thompson regarding setting up such a system and it was brought out that Mayor Robin Jeffrey will analyze such a proposal.

Chairman of the police commission Jim Driscoll said a feasibility study will be undertaken to answer such question as what is involved in setting up the system and what the equipment would cost.

Candidates to Meet

An all-candidates night will be held at the Trenton Community Gardens Thursday, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. The town Chamber of Commerce is coordinating the visit for those running for municipal office in the upcoming Dec. 2 election.

Hallowe'en, Extra Caution Needed

Decorations made from brown kraft paper and other highly flammable materials caught fire an hour before the scheduled opening of a "haunted house, in the United States for halloween last year and one of five Parent Teachers Association members who had built the spooky maze at the school lost his life in the fire. Had the fire broken out 30 minutes later, the school children would have been inside the "haunted house" for a special Saturday afternoon of fun.

Origin of the fire was ignition of highly-combustible materials by a hot lamp (light bulb) or an electric arc. First ignited was a temporary panel constructed of a wood frame covered by flannel cloth and kraft paper which had been sprayed with black lacquer-based paint. The panel burst into flames when someone turned on a switch to check the lighting effects of the "black lights" which had been installed with temporary wiring.

The above tragedy resulted from the combination of failure to observe some basic fire safety precautions, which know no season, coupled with the presence of hazards peculiar to halloween time, and although I have only mentioned a school, I also applies to any halloween party or gathering held in any building or home.

To keep halloween a safe and happy occasion, I suggest these guidelines:

1. Ready-made costumes, masks, wigs and beards should be labelled "flame-proof".

2. Home-made costumes should avoid flimsy materials and the yards and yards of old sheeting popularly used for witch and ghost disguises (a touch of flame could start a fire in such billowing skirts and sleeves). Also beware of paper-bag masks and costumes made of paper (not enough economical, they too can ignite in an instant).

3. Be extremely careful with the timber-dry cornstalks and other harvest-season decorations. Don't place them near fireplaces or other sources of heat, and don't let them block doorways or stairwells.

4. The small flash-lights never lighted candles — to illuminate the faces of pumpkins being carried about. If candles are used in jack-o-lanterns on display, be careful to place the pumpkins where they can't set fire to curtains or other decorations and where they can't be tipped over.

5. If you use electric lights, remember the bulbs can and will get very hot if they are placed in or near combustibles, don't ask for trouble.

6. Never leave a candle-lighted jack-o-lantern in the house when you go out, if you go out — put the jack-o-lantern out also.

7. If you follow these tips and use common sense I am sure you will have a fire-safe halloween this year.

Margaret Trudeau Misquoted in Story

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Trudeau, wife of the prime minister, says she was "reaching bad of a crisis stage" in her life when she entered hospital recently for treatment of an emotional problem.

She made the comment in an interview broadcast Sunday with Carole Taylor on the CTV program Mr. ...

Mrs. Trudeau said that following the July 4 election campaign, she "felt very, very weary and very emotionally ... tight."

"I was very, very frightened ... I actually went to the hospital knowing I was ... now ... classified emotionally ill," Mrs. Trudeau said.

The Canadian Press story recently reported that Mrs. Trudeau said she was critical of the social stigma surrounding psychiatric help, and quoted Mrs. Trudeau as saying:

"We're willing to run to a doctor if we've got a cold, or heaven's sake, see if there's something desperately the matter with our mind ... that's, whether it's just metaphysical, we're afraid to say ... we don't like to say ... we need some help."

That comment was made by Mrs. Trudeau who was interviewing Mrs. Trudeau.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30

Gemini (March 21-April 19): Be very careful in all forms of unrestrained pastimes. Keep accurate records. Be sure to get receipts for any purchases.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): In situations where you are the supervisor, look for you to be back-off temperedly. Try to postpone things until tomorrow.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Don't take on more responsibilities than you can handle or you'll really get snowed under and nothing will be done right.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You're not at your best today in dealing with groups. Ideas that you support are not likely to find favor with others.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You'll be tempted to do things so that attention will be directed to you. However, if you could, you others' comments, you wouldn't.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could be drawn into an argument or debate where you'll disagree at a disadvantage because the other guy is more up on the subject than you are.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Give yourself a day or so before you make any serious business commitments. You need time to study things more carefully.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22) Nothing will be gained if you make your point, but keep it strictly to yourself. Any time others oppose your ideas too strongly.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't expect your intended day to be too tough for you to finish as quickly as you'd like. Do what you can and then call it quits tomorrow.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be on your best behavior if you're dealing with superiors socially. Something unexpected could develop that will shake you up a bit.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) If you can persuade someone you'll be around today will make you feel tenacious when they come on very strong and superior.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Mixed self-discipline will be required if you hope to get ruling planet Neptune pliant. Don't quit if something doesn't work the first time.

CP News Roundup

Hospital Surcharge Advocated

TORONTO (CP) — Alarmed at the increasing number of United States citizens using Ontario hospitals near the U.S. border, the Ontario Hospital Association decided Monday to urge the provincial government to impose a surcharge on non-Canadian persons who go to hospitals in the province.

The association's annual meeting was told that the number of U.S. citizens using 15 hospitals along the border has grown by about 1,000 per cent in a year.

Peter Bates, head of the association's resolutions committee, said the move would ease the financial burden of caring for Americans. The surcharge amount would be kept by the hospitals.

The Americans are trying to beat the high cost of hospital care at home, he said, adding such a unselfish act of courage Americans from coming to Ontario hospitals.

Jaycees Form Unit in Prison

WARKWORTH, Ont. (CP) — The Canada Jaycees made history last night when they formed a chapter in the first unit in an Ontario prison. Thirty-three prisoners of Warkworth Institute, a minimum-security penitentiary, were inducted as members by Alan Salmon, Canada Jaycees' national president, and presented with their charter.

Plan Blacklist

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor (OFL) planned a meeting Monday calling for a blacklist of strikebound construction shows products are being boycotted by labor.

The list, to be updated regularly, will be circulated to OFL affiliates taken in an effort to put pressure on the firms involved.

Moderator

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Rev. R. R. Gordon, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, London, Ont., was elected Monday moderator of the Hamilton and London synod for the coming year.

Get Hearings

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Two separate school teachers who were dismissed and one who was refused employment because they were not married in the Roman Catholic church have been granted board of reference hearings on Nov. 5 and 6 to investigate their cases.

Man Unfit

HAMILTON (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury found Monday that Gerald Michael Johnson, 20, of Hamilton, charged with 2nd degree murder in the strangulation death of his mother Aug. 31, is unfit to stand trial because of insanity.

Johnson was ordered returned to a mental hospital.

Premier Is Included In Awards for Heroism

HAMILTON (CP) — Premier William Davis is included in the list of 37 persons receiving awards for bravery and life-saving announced Monday by the Royal Canadian Humane Association.

Last July, the premier, his son Hoff and brother-in-law William Mackay, helped rescue two men stranded on a reef in Georgian Bay after high winds capsized their boat. Hoff Davis was awarded a testimonial parchment for his major role in the rescue, while his father and uncle received certificates of merit.

CBC Appoints Farm Director

TORONTO (CP) — Don Mills, of Winnipeg has been appointed head of agriculture and resource for CBC-TV, Knowlton Nash, director of CBC-TV news and public programs, announced Monday.

Mr. Baron will assume the position from Fred Davis, succeeding Frank Nicholson, who now is CBC vice-president for Newfoundland.

It is expected, Mr. Baron is editor of Country Guide magazine and president of the Agricultural Institute of Canada.

Plan Inquest

HULL, Que. (CP) — An inquest into the death of a Toronto man found hanged Saturday in a police cell is to be held following a police investigation, Coroner Dr. Luc La Roche said Monday.

Kenneth Williams, 23, was arrested outside a beer parlor early Saturday after being involved in a fight. He was charged with disorderly conduct and taken to a police cell wearing nothing but a pair of pants, police said.

He was later found lying on the floor with his pants knotted around his neck and tied to a bar in the cell.

Profits Hid

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, accused supermarkets and food processors Monday of "synthetically" creating "whopping big food price increases" to reap exorbitant profits.

In a speech to the federation's annual convention, Mr. Archer also said giant food corporations have been disguising the profits of their subsidiaries by manipulating figures and practising "sleight of hand" in reporting earnings.

Farmers Criticize Loan Plan

CORNWALL (CP) — Farm representatives in this area have rejected as inadequate a provincial loan program for beef farmers announced Friday by Agriculture Minister William Stewart.

Peter Mesman, president of the Stormont Federation of Agriculture, said Monday it may take farmers as long as three months to qualify for the program. He said they are as well off with a small business loan from a bank, as long as interest rates are stable.

Mr. Mesman said all the provincial program does is guarantee that the government will subsidize the difference as interest rates rise.

Helena McQuaig, a spokesman for the National Farmers' Union (NFU), said farmers may hold on to their cattle until loans are due and then all hit the market, creating lower beef prices and smaller returns to farmers.

"The loans will only prolong the agony for the beef farmer," she said.

Seek Increase

TORONTO (CP) — The Council of Ontario Universities (COU) has recommended a 16.5-per-cent increase in the basic income unit used to set operating grants for Ontario universities imposed in 1973.

The COU said in a news release Monday that it also wants the Ontario government to lift a moratorium on capital funds for universities imposed in 1973.

The recommendations were made Saturday at COU's first meeting with the new Ontario Council on University Affairs appointed by the provincial government.

Counsel Named

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Donald Morand, head of the provincial inquiry into allegations of police brutality in Toronto, has appointed Earl A. Cherniak of London, Ont., and Robert P. Armstrong of Toronto as his commission counsel.

Rude Awakening Ended Hunt's Lies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Howard Hunt says a "rude awakening" brought on by release of the White House tapes persuaded him to stop lying about Watergate.

Hunt testified Monday at the Watergate cover-up trial that he lied since then to down timed before grand juries in the spring of 1973, even though he could no longer have been convicted in part in the Watergate break-in or subsequent attempts to cover it up.

Hunt, free on appeal from his guilty plea for the burglary, was to return to the witness stand today for the first cross-examination by defense lawyers who represent the five defendants — H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, John Mitchell, Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson.

As the sixth week of the trial opened Monday, the 56-year-old retired CIA agent said he never published transcripts of the presidential tapes last spring shortly after he was released from prison.

The day disclosed increasing discussions among Richard Nixon and aides about Hunt's continuing demands for money. Former White House counsel John Dean told Nixon it was blackmail.

"I felt a sense of rude awakening and I realized that these men were not worthy of my continued silence," Hunt testified near the end of his first day on the stand.

By March 16, 1973, Hunt by his own testimony had received at least $360,000 for lawyers' fees and other expenses. However, by last spring the money had long since stopped.

Hunt cited another reason for telling the truth about Watergate. He said his four children were not fully persuaded that the testimony I had given in prior public forums was in all respects factual and candid."

Hunt, a CIA agent for 21 years who now lives in Miami, was a major witness at the Senate Watergate hearings in the spring and summer of 1973.

He is testifying at the trial as a court witness, which allows Watergate prosecutors to ask questions that suggest the answers. Under trial strategy worked agreed to by U.S. District Judge John Sirica, neither the prosecution or the defense vouches for Hunt's credibility.

Before suspended Monday that when and if defence lawyers get Hunt on the stand they might want him called as a court witness.

Hunt was faced Monday by assistant special prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste, a rapid-fire questioner, to whom Hunt lied during three separate grand-jury appearances in 1973.

Ben-Veniste established a pattern of lying drawn from the grim-faced Hunt, whose voice sounded slightly.

At one point, Ben-Veniste asked: "Did you testify that you knew of no personal contact that Mr. (Gordon) Liddy had with Mr. Mitchell?"

Hunt: "Yes sir, I so testified."

Ben-Veniste: "Was that true or false?"

Hunt: "It was false."

Ben-Veniste: "Did you know it was false at the time?"

Hunt: "I did."

Hunt acknowledged that even when he learned that another White House aide Jerome Ze-ciec-hanowski could be brought to appear before the grand jury, he still told some lies under oath.

Hunt said that while he recanted some of the false grand-jury testimony, he also lied before other public forums.

Hunt said that included his book, Undercover: Memoirs of a Secret American Agent, written last spring.

Earlier Monday, Hunt testified for the first time that former attorney-general Mitchell approved the intelligence plan that ended up as the original burglary.

Hunt said convicted Watergate burglar Liddy gave him regular reports on attempts to persuade Mitchell to approve the plan.

In early April, 1972, Hunt said Liddy told him, "the big boy (Mitchell) has given his OK and the word is go."

Legion Defers Vote On Expelling Deserters

CORNWALL (CP) — A resolution by the Royal Canadian Legion calling for expulsion of all American draft-dodgers and deserters from Canada has been deferred until a conference next year.

The decision was made Sunday at the District G fall conference of the Legion held here.

Larry Keen, chairman of the business session at the conference, attended by 450 delegates representing 87 branches in eastern Ontario, said delegates decided to forward the resolution to the provincial resolution committee.

This issue will be raised at the next provincial convention of the Legion, scheduled for May, 1976, in Kingston.

Approximately 4,500 American citizens living in Canada are considered draft-dodgers and deserters by the Legion.

Theatre Exempt

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, (CP) — The Supreme Court of Ontario has ruled that the Shaw Festival Theatre is exempt from taxation on the land and buildings it rents from the federal government here.

Four Dentists Are Disciplined

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says recent fines and suspension of at least four Ontario dentists by the Royal College of Dental Surgeons have created a furore in the dental profession.

The college, licensing body for dentists, disciplined the dentists for allowing their dental assistants to do preventive dentistry such as fluoride treatments, scaling and oral hygiene instruction, the newspaper says.

The dentists are quoted as saying they were charged with "infamous, disgraceful or unprofessional conduct" in a professional respect.

Penalties ranged from one-to six-month suspensions of it. Another, who has a $1,000 fine plus legal costs incurred by the dentists and the college, the newspaper says.

It says the college's actions have angered some Ontario dentists.

$2 Billion a Year Pledged—

Oil Money to Go To Fight Israel

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The Arab summit conference has ended with a pledge of more than $2 billion a year in oil money to Israel's enemy neighbors: Egypt, Syria, Jordan and the guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

The four-day conference's other major action was the recognition of the PLO as the government of a future independent Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan River, occupied by Israel since the 1967 war.

The decision was another big boost in prestige for the PLO and its chief, Yasir Arafat. But Israeli Information Minister Aharon Yariv said the Jewish state will not hand over the territory to the guerrillas.

Conference sources said Egypt and Syria will each get $1 billion a year for the next four years; Jordan will get $300 million, and the PLO was allotted $50 million.

In addition, a single payment of $120 million will be made to South Yemen for a 99-year lease on its Perim Island, commanding the Bab al Mandab strait at the southern end of the Red Sea, all shipping to and from Elat, Israel's southern port, must pass through the strait, and Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Abu Dhabi are reported stationing naval forces there.

Conference sources said Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates will be the chief contributors. It was the first time the Arab oil countries agreed on concerted financial support for the campaign against Israel.

Israel's refusal to agree to a future PLO government on the West Bank appeared to frustrate the Israeli occupation of the former Jordanian territory indefinitely and to promise future intensification of the Arab guerrilla campaign against Israel.

But the conference left President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Hafez Assad of Syria free to continue bilateral peace negotiations with Israel, using U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger as their intermediary.

Kissinger Believes Door To Negotiations Still Open

DACCA (AP) — Henry Kissinger said today the door to negotiations between Israel and the Arabs still appears to be open and he probably will visit the Middle East "in the next week" to assess the prospects.

"That decision will be made in the next 72 hours," the said probably Saudi Arabia, the official said.

United States state secretary told reporters as he flew from India to Bangladesh.

Kissinger's spokesman, Robert Anderson, said in a statement the Arab summit conference which ended in Rabat Tuesday has not changed the U.S. position that "step-by-step negotiations, including between Jordan and Israel on the West Bank, offered the greatest hope of succeeding at the present time."

A senior U.S. official said Kissinger still has hopes of salvaging the step-by-step approach but he described the situation as "a minefield."

Tough Issues Before Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — The official federal view in the first ministers meeting here today is just a chance to talk in general terms about inflation and the economy, but there are plenty of tough issues for the prime minister and the premiers to discuss.

There is not likely to be agreement, but inflation is the top priority economic problem, Prime Minister Trudeau will tell his provincial counterparts when the meeting is September. There is no agenda and federal officials say Trudeau will not be presenting discussion of specific topics.

The federal-provincial split on resource taxes is a smouldering issue on which Ontario Premier William Davis says he expects discussion.

Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan has proposed establishment of a $200-million food bank with Ottawa and the provinces splitting the cost. The total is based on a suggested $5-per-capita contribution and the fund would be used both to stabilize domestic prices and provide aid to countries hit by famine.

While Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed has had no comment on issues he intends to raise, Mr. Trudeau said four weeks ago that he was optimistic that there would be an agreement on the important issue of sharing resource revenue.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis said Tuesday one of the topics he wants to discuss at today's first ministers' conference in Ottawa is high interest rates and their effect on housing.

The premier said in an interview he wants to talk to Prime Minister Trudeau about the position of building a extra billion federal dollars for low-cost mortgages.

"What has led to a slowdown in housing construction and purchasing is particularly the prices, but also very definitely the question of continuing high interest rates," said Mr. Davis.

He said the 12-per-cent interest rates on mortgages are too high, and must be lower by more than one per cent to be effective.

Housing Starts Off By Third

OTTAWA (CP) — Housing starts in September were down 31.4 per cent from the corresponding month last year, Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) reported today.

The actual number of housing starts in urban centres during the month dropped to 15,824 from 19,879 in September, 1973. Based on an annual rate, housing starts to the end of 1974 are expected to be 182,000. In August, it was estimated there would be 200,000.

Housing starts are considered a prime economic indicator. They have been falling off since May.

32 Perish In Arctic Air Crash

EDMONTON (CP) — Thirty-two of 34 passengers aboard an oil company aircraft were killed early today when it crashed near Resa Point on the west coast of Great Marion Island in the high Arctic.

Graham Laughren of Calgary, public relations officer for Pan-Arctic Oils Ltd., said two survivors had arrived in Edmonton for medical treatment. They were in serious condition in University Hospital.

Mr. Loulhren said original information indicated there were three survivors but later information revised it to number.

The four-engine aircraft was on a flight to Resa Point from Edmonton, about 1,780 miles to the south. It was due to arrive at 12:15 a.m. today. The crash site was in the Eyam Channel separating Eyam Martin Island and Melville Island to the west.

A trabsport ministry spokesman said that when the aircraft failed to arrive, a Twin Otter aircraft was sent to search and found a hole in the sea ice about two miles from the end of the runway. He said early reports indicated the plane crashed while on a landing approach.

The 5,000-foot sand and gravel runway is operated by Pan-Arctic which also owns the aircraft navigational aids, including a 300-watt non-directional radio beacon.

A Canadian forces search and rescue spokesman here said the crash occurred about 2:30 a.m. and that no search station was involved.

A Pacific Western Airlines spokesman said one of their aircraft based in the north had been rerouted to pick up the survivors and fly them to Edmonton.

Mr. Laughren said it was not immediately known whether the survivors were passengers or crew and details were not available on how the rescue was made at the crash site.

Health Bill Grows

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller said Tuesday that if present trends continue, each Ontario resident will be paying $1,000 a year in health costs in 10 years' time. Mr. Miller told the annual convention of the Ontario Hospital Association the current health bill of $2.3 billion will likely rise to $41 billion in 10 years.

The bill, which passed unanimously, would create a Human Rights Commission made up of no less than three persons, entitled to investigate acts of discrimination.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Inflation has not slowed the tide of borrowing, Ronald Thomas, president of the Credit Granters' Association of Canada, told delegates to the association's 50th anniversary meeting that the consumer debt still is rising, an indication that credit is readily available.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rabbi Baruch Korff says his fund to pay former president Richard Nixon's legal fees is $99,628 in the red with more bills expected.

Hostages Still Held

THE HAGUE (AP) — The Dutch government says it is considering the demands of four convicts holding 16 hostages in the Scheveningen prison and Justice Minister Andries van Agt said the cabinet is in no hurry to make a decision.

The convicts, who are armed with at least two pistols and knives, a Palestinian hijacker, demand a bus to take them to Amsterdam's Schiphol airport, a plane to take them to an undisclosed destination and the transfer of another Palestinian hijacker to the chapel.

The convicts said they would release three hostages—two women and a man with heart trouble—if the other Palestinian entered the chapel and the plane was ready to take off.

Price of Bread May Rise Again

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian consumers could face an increase in the price of bread if the Crowsnest agreement, which has provided low rates on rail movement of grain the last 78 years, is abolished, agriculture industry spokesmen said Tuesday.

When Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said Monday the act should be abandoned, he emphasized that producers must be protected against the higher costs of shipping their grain.

But he did not say whether the government would protect millers against higher freight rates on the grain they use to mill flour.

Industry spokesmen attending the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Grains Council, which ended Tuesday, were hesitant to comment because the rate abolition was only one of many suggestions to modernize the country's grain handling and transportation system.

Nixon in Shock 3 Hours, Condition Critical

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former president Richard Nixon was in critical condition today after lapsing into shock for three hours and experiencing internal bleeding following surgery for phlebitis.

"The doctors are fighting for that man's life," hospital spokesman Norman Nager told reporters Tuesday night. He said later he didn't mean the statement to carry the seriousness it denoted.

But a source close to the situation later said: "I know the doctors are worried" about Nixon's chances of survival.

In a statement read by Nager, Dr. John Lungren said a team of physicians administered "countershock measures for three hours until a stable vascular (circulation) condition was once again restored", late Tuesday.

He said: "The patient is still considered critical."

Dr. Lungren said Nixon, 61, was under round-the-clock care by a team of specially-trained intensive-care nurses and that Dr. Eldon Hickman, the cardiovascular specialist who performed the operation, would spend the night near Nixon.

Nixon's wife, Pat, was with Nixon after the surgery. A Nixon aide described her as "strained and trying to keep herself up during these difficult times."

Mrs. Nixon was later joined by Nixon's longtime personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and the two Nixon daughters, Tricia Nixon Cox and Julie Nixon Eisenhower, who flew in from the East Coast.

Dr. Lungren said Nixon's pulse rate has increased and he has a slight fever. He said Nixon is receiving medication intravenously.

Twelve hours earlier, surgeons had attached a plastic clip—resembling a clothespin with teeth—to a vein in Nixon's groin to control a newly-discovered blood clot threatening from the phlebitis in his left leg. The jaw-like clip allows blood to flow but prevents the movement of life-threatening clots to the heart and lungs.

Researcher Quits Over 'Death Ray'

A Trenton-raised man who was working on what a layman might call a "death ray" has turned his talents to another field . . . motion picture making.

E. Noel Almey, who graduated from Trenton High School in 1954, attended Royal Military College and Carleton University, has spent the last year working with a film director learning the techniques of film directing and editing, in Quebec.

The last project he worked on prior to his career change was the development of a new kind of high-powered laser.

Mr. Almey said he and a scientist working on the project at RCA Victor Research Laboratories in Montreal, wanted to conduct experiments in thermo-nuclear fusion for generation of electricity, but the only financing available was towards U.S. military applications.

"I left RCA for many reasons," the physics technologist said. "The primary reason was I no longer wanted to work in the plasma research section because it had become almost entirely military in orientation. I could no longer in good moral conscience put my talents at the disposal of the American war machine."

Mr. Almey is co-author, along with scientists, of two published scientific papers. One subject was multiple image micro-photography, and the other was radar backscatter from turbulent plasma.

During two summers attending university, Mr. Almey was in the eastern Arctic north of Hudson Bay operating electronic navigation equipment during the mapping of that section of Canada by aircraft.

Later, he was with the National Research Council in Ottawa.

Mr. Almey's next position was directly related to man's arrival on the surface of the moon.

He spent four years doing solar research at the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa. The project was financed by the National Aeronautical Space Administration and consisted of photographic observations of solar flares with a special filter.

Mr. Almey describes solar flares as "local centres of energy which erupt at random intervals. They boil up and reach a maximum peak of emission in two to five minutes.

"They send a big storm of high energy particles which interact with the earth's ionosphere causing radio signal blackout and the aurora borealis.

"NASA was concerned because of the X-rays and high energy electrons which could be dangerous to the astronauts.

"This might also be of interest considering supersonic flight with airplanes which fly at 40,000 feet or over and are exposed to radiation hazards," he noted.

Mr. Almey went on to further work related to man's moon venture. He joined RCA Victor Research Laboratories as a physics technologist.

Park Plan Altered

TRENTON — Town council entered the first stages of redrafting the development plan for Centennial Park this week, with a brainstorming session with Toronto consultants.

Revision of the plan has been made necessary by the eventual removal of the sewage treatment plant, now at the east end of the park. Park land area has also increased as the town has been dumping land fill into the Bay of Quinte.

The old plan, drafted in the late 1960s, did not include the two areas.

Johnson Sustronk Weinstein and Associates Ltd. of Toronto, has been engaged to draw up a master plan for new development. No cost estimates have been made for the creation of the concept plan.

Taking Stock

There are times in everyone's life when the question comes up, "who am I and where am I going?"

It is a question that may apply more to teenagers; and yet, this is not entirely so, as we see by a decision of the Very Rev. N. Bruce McLeod who is resigning his pulpit at Bloor Street United Church in Toronto.

Dr. McLeod, who is 45, became the youngest moderator of the United Church a little over two years ago. He has told his congregation he will take a year off "to determine directions" for his future.

"I feel the compelling need to regroup and replenish my resources — spiritual, intellectual, emotional and physical — and to redefine priorities for my remaining time and energy."

The former Moderator, who was in Belleville a year or so ago, is embarking on a road many men of his relatively young years would envy in some respects, fear in others; for not everyone would know how to use the time wisely.

Not everyone has such a choice either, the type of job that could be given up temporarily, let alone the means to take such a sabbatical. But in a calling such as Dr. McLeod's, in which he has already filled the highest post the church has to offer, a decision of this nature assumes all the more significance.

The church itself is assuming a more activist role in world affairs, one involving it in greater controversy than ever before. From this standpoint also, Dr. McLeod's decision is significant.

The "priorities" and "directions" which Dr. McLeod eventually decides upon will be of interest to churchmen and people everywhere, for they will help determine the world of tomorrow.

There comes to mind another outstanding cleric — Cardinal Leger, who gave up high office in the Roman Catholic church in Montreal to work as a medical missionary in Africa.

The change that an individual effects in this way, in his own life and in the lives of others, is indicative of what a person can do when he begins to question the course he presently is taking. Thus does our world progress to a future unknown but which each of us can influence in his own way.

A Long Haul

Another man of some prominence and relative youth who has made his mark on our time is Ontario Minister of Colleges and Universities Auld.

Although still in his early fifties, Mr. Auld is one of the most enduring of provincial politicians. He has been a member of the Ontario legislature for 20 years, a record celebrated by a testimonial dinner in Brockville, where the minister resides, last week. Among those present was Premier Davis, who presented Mr. Auld with a plaque.

Mr. Auld is tall, dark and handsome. Underneath a quiet and unassuming nature he is also an astute politician. An experienced one too, as his record proves. He has held five cabinet posts and Mr. Davis describes him as a person one could turn to for "understanding and excellent advice."

What is Mr. Auld's own view of the political life? He says if a politician stays in political life any length of time, it is because he enjoys it and "he enjoys it because of the helpful people he meets."

Another facet of success in politics is a family tuned to its ups and downs and pressures. "I have an understanding wife and two good children which has also helped me greatly during my political career," he says.

Like Dr. McLeod, Mr. Auld has been in Belleville as here as Minister of Environment, at the opening of additional water treatment facilities a couple of years or so ago.

But unlike Dr. McLeod, Mr. Auld has no doubts as to his future direction. He plans to stay in politics.

Economic Nationalism May Be Basis Of Resources Policy

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Is there a major shift in Canadian policy in the offing affecting our natural resources exports.

It sounds like a change is coming, from remarks made by the three men in Parliament who would formulate it, the prime minister, Alan MacEachen, newly-ensconced as external affairs minister and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

Let's review briefly what all three have been saying or hinting about resources exports, chiefly about oil and gas. In Brussels at the end of his France-Belgium visit, Prime Minister Trudeau said quite categorically any new relationship between Canada and the European Common Market which he fervently seeks, will not include free and easy access by the Europeans to our energy supplies.

Energy Minister Macdonald, back from an American visit, told Montreal Commercial officials that Canada's oil exports to the U.S. which have been as high as 900,000 barrels per day, will dwindle off to nothing in the near future.

But he assured American officials, who count on us for about 10 per cent of their total oil imports, (the rest coming from Venezuela and the Middle East), that the tapering off would be done as painlessly as possible with probably no more Canadian oil available to them not until 1980.

And then there was Mr. MacEachen's remarks before the House of Commons on what affairs committee which were more mysterious than the comments from the other two.

He said that Canadians might have to tighten their belts somewhat to participate in future reductions in fuel and food supplies which a world in short supply (for fuels), and hungry (for food), will need from Canada in larger amounts.

So far nothing has been formulated nor is there any sign of a major energy and foods policy change in the works. On food we do know that the traditional grain reserves left over year after year, a traditional pattern for the 1960s, no longer exist.

Yet we grow in the world is being consumed either by ourselves or hungry customers. President Ford's cancellation of a two million ton grain export from the U.S.S.R., because of his concern over available American grain supplies was a sign of the times, even though a later three million ton Soviet export order was approved by the White House.

Critics of Messrs. Trudeau, MacEachen and Macdonald will see their statements as the beginning of a plan based more on economic nationalism than growing world shortages, especially in Mr. Macdonald's continued outright rejection of continental policies of sharing energy resources.

To a degree, they would be right. Mr. Macdonald is a minister of economic nationalist Walter Gordon.

And Mr. MacEachen has been referred to a strong member in the party and in cabinet of the Liberal party's "left wing."

As for the prime minister, it depends which critic you read or listen to, from the small cenacle of those who see "plot theory" in everything he does, to more gentle ones who feel the prime minister has finally warmed to some of the long-term economic crises he faces.

For better or for worse, Mr. Trudeau will carry the responsibility of coping with these now that Mr. Stanfield's political mandate he sought and won last July.

Adding all this in mind and the fact shortages are bound to increase and not decline in the world for the rest of the 70s, we can expect some tough Ottawa direction over our resources of a kind not attempted before.

David Lewis, former NDP leader, from his new academic post at Carleton University, will view such changes, I'm sure, "sardonically."

Erratic Stock Market Gives Investors A Bad Time

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The stock market today is rife with those stories that begin with "first the good news" and end with "now the bad news."

The trouble is that the stories are not very funny—especially to investors who rush to buy as soon as prices go up, then find themselves whipsawed by the next sharp sell-off.

That has been the history of the stock market over the past few weeks. In early October, it appeared that the long bear market might finally be finished.

The Toronto Stock Exchange's industrial index scored its biggest one-week rise in history—9.2 per cent—while the widely watched Dow Jones average of 30 key New York industrials advanced 13.2 per cent in six sessions on heavy volume of trading.

Then came the bad news, and those stocks gave up a large part of their new-found gains.

One of the factors contributing to the original advance was the announcement by U.S. President Gerald Ford of comprehensive new plans to fight inflation.

As one Toronto stockbroker observed, "the fact that they may not work is not as important as the fact that the problem is being faced."

But then the public took a closer look at the Ford plans and apparently concluded that in fact they probably would not work.

Mr. Ford's treasury secretary, William Simon, got into the good-news-bad-news act. He promised to cut U.S. government spending by $5-billion—an anti-inflationary move that many economists had been urging.

But later Mr. Simon conceded that the U.S. economy is "technically" in a recession, and investors reacted to that with heavy selling.

Then King Faisal of Saudi Arabia—world's largest oil producer—did it. First he promised U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that he would use his influence among other Arab oil-producing countries to try to reduce prices.

The next day, his government increased the price of oil to Aramco, the Arab-American company.

For the moment at least, bearish sentiment again dominates the stock market.

Contributing to the gloom are widely held fears that the massive loans made recently to Italy and other countries to help them pay for essential imports of oil, will never be repaid.

Then there is growing concern about the record size of consumer, corporate and government debt in other—and supposedly more stable—industrialized countries.

If in fact a worldwide recession is under way, then history suggests that the inflation rate will at least be moderate.

Already there are clear signs of price weaknesses in commodities on international markets. The anchovy crop will likely exceed five million tons this year, compared with four million in 1973. (Failure of the crop in 1972 helped to launch the current super-inflation).

What about agricultural commodities? Their prices could begin to crack in North America because of surpluses elsewhere in the world, of certain foods—notably beef.

On balance, the bad news continues to outweigh the good news for hard-pressed investors.

Taking Cabinet To The People

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — It is a decade or so at least since we first heard talk here of taking government to the people.

Various leaders recognizing the communications gap that exists between government and many sections of the public largely through sheer distance from Toronto have promised to take government, in the form of the cabinet, out through the province.

But somehow or other the promise has largely been overlooked.

Over the years there has been the occasional cabinet sortie out into the province.

And since policy councils were established in 1971 some of these inner groups have held public hearings at various public centres.

But for the most part the promise has been an idea that has not been carried through.

Now the Davis government has announced a program which looks like business at last.

It has announced a program which covers a whole year and will see the cabinet make at least 12 forays outside of Toronto.

What is the first time there has been such a planned program.

It has been inspired by a meeting which was held in Hanover last month which inspired the idea from local groups and residents.

The expedition, which was held in the town of Hanover, chairmas of management board Robert Welch, was considered so successful that it set the path for this fall year's schedule which will see public visits and public meetings at points from Thunder Bay to Welland.

The first reaction of the casual observer to such a program is that it is a government playing with politics.

And of course in a sense it is this.

But then what is government here politics?

And the closer to the people the better.

And where the government may pick up some political benefit local communities really are the main beneficiaries.

For it gives them a chance not only to meet and assess their leaders but also to air their beefs.

Most of all it gives them more of a sense of belonging.

LETTERS

'People's Mayor'

A Word in Support Of Belleville's Robin Jeffrey

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to take exception to Mr. Young's letter, concerning Mayor Jeffrey.

Personally, I hope Mrs. Jeffrey wins another term. She goes to work every day, like any working person and she is a people's Mayor, meaning anyone can talk to her, anywhere, in plain ordinary language.

I also believe she is a dedicated person, believing that what she is doing, is for the best, for the people of Belleville. She also always looks nice for any occasion. People coming to visit our city and meeting her, in her capacity as Mayor, might even go away with the impression that we are all nice people here.

The former Mayor Dr. Scott was also a person whom every ordinary working people of Belleville respected, for much of the same reasons as stated above. Dr. Scott, like people can readily see, but the business workings of the city hall, no, they do not. Only you can listen to the council meetings, read the paper, listen to other peoples' remarks, many ways. The one thing that we cannot fault at the present city hall to find out what is fact and what is not, when the nasty almost letters start, around election time, and mix up everyone's mind and feelings, there must be someway to fight fair. There are rules for hockey and everything else, you get penalized for sticking etc. Just give us a run down, on the candidates, their accomplishments, that kind of thing. They must have accomplished something, each one of them, and be civic minded, or else they wouldn't offer themselves for the jobs and feel qualified to fill them.

The United Appeal has been severely damaged, in this city, because of controversy. "To give, without expecting a thank you, that is helping your fellow man, so maybe that should be the motto of Belleville's village, say Fashore, to give it a clean fresh start.

In development, we either go ahead and expand building and industry, or some other city gladly will.

Someone else can answer, as to the dogs and the cutting down of trees, someone that these things would directly affect.

Everyone makes mistakes, no one is perfect, however I say Mayor made a few too, but, so what, we learn by our mistakes and intellect and it makes us all try to do better. Considering the job he has already done a good job as Mayor and Mr. Young now points out a few mistakes, if there be, then she should do even better, this next term.

There is a lot of worry on everyone's mind, on inflation, and the economy, so let us have an open, fair-minded election of the most able people the city has, is serve on council.

I am not qualified at all, Mr. Young, to be a Mayor. Are you? If so, then run against Mrs. Jeffrey, but I am qualified to write a letter, for her two years of work.

ONLOOKER.

Volunteers' Achievements At Family YMCA

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

There have appeared from time to time in your newspaper, letters from concerned citizens, expressing their views, be it pro or con, concerning the relationship between the United Way Campaign and the YMCA.

Some of these letters have contained misgivings, that our YMCA is completely void of volunteers to assist in the many programs offered at the "Y". I cannot help but feel that such an inference is totally unjustified, for how else, do we classify the free time given by the Board of Directors and the Committee Members and all the volunteers assisting in the various Special Events that are so much a part of any YMCA.

Obviously to end here would not be sufficient, so let's get down to the meat of any YMCA and take a look at its sporting or physical fitness programs and those volunteers who give an average from two to four hours a week to make these programs work.

Let's be more specific and name them: Ray Kruszewski, Ray Ball, Iris Chaney, Helen Diamantides, Mike McMurter, John Peoples, Wolfram Tauenfreund, Enid Rowe, Jack Frame, Betty Watson and my apologies to the volunteers who are the various YMCA programs, on whom I cannot put a name.

Over a year, these volunteer hours would add up to thousands of dollars, if the YMCA had to pay for them.

So somebody must benefit from the efforts of the volunteer workers. Maybe it is you - maybe it is your child, why not ask him or her?

It's better still, come to the Y and ask the kids in our Judo Club, they even help each other and they like it.

"And God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul: so that from his body were brought unto the sick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them." Acts 19:11,12

He has many ways of conveying His grace and love and thought in the lives of Christians. Don't make the mistake of limiting God to a certain method.

CP News, Roundup

Secession Referendum Is Refused

TORONTO (CP) — Ed Deibel said Tuesday he had a meeting with "the premier of northern Ontario" after he rejected a petition to give Northern Ontario residents a vote on secession from the province.

Standing in front of his tent on the legislature lawn, Mr. Deibel said he had a "very friendly but very disappointing 20 minutes" with Premier William Davis.

Mr. Deibel, 42, a North Bay motel owner, and leader of a campaign to form a new province in Northern Ontario, has spent the last two nights camping at the legislature, awaiting a meeting with the premier.

His 18-year-old son Mel accompanied him to the meeting with the premier, who rejected the petition for a vote, Mr. Deibel said.

But, he said, the premier listened sympathetically to complaints that Northern Ontario is exploited and mistreated by legislators in the south.

455 Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has laid 455 charges under the Construction Safety Act in the first full year since the province took over investigation and prosecutions from municipalities.

Charges Denied

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — Recent criticism of farm working conditions by Dave Archer, president of Ontario Federation of Labor, are "a bunch of damned lies", a former chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board said Tuesday.

Firm Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Konvey Construction Co. Ltd., a contractor for the Toronto board of education, was charged Tuesday under the Ontario Trees Act with "injuring" a tree.

Shirley Strathy, a third-year landscape architecture student at the University of Toronto, laid the charge, alleging that a main root of a maple tree along a city road was cut by a bulldozer.

Lots of Fruit

OTTAWA (CP) — Improved crops of most types of fruit are expected this year over last year's yields, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

The agency's third 1974 forecast shows total apple production across the country at 21,- 262,000 bushels, compared to 19,988,000 bushels in 1973.

OK Estimates

OTTAWA (CP) — After less than one hour of debate Tuesday the Senate gave approval in principle to the government's 1974-75 spending estimates of $34.2 billion.

Wrong Story

TORONTO (CP) — Incorrect statistics supplied to the convention of the Ontario Hospital Association here Monday have been blamed for creating the false impression a flood of United States residents is entering Canada to take high hospital care costs at home.

Catch Poor

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — The four-year ban on commercial fishing on Lake St. Clair because of mercury pollution may have tipped the scales in favor of "junk" fish, a spokesman for commercial fishermen said Tuesday.

Delmer Jobsville, vice-president of the Lake St. Clair Commercial Fishermen's Association, said experimental catches in the last week have turned up large amounts of the "confined variety", but fishermen have yet to net the more valuable species like perch.

Resigns

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — A female Episcopal (Anglican) priest, one of 11 women whose unauthorized ordination last summer stirred a church controversy, has resigned as curate of St. Peter's church here.

Rev. Nancy Hatch Wittig mailed in her resignation Friday, but it was not revealed until Tuesday.

Irritated

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles said Tuesday he is "slightly irritated" by the publicity given to his romances.

He said he accepted the situation because he is accustomed to press treatment but "it can make things very difficult" for a girl-friend.

JAMES AULD

One in 15

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's five medical schools rejected 14 applicants for every student admitted this year, James Auld, minister of colleges and universities indicated Tuesday. Mr. Auld said the five medical schools had "a total of 4,723 applications for an available number of first-year positions of 336."

Murder Victim Knew Of Husband's Mistress

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A witness at the Demeter murder trial Tuesday testified that Christine Demeter joked the day before she was killed about having her husband, Peter, killed so she would be free of him and get his money.

Demeter is charged with noncapital murder in connection with the death of his wife in the garage of their Mississauga home the night of July 18, 1973. He is free on $75,000 bail.

Vivera Enos, Mrs. Demeter's 17-year-old goddaughter, told an Ontario Supreme Court jury that Mrs. Demeter told her last summer that she wanted a divorce but that it would be impractical at the time.

Miss Enos said Mrs. Demeter knew her husband had a mistress.

She said she wanted to see Peter dead, that it would be nice if she could get Peter knocked off and get his money. Then she said I could come and live with her."

Miss Enos also told the jury that Demeter talked about his marriage and his mistress, Melissa Hundt, as he drove her around Toronto the day his wife was killed.

HAD MISTRESS

"He said (the marriage) was on the rocks and that he had met another woman in Montreal and that he wanted to marry her."

Mrs. Demeter's body was found in a pool of blood on the garage floor by Demeter, Miss Enos and other house guests about 9:45 p.m. July 18. She had been beaten over the head and suffered numerous skull fractures.

Demeter is alleged to have had someone kill his wife so he could marry Miss Hundt and collect more than $1 million in life insurance. Other policies in force would have given Mrs. Demeter an identical sum if her husband had died.

Cost-of-living Clauses Are Said Inflationary

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Labor Minister John MacBeth told back from giving the government nod to cost-of-living clauses in contracts Tuesday because of what he called their impact on inflation.

The minister told a committee reviewing labor contracts that cost-of-living clauses are "in themselves inflationary." Profits, particularly percentage profits, "are just as inflationary or more so," he said.

But to come out in favor of such clauses in all contracts "might simply aggravate the problem."

Pat Reid (L-Rainy River) who raised the matter in debate, said one study indicated such clauses would reinforce a downward trend in inflation if there were a moderation in the rate.

His Memo Was Sloppy Official Decides

TORONTO (CP) — An interoffice memo by a senior civil servant urging provincial government scientists to create the "highly visible" research projects was made public in the legislature Tuesday.

Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier said the civil servant who wrote the memo will be reprimanded.

The memo, read to the house by Stephen Lewis, NDP leader, told scientists in the fisheries research field to develop short-term projects "that must have direct economic impact"; and projects that "put money in people's pockets as opposed to putting money into already-group pockets or the poor."

It was sent Sept. 30 from J. Douglas Rosebrough, director of research for the fish and wildlife division of Mr. Bernier's ministry, to 12 scientists questioned about the reluctance to not putting money into the pockets of ethnic and poor people, he said:

"This is a matter of putting money . . . Col. this is a sloppily-written memo."

Happy Halloween Hints for Easy Meal-making

Halloween is a night when supper can't be an elaborate production, since Mom and Dad need every available hand for pinning on sheets, tying masks and doling out treats at the door.

Here are some recipes suitable for a hot, nourishing Halloween meal, either to fortify the youngsters before their evening treks or as a later party-time for the grown-ups once the witches and ghosts are in bed.

Halloween Beef Chili

one lb. lean ground beef
one onion, chopped
one 15 oz. can red kidney beans
one tsp. salt
1 tbsp. chili powder
tomato juice as needed
four oz. chopped walnuts (optional)

Brown the beef in a heavy skillet. Add the chopped onion and continue to cook the mixture as you add the undiluted beans, seasonings and nuts. Simmer to blend the flavours and add a little tomato juice to keep the meat from sticking to the pan. Cover and keep on low heat until ready for supper.

Hot Hexel

¼ cup margarine
one large Bermuda onion, chopped six large potatoes, cooked and diced three cups leftover cooked meat, finely diced one pkge. frozen green beans one tbsp. Angostura aromatic bitters one can condensed beef broth
salt and pepper to taste

This Pennsylvania Dutch dish is a good wtty of using up leftovers, and can be made well in advance of the supper hour. Although the name "hexel" sounds rather whimsical, in fact it's Pe Pennsylvania Dutch name for hash.

In a large skillet heat the margarine and sauté the onion. Stir in remaining ingredients and simmer, uncovered until the liquid is absorbed and the hexel is piping hot. (If you make this in advance of supper, keep the lid on until immediately prior to the meal.) For various kinds of leftover meats, try the following:

Beef — add ½ cup chili sauce;

Lamb — add ¼ cup light cream and one tbsp. chopped mint;

Pork — add 1¼ cups diced pineapple and one tsp. mustard.

Supper Chowder

five slices bacon
one onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings two cups canned corn one cup diced cooked potatoes
one can cream of mushroom soup
1½ cups milk
one tsp. salt
pepper to taste

In a large saucepan cook the bacon till crisp. Remove bacon and pour off all but three tbsp. of drippings, and add the onions to brown. Add remaining ingredients, simmer till piping hot. Crumble bacon on top.

Pumpkin Loaf

three eggs
two cups white sugar one-third cup melted margarine one cup canned pumpkin three cups flour four tsp. baking powder
two tsp. cinnamon
one tsp. each of nutmeg, ground ginger, ground cloves OR allspice
one tsp. salt
one tsp. baking soda
one cup raisins

Beat the eggs and sugar well together. Beat in the melted margarine and the pumpkin.

Sift all the dry ingredients together, and add to the first mixture one cup at a time. When thoroughly mixed, add the raisins and stir.

Bake in two greased loaf pans at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until knife returns dry from the centre.

All-in-the-Oven Supper

one half pepper squash per person one large potato per person one or any apple per person one lb. ground beef, browned one chopped onion
one can cream of mushroom soup
one pkge. frozen peas salt, pepper and rosemary to taste

Clean out the centre of each squash, and put a dab of margarine and a spoonful of brown sugar in each cavity. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and place in a shallow baking dish in which there is a little water. Cover with foil until the last five minutes before serving.

Scrub each potato and prick with a fork.

Core each apple and fill the cavity with raisins, cinnamon, margarine and brown sugar. Place in a shallow baking dish in which there is a little water.

Combine in a casserole dish the browned ground beef with the chopped onion, soup, peas and seasonings, and cover until the last five minutes before serving.

Place the squash, apples, potatoes and meat casserole in a preheated 350-degree oven for one hour. Total preparation time will be less than 15 minutes, and you've got an hour to spend on last minute costume-making details.

Sesame Seed Lace Cookies
¼ cup margarine
two cups brown sugar one egg, beaten
one tsp. vanilla
½ cup sesame seeds
one cup flour
¼ tsp. salt

These lovely light cookies are nutritious, and make a nice hand-out treat for neighborhood visitors. This recipe makes about 100 cookies.

Cream together the margarine and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg, vanilla and sesame seeds and blend well. Add flour and salt, and blend all together. Drop by level half-teaspoon onto a greased baking sheet, about three inches apart.

Bake in a 350-degree oven for four or five minutes. Cool the cookies for two minutes before removing from the pan.

Books By And About Women

OLD AGE

By Simone de Beauvoir

Simone de Beauvoir has an almost legendary reputation as a writer and thinker. Her novels, and her examination of women's roles in "The Second Sex" have won her a place in the forefront of the liberation movement.

In "Old Age" she writes with fierce honesty about the process of old age. This isn't a happy book, but is a book to make the reader think.

In our youth-oriented society, we evade the fearsome spectre of death and the horrors of aging. The process of growing older has little dignity attached. Madame de Beauvoir found, while researching for her book, that society looks upon old age as a kind of shameful secret that is unseemly to mention.

In this detailed study of old age she tries to show that one's life has value so long as one attributes value to the life of others by means of love, friendship, and compassion.

This book is available at the Corby Library.

'Reach to Recovery' Rehabilitates

By Frieda Kaye

(New York (CNS) — At a time when breast cancer is in the headlines, some 8,500 women serve as reminders that it is possible to make a complete physical and emotional comeback from the operation that women fear most. They are Reach to Recovery volunteers, helping women like themselves who have undergone mastectomies, or surgical removal of a breast.

Reach to Recovery is the creation of Terese Lasser, who was operated on for breast cancer 28 years ago. "After my surgery I worried about so many things," the petite widow recalls today. "My husband was alive then and I thought, 'How will he feel?' 'Will my friends pity me?' 'What will I wear?' I couldn't get answers. There was nothing."

So her own she devised exercises to regain strength in her arm, and researched the clothes problem. Then, encouraged by her doctor, she shared her understanding and knowledge with another patient. "When I was able to help that woman walk and face her husband, she embraced me and cried, and I cried with her. I realized that I had something more important to do in life than just keep house and play golf."

That was the start of a one-woman crusade, funded by Mrs. Lasser's husband and contributions from grateful patients. In 1969 Terese Lasser's program became an integral part of the American Cancer Society. Under her direction it has expanded throughout the country and the world.

Today its trained volunteers are welcome in hospitals — if the attending physician requests a visitor. Matched according to the patient's age and ethnic background, a volunteer comes prepared to demonstrate exercises, explain prosthetic devices and offer hints on clothing and carriage. They candidly discuss all sexual medical matters — including that delicate question — how will the man in my life react?

"Your husband didn't marry you because you had two breasts," Terese Lasser tells mastectomy patients. But she admits she, too, was concerned after her surgery, "My husband was a gentle man who waited to see how I would act. When I came home I undressed in the bathroom. As the months went by and there was no sex between us, I thought I had become repulsive to him."

Finally Mrs. Lasser "poured her heart out" on paper and asked her husband to read it. J.K. Lasser, author of "Your Income Tax") to read what she had written. "His first words to me were 'what have I done to you?' But he had n't done it to me, I had done it to him, too. Ignorance."

Reach to Recovery now offers literature — and personal counseling when necessary — to help the cancer patient and her family deal with these problems.

"We're the same women we were before, except we have to wear something extra," emphasizes this 61-year-old grandmother, who shows off her trim figure in form-fitting knits; underneath she wears a specially-made garment that gives her a balanced, natural bosom look.

Constantly on call for newspaper interviews and TV talk shows, Mrs. Lasser hammers home the importance of regular check-ups and breast self-examinations. "I am here today," she says, "because I didn't ignore that lump I found in my breast."

BELLEVILLE

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

The regular meeting of the Belleville Garden Club on October 15 featured a slide presentation by Conservation Officer Mike MacDonald of the Department of Natural Resources. Slides illustrated the use of shrubbery to control growth along roadsides as an alternative to the common practice of using herbicides to kill all roadside growth except grass. Demonstration projects indicate that the use of shrubbery will result in lower roadside maintenance cost, more attractive roadsides and the provision of a home for birds and wildlife.

Pat Kammer and Judy Wilson of Belleville demonstrated the principles of table decoration and corsages using dried weeds and silk flowers.

A panel of Daina Honeyman, Larry Johnson, Cecil Becker and Al Gardiner answered questions on preparing gardens for winter.

A plant sale and refreshments closed the evening.

Ann Landers

New Teeth, New Life

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you told a woman who was fearful of having all her teeth extracted (she was afraid dentures would interfere with her love life) to "seek another opinion." May I submit that opinion?

Dear Lady with the Rotten Teeth: I got my first partial plate at the age of 15. Most of my uppers had to be removed. The thought of it distressed me, but before long that partial plate changed my life. For the first time in years I smiled and laughed publicly without putting my hand to my mouth to conceal my crooked, decayed teeth.

At 21, I had a complete denture made and it was great. When a fellow I liked a lot said, "Pucker up," I did — without fear that my dentures would slip. I am now happily married to a wonderful guy, but I kissed several sweeties before I made the final selection. My dentures never gave me a moment's trouble.

I want to tell the world that we've come a long way since George Washington and his wooden choppers. Today a good dentist can fit you with beautiful, natural-looking teeth that will allow you to eat everything—plus you'll look 100 per cent better and you'll be 200 per cent healthier—A Witness

Dear Wit: Thank you for a letter a great many concerned readers will be able to thin their teeth into. In fact, they'll seal it up.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I spent the weekend with my mother-in-law. We left in a rush and I unintentionally took a towel and washcloth that belonged to her. They were almost identical in color.

This morning I received a very cool letter asking that I return her towel and washcloth. She expressed surprise that I would do such a thing. I am sick at heart. Should I tell my husband?—Bothered

Dear B.: Yes. Then phone your mother-in-law in his presence, explain the confusion and send her two towels and two washcloths—her own and your nearly identical ones.

Successful Living

Social Approval Boosts Morale

By DORIS CLARK

One thing which can contribute tremendously to the happiness of childfred years is social approval. By that I mean the feeling that a mother approves of her child's efforts. And that others do, too.

We know that nothing succeeds like success, and when Mom or Dad praises Johnny for Wastle for even small things like putting away toys, or spelling a word right, or perhaps, later on, solving a problem in mathematics, there is a boost in morale which can insure even greater success as times goes on.

Teachers can rot to this by never failing to commend a particularly good piece of work or a success in dramatics or music. And when playmates generously admire one another, this is best of all.

Dear Doris: I don't know how to act or what to say when this guy is around. I'm 15, he's 17. I am always full of humor and joy and really have a great time with any other boy, even his brothers. He's very shy and when I do get a chance to say something to him I don't know what to say.

We went around together one night at a hockey game and I'm sure he likes me. How can I show this guy I like him without acting or saying something?

Too Obvious: Join the club. Even if they would admit it, many a 15-year-old boy or girl, gets the jitters when in the presence of someone they really go for in a big way. If he is as shy as you say, he'll temple-bird with you — without a doubt. Someone has to break the silence — and you can only do it by remembering he has feelings too; and by speaking up — action by touching on things you know he is keen about.

No reason for not sending the birthday card — providing you seal it, and can see that it gets into his hands without Big Brothers seeing it first. Could you play it to him as you pass him in the hall at school? Might make you both laugh — and break the ice.

Confidential to Lonely Large: Loneliness — one of our most desperate problems, even in the midst of a crowded city. People of all ages want to meet members of the opposite sex; and there are so many ways there is no resource for doing it without being clumsy. Bars and restaurants are definitely not the right places.

You might try approaching the YM or YW where you are and starting to help in forming a singles club. Or the municipal recreation committee might just come through. Church or community centre are both good ideas. Try every local resource you can think of.

Building a group around a common interest, like a sport or books or bird watching, can bring congenial folk together with something to talk about besides themselves.

(Talking it over hints. Write to Doris for help with your dilemma, care of this newspaper.)

New Additions to the Reference Collection:

EVERYTHING YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT LAW AND MARRIAGE — F. A. R. Chapman.

This recently revised book explains, in easily understood terms, Canadian laws dealing with all aspects of marriage. The engagement "contract", marriage licences, grounds for divorce, and death duties are only some of the topics explained. Any difference in the law from one province to another are noted. The appendix includes the new divorce law which became effective in 1968.

CONTEMPORARY ISSUES IN CANADIAN LAW FOR NURSES — Shirley R. Good and Janet C. Kerr.

Because nurses are responsible for the life and health of human beings, they need to understand their legal obligations to avoid violating the legal rights of others. This book is a collection of essays by experts in the fields of law and nursing, explaining subjects such as the Criminal Code, negligence and malpractice, what to do in suspected cases of child-battering, and nurses' employment conditions.

NOT BLOODY LIKELY: THE SHAW FESTIVAL, 1962-1973 — Brian Doherty.

Although the odds against the Shaw Festival were great in its early years, it has become a major summer theatre attraction. The history of the festival, shown in photographs of scenes from the plays and excerpts from reviews, is traced from its beginnings in the Court House Theatre to the opening of the new Shaw Festival Theatre in time for the festival's 12th season.

THE TOWNSHIP OF TIME — Charles Bruce.

Recently added to the Canadiana collection, this is a collection of related short stories by a good story-teller, about some of the people who settled in Nova Scotia in the 1780s. The book spans the years from 1784 to 1956, vividly portraying the life of a Loyalist pioneer family and their descendants.

A STRING OF AMBER: THE HERITAGE OF THE MENNONITES — Bledwen Davies.

As a friend and admirer of the Mennonite people around Markham, Ontario, the author became familiar with their customs and way of life. She begins with a well-researched and very readable history of the Mennonites in Europe and America and their coming to Canada, and goes on to describe industrious pioneer farmers and artisans, folk medicines and charms, and a witch, as well as the surprisingly ancient origin of the amber beads of the title.

Flexible Spending Limits Help Squeeze at BGH

More flexible limits on hospital spending in Ontario has won approving response, it was learned in Belleville General Hospital board chairman.

The move permits submission of more realistic budgets, said Mr. Bateman.

Health minister Frank Miller said variable ceilings will be placed on hospital budgets rather than those applied to all hospitals as a fixed percentage of last year's costs. Each hospital will get a slightly different percentage depending on particular requirements.

The ministry has sought to control rising costs by imposing budget ceilings in recent years.

But the percentage ceiling cracked on 1974 budgets, under pressure mainly from mid-year wage increases. As a result, the 7.9 per cent constraint may end up in some cases more like 20 per cent, Health Minister Frank Miller has said.

Belleville General was forced to seek $1.2 million in supplementary funds — nearly another nine per cent on top of its $13.5 million budget.

Now, Mr. Bateman said, 1975 budgets hospitals have been told to limit 1974 figures by two per cent, then add on what is believed needed.

"This seems happy with the approach," said Mr. Bateman. "In the two previous years we were given arbitrary percentage increases in line with ... and we simply couldn't accommodate our needs."

"This year at least we've given the responsibility to assess our needs and submit them."

The ministry has also warned against increases in improved staffing levels of any hospital.

The constraint comes at a time when Belleville General is showing an increase in patient volume and "we will have to take a look at that," said Mr. Bateman.

However, he said, hospitals may make submissions at a later date" on supplementing staff.

Latest statistics — to the end of September — show 8,128 adults and children admitted to BGH this year, accounting for 75,583 patient days. This compares with 8,239 admissions and 79,755 patient days for the same time in 1973. Admissions to the Queen's Self-Care Unit rose to 1,326 from 1,248.

Tower To Topple

Three-year-old Dies in Blaze

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

A fire early today in the Hillcrest area claimed the life of a three-year-old boy.

Roger Wood, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wood of 7 Herman St., was pronounced dead on arrival at the top of the stairs of a 1½-storey frame home covered with clapboard.

City firefighters answered a call turned in by a neighbor of the Wood family, Mrs. Mary Hanna of 13 Herman St., at about 3:20 this morning.

Mrs. Hanna said she was awakened by Mrs. Wood banging on her door about 3 a.m.

The Wood's home was "blazing" and the couple with them — Mrs. Wood's daughter, 17-year-old daughter Tracy, Jesse Ramos, 7, and Isaac, 4, — had fled the burning house and in their nightclothes, said Mrs. Hanna.

While she turned in the fire alarm Mrs. Wood told her about Roger being in the house.

"Mr. Wood had tried to get back in but he couldn't. It was terrible," said Mrs. Hanna.

"I went to the back door to try and get the children out with the fire. There was no way you could get back in that house," she said.

The Wood family had lived on Herman St., about five years, she said.

Gordon Graves, the Wood's next door neighbor, said he said the "flames were shooting right up" from the burning house when he awakened.

When fire captain Elmer Helm arrived with eight firefighters and two pumpers they were met by flames coming out of all the windows of the house.

Mrs. Wood had taken the youngest of the couple's four children, Tracy, outside while Mr. Wood had Isaac and Rosie with him.

He then went into the house again to get three-year-old Roger but was driven back by the heavy smoke.

When Capt. Helm and Fire Chief Leo Culhane were able to enter the home they found the body of the boy at the top of the stairs. Firefighters remained at the site for more than two hours, said Chief Culhane.

Chief Culhane said today "there was no possible way to get into the home. The home was a well-built one."

Two firefighters were slightly injured and treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

Firefighter Jack Finkle received a burn in his hand when he touched the handle of a baby carriage he thought might contain an infant.

Second firefighter, Bill Williams, twisted his ankle when he stepped into a three-foot ditch while going back to the fire truck.

Chief Culhane said it was fortunate no one was electrocuted in light of the fact that the fire had caused a hydro wire to fall upon a wire fence in front of the house and in effect charge it. Isaac, a five year old, Ryder crew was called in to repair the wire.

Chief Culhane said there is as yet no estimate of the damage. Mr. Wood was both owner and occupant.

The Chief added that cause of the fire is undetermined. The house was heated by an oil stove. A Fire Marshal and local fire officials are at the site trying to determine how the fire started.

Fatal Fire Scene

On way to school this morning Hillcrest youngsters survey scene of fatal fire on Herman Street. Hours earlier, a three-year-old boy died when fire raced through small frame home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wood, who escaped with three other children.

Students Dance For Charity

PICTON — Prince Edward Collegiate Institute students Tuesday danced for dollars in a marathon to earn funds for UNICEF.

The dance marathon, organized by class 'G' was held from 1 to 9 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Taped music ran the gamut from rock to "oldies but goodies" as the couples took the floor for the festival.

Each dancer solicited pledges per hour for the marathon with prizes offered to the students' collecting the most funds.

Gets New Name

Former Loyalist College president, J. Donald Rutherford, now head of Old Sun Community College at Gleichen, Alta., was given the Indian name of Old Sun by elders of the Blackfoot Band at the traditional initiative opening ritual of the college for the fall semester. The college on the Blackfoot Reserve was established three years ago to provide post-secondary education for Indian people in their own philosophy. Old Sun was one of the senior chiefs of the Blackfoot Confederacy at the time of Crowfoot and was head of the All Medicine Band. Mr. Rutherford is a graduate of Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto.

Blind Entertained

Miss Lynn Woodhouse, accompanied by Mrs. Gordon, at the piano, entertained at the White Cane Club meeting this week with vocal solos and guitar selections. One minute's silence was observed in honor of Art Babbs, recently-deceased member. For the first time, the club had a scribe present to take minutes of a meeting. It belongs to John Warren, a Loyalist College student who recently acquired the dog.

Delegates Selected

Delegates from Hastings riding to the annual Ontario convention of the Liberal Party in Windsor Feb. 8, were selected at a meeting in Madoc. In all, 13 delegates and alternates were chosen. They are Duncan Campbell, Richard Rankotia, Don Hodgson, Jim Watson, Shane Weymond, Cy Courneya, Helen and Jim Carruthers, Gerald Ketcheson, Margaret Wright and Ron Foster.

Councillor Says Election Indecision 'Lot of Bunk'

AMELIASBURGH — Ameliasburg Township councillor Stan Goodfellow says the reluctance of several reeves and deputy-reeves in Prince Edward County to declare their candidacy plans in the coming elections is "a lot of bunk."

"I think if they know what they are going to do they should announce it," says the councillor.

"Its not a checker game. We owe it to the people to tell them," he said.

Mr. Goodfellow of Goodfellow Insurance Ltd. RR 2, Consecon, has announced plans to seek re-election.

The councillor referred to recent reports stating Ameliasburgh reeve Russell Thompson is saying he was undecided if he'd seek re-election.

He said reeve Thompson announced three weeks ago during a township meeting that he would not run for re-election.

At a meeting Friday, deputy reeve of Ameliasburgh Roger Redner, said he would seek the reeveship said councillor Goodfellow.

He noted Ameliasburg councillor Arnold Weldon's plans for re-election he would contest the reeve's seat.

However, Mr. Goodfellow also stated Ameliasburg Township councillor Gordon Bateman announced he would run for deputy-reeve.

"This is the most important election in any municipality and I don't" said councillor Goodfellow referring to upcoming issues such as county government and the question of where the proposed new Bay Bridge will be located.

Ameliasburg reeve Russell Thompson Tuesday did state that he does not plan to seek re-election.

Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson has promised an announcement of his intentions later today.

Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster says he will make an announcement during the nomination period, November 7 to 21.

Athol reeve Keith Perry has an announcement at a later date.

Prince Edward County warden and reeve of Hallowell, Keith MacDonald, has announced he will seek re-election.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce, now in the Bahamas, is unavailable for comment on his plan.

Mail Truck Lands in Ditch

TWEED — A department of national defence truck carrying the Royal mail went off Highway 7 just east of Madoc early today and ended over into a ditch. The driver was unhurt and damage to the truck was $700. The mail on its way to Ottawa, was not damaged.

Police said Jean Michaud, 18, of Ottawa was driving the truck toward Ottawa when he swerved to avoid an animal on the road. The truck went out of control and into the north ditch.

Wishart Says He Will Investigate Corbyville Rescue Van Limitation

CORBYVILLE — Arthur Wishart, former attorney-general and now special advisor to Premier William Davis, began an investigation of practices surrounding Thurlow Township's rescue vehicle Tuesday.

Mr. Wishart described himself to reporters as a liaison between the premier and the "grass roots" and another of the legislature, Hastings MP Clarke Rollins escorted Mr. Wishart through the riding on his first hand the basis for requests of street lights at the Marysville overpass, lights at the intersection of Highways 7 and 14, a meeting with Bancroft area residents to discuss "some concerning items," and to attend a sod-turning ceremony in Deseronto for a new community centre. Mr. Wishart continues his tour today.

Mr. Wishart was particularly interested in the township's rescue van and limitations placed on it by Ontario Fire Marshall's office. When the van — the most complete-ly equipped rescue vehicle in the area — is called to the scene of an accident, staff must first have the permission of the local fire chief before rescue work can begin.

"A motorist could die waiting," said Mr. Wishart.

Of the 14 calls the rescue van has answered so far this year, it was outside its area on five occasions, only since last spring has the permission been given to go to other areas.

"Now that I know the problem, I'll follow it up," said Mr. Wishart. "We'll see what we can do about this."

At the request of Thurlow firemen, Mr. Wishart will investigate the feasibility of the rescue van be operating through the direction of the Ontario Provincial Police rather than through local fire department.

The rescue van may soon be severed from the fire department operation and will be at least and become an incorporated service.

Fire captain Bob Pearce said the incorporation — in the office since last June — and still waiting for final approval — is simply a form of protection for the firemen staffing the truck.

"If we made a drastic mistake at the scene of an accident, all the men on the truck could be sued," said Capt. Pearce.

The van will still be maintained and operated through the department, the only difference being its color and name on the side, he said.

Rescue Van Inspected

Former attorney-general Arthur Wishart — now special advisor to Premier William Davis — visited Thurlow Township Fire Department Tuesday to inspect the rescue van and discuss restrictions placed on it by the Ontario Fire Marshall's office. Mr. Wishart, armed with answers from fire department staff, said he will investigate the situation of where the van can and can't operate.

Hunting Season Confused With New Regulations

Deer hunters in the immediate Quinte area will have to learn new rules to follow this year — and they are a bit complicated.

The area is in what the department of natural resources calls Area 19. It includes the southern 12 townships of Hastings County, all but the northeast corner (Ashby Township) of Lennox and Addington County, all of Prince Edward County, and the northeastern corner of Peterborough County on the coast. It does not include the island by consulting a resources ministry map, available at any ministry offices and sporting goods stores in the area.

First, as usual, there is no deer hunting south of Highway 401 in Prince Edward County.

The ministry of natural resources recommends season lengths to county councils on which most councils generally take the recommendation. Prince Edward council, however, stands firm on a season for residents only. The ministry will not recommend this, however, since it feels Prince Edward hunters would get an unfair advantage by hunting their own country to themselves with access to all other areas where hunting is open to both residents and non-residents.

Second, the deer season this year in Area 19 is five days long — Nov. 4 to 9 inclusive. That's all.

But that's not all for moose. They remain open for the full two weeks to Nov. 16.

However:

Any person with a high powered rifle in Area 19 after the deer season opens must have a valid license.

A hunter cannot carry anything larger than a .22 rifle or a shotgun loaded with No. 2 shot in Area 19 after Nov. 4, unless he has a deer or moose license.

Finally, no hunter in Area 19 at any time may apply any but a rim-fire rifle. If using a shotgun, ammunition may be no larger than slugs. Furthermore, if he's using a shotgun he must load it himself. He can use shot, but nothing smaller than No. 1 buck.

Jack Stewart, conservation officer co-ordinator at the Belleville district office explains these regulations are necessary to plug loopholes in the law that arise when seasons overlap, as they do with deer, moose, bear and upland game.

"If a hunter has any question, he should get to him in his fall skills booklet which is plenty of natural resources office."

Cruiser Loses Window

A 21-year-old woman has been charged with willful damage and a liquor offence after a window in a police cruiser was broken.

Police said they answered a call at about 11:45 Thursday night at the Belleville General Hospital about a woman intoxicated and causing a disturbance.

Police arrived to take the woman back to the station and minister's Nursing Home office explains these regulations are necessary to plug loopholes in the law that arise when seasons

Reeve Steps Down

PICTON — Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson has announced he will not seek re-election this year.

Reeve Anderson served seven years as village councillor and seven years as reeve. He was warden of Prince Edward County in 1971.

He cited business pressures as one of the reasons in his decision to retire.

Sod-Turning Beginning of Deseronto Centre

DESERONTO — The flick of a spade by Mayor James Sharpe on Tuesday finally signalled the start of a project that has long preoccupied this community.

Giving nearby reality to the mayor's symbolic gesture was the earth-moving machinery scooping out the foundation for the town's first community centre.

The $325,000 - project is expected to be completed next May.

Hopes for a centre go back to the late 1960s when the town built its first skating rink facility — an outdoor rink.

In 1970 a fund was started and after slow growth, expected to show real achievement last year, under Jack Reid, building committee chairman.

That's when the project was a forgiveable federal - provincial winter works grant of $150,000 — forgivable if used through peak unemployment months. A provincial - community centres grant of at least $20,000 also is expected.

Meanwhile, the fund-raising committee is at work and is expected to raise about $75,000.

If needed, the town has Ontario Municipal Board approval to debenture for $150,000.

"But we're hoping we don't have to go that route," said Mr. Layfield.

The centre is being built on the site of a one-time Eddy Match company factory which burned down. The land was later given the town for a token sum. Concrete footings of the old factory might someday be used for tennis as recreational facilities expand around the centre.

The centre will have an ice surface 85-by-180 feet, with seating for about 400 plus standing room. Solid brick is only a few feet beneath the surface, which will be a natural foundation.

The rink should be in by January. Already, the single outdoor pad brings inquiries for use from as far away as Belleville and Picton, said Mr. Layfield.

"We're hoping the new arena will benefit the surrounding area," he said.

This includes Sophiasburgh, Richmond and Tyendinaga Townships, the Tyendinaga Mohawk reserve and Napanee.

Also participating in Tuesday's official ceremonies were Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings - Frontenac - Lennox, special advisor to Premier William Davis, Reeve George Foster, Clarence Slemon, campaign chairman, and Richard Moore, manager of Lloyd Vanders, a division of Eddy Match.

The construction contract was let to a Belleville firm, Bell-Con Engineering Ltd.

QUESTION: We are going to be visiting in northern Florida this year and may have an opportunity to drive west as far as New Orleans. This we would try to have to coincide with Mardi Gras. Can you provide any information on New Orleans?

ANSWER: Mardi Gras always falls on Shrove Tuesday, although the beginning of the celebrations start two weeks ahead of Mardi Gras.

Most Orleans, with a metropolitan area population of 1,046,814, is unique in its combination of Old World romance and modern progress. The French Quarter is known throughout the world for its shops, restaurants and many sites of historical interest. Canal Street, one of the widest business thoroughfares in the United States, divides this section — the original settlement — from the modern industrial part of the city. Imposing buildings, magnificent mansions and estates line De Tremie Avenue, St. Charles Avenue, The Garden District, with its floral jubilations, and such sections as Audubon Park and Versailles Boulevard present New Orleans at its gracious best.

City Park, Audubon Park, Bayou St. John and the Pontchartrain offer beautiful drives and numerous recreation opportunities. Pontchartrain Beach is a popular amusement park, and ... Pontchartrain Causeway, longest ... over highway bridge in the world, connects New Orleans with the northern lakeshore.

The city was founded in 1718 by Sieur de Bienville, French explorer, and was named in honor of the Duke of Orleans. In 1762 France, without regard for the wishes of the people, ceded the whole of this territory to Spain. In 1800 it was returned to France, but representatives of the government did not take possession until 1803, only 20 days before this territory was formally transferred to the United States as part of the Louisiana Purchase.

There is something about New Orleans that makes a special event super-special. The one event this is synonymous with the city and into which the whole world seems to fit is Mardi Gras. Meaning "Fat Tuesday," Mardi Gras is Shrove Tuesday, the last uproarious day before the austerities of Lent. Mardi Gras also refers to the entire fortnight before Ash Wednesday, when the season starts with a series of glittering private balls, the tempo of revelry increases with parades — or of these the last and the merriest streets and the masses of laughing, drinking, dancing people, most of them masked. The two largest parades, Rex, King of Carnival, in the morning and Comus, God of Revelry, by torchlight at night, are on the final day, Shrove Tuesday.

Scenic boat cruises offer diversified opportunities for sightseeing in harbor area, Mississippi River and surrounding bayou country where Jean Lafitte and his buccaneers hid. The Mark Twain Bayou tour departs daily from the Canal Street Docks at 11 a.m. and returns at 4. A harbor trip aboard the 2,000-passenger steamer President operates from the Canal Street Docks daily at 2:30. A dance cruise begins at 8 p.m. Saturday. The Voyageur leaves the Canal Street docks daily at 10 for a 5-hour trip to the bayou area.

The French Quarter, or Vieux Carre, comprising about 70 blocks between the river and Rampart Street, from Canal Street to Esplanade Avenue, formed the original settlement of New Orleans. Narrow streets, iron-lace dwellings with low-railed balconies, old shops and cafes characterize the area.

Jackson Square, in the heart of the French Quarter, is where early New Orleans welcomed her heroes and held great public meetings with celebrations.

Besides being the historic centre of the city, Jackson Square is also the Quarter's unofficial Left Bank. Surrounding its perimeter sidewalk artists set up shop, using the iron fence as a display rack. The gates are open daily 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.; no dogs allowed.

The Jazz Museum at Bourbon and Conti Streets, in the Royal Sonesta Hotel presents a collection of items and artifacts relating to the history of jazz. An enormous sleeping store, doorknobs and a stained glass window are the only reminders of Mahogany Hall, believed to have been the birthplace of this music. Recordings of the phases of jazz may be heard. Open Monday through Saturday 10 to 5: Closed Sunday and holidays.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN, CONSUMER ADVISOR

MAKE THIS A SAFE AND HAPPY HALLOWE'EN

There's a little of the youngster in all of us on Hallowe'en. That's one week of our lives to relive the glorious kind that comes from the delight of the Trick Tricks when we "dealt out" to them, and share their weirdly wonderful costumes.

This year, because of the sugar shortages, both parents and story-at-homes who greet the ghosties and ghoulies will probably put more emphasis on nuts, fruits and popcorn than on candies.

If you have a few candies for the youngsters, make them the wrapped kind so they'll be sure to be safe. And if your children bring candies home, examine them carefully or allow only ones that have been obviously factory-wrapped to be eaten. Probably hardly 10% of your precious store of sugar is really home-made candy, made grain or chocolate fudge.

And do save some change for the UNICEF boxes that children will bring to your door. It's nice to make Hallowe'en a special day for our Canadian kiddies — but even better to spread the happiness to needy children around the world.

Roast Beef Popular

MONTREAL (CP) — When Montreal, famed for its gastronomic delights, plays host to foreign or Canadian dignitaries, the menu is usually roast beef, says Charles Bay, the city's chief of protocol responsible for official functions.

Higher clothing and housing prices were the big item pushing up the consumer price index in September Statistics Canada reports. The index climbed to 170.6 in September from 169.9 in August. Based on 1961 prices equalling 100, the index level was 10.9 per cent above that of September 1973. (CP Newsmap)

Pants Still In Style

MONTREAL (CP) — City fashion designers say pants are still in style as long as they come as part of a suit. Most recommended were suits with tops and pants that could be worn together or mixed with other garments.

Administrative Snarls Delay Easing of Penalties on Pot

OTTAWA (CP) — Long-promised legislation to ease marijuana penalties has been delayed again by the government, this time because of administrative snarls and a low priority in cabinet.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde, who promised earlier the legislation would be before the Commons by the end of October, announced Tuesday it will be held back until sometime in November and perhaps longer.

But the delay has nothing to do with new scientific evidence that the drug may be more harmful than previously thought, he said in an interview.

Unspecified administrative problems and a feeling among cabinet ministers that the legislation need not be rushed are the reasons for the delay, he said.

Millhaven Nothing to Hide

MILLHAVEN, Ont. (CP) — Millhaven penitentiary has nothing to hide, says Director John Dewsett.

The prison, which houses 314 prisoners, most of them violent, is not a facility for first offenders or marijuana-smoking teenagers, the director explained during a five-hour tour of the institution this week.

Mr. Dewsett said 66 prisoners are segregated from the rest, 28 are considered protection cases, 24 are bound up by administrative problems or do not want to mix with the others and 14 are in solitary confinement.

The director, a former lieutenant-colonel in the Canadian Armed Forces, called solitary confinement "punitive dissociation."

Such treatment teaches prisoners to modify their behavior in accordance with institutional standards, he said.

The 183 guards at the prison feel more secure, said one guard during the tour.

Now: a new minimum wage in Ontario

Effective October 1st, 1974

Ontario's new minimum wage covers people employed in general industry, construction work, domestic service, ambulance service, funeral service, including students and learners.

If you or your employees fall into these categories, it is important for you to know what the law now requires.

People employed by agencies as domestics, and people working as funeral directors or embalmers must now be paid not less than $2.25 an hour. Learners in General industry must be paid at least $2.15 an hour during their first month of employment and at least $2.25 per hour thereafter. People employed in construction work or as construction site guards are now entitled to at least $2.50 an hour. There is no learner rate for the construction industry. Ambulance drivers, helpers, and first-aid attendants must now receive at least $108.00 per week or, if they work fewer than 48 hours a week, $2.25 an hour. Students under 18 who work 28 hours a week or less, or during school holidays, must receive at least $1.90 per hour.

When employees occupy a room or eat meals supplied by their employer, $9.00 per week for the room and $1.00 for each meal or $21.00 per week for meals or $30.00 a week for room and meals may be included when calculating the minimum wage.

As for overtime pay, until December 31, 1974, it will be 1½ times the regular pay after 48 hours a week. From January 1, 1975 on, the time-and-one-half rate will apply after 44 hours a week. And from January 1, 1975 on, there will be three more holidays with pay—New Year's Day, Victoria Day, and Thanksgiving Day—added to the current statutory holidays: Good Friday, Dominion Day, Labour Day, and Christmas.

Political-intelligence Plan Was Given OK by Mitchell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Nixon campaign aide Jeb Stuart Magruder has told the Watergate cover-up trial that John Mitchell approved the political-intelligence plan that resulted in the Watergate break-in.

Testifying Tuesday as the third prosecution witness, Magruder quoted Mitchell as saying: "Let's give them the $250,000 and see what they come up with."

Later, Magruder said Mitchell was shown the results of the first break-in at Democratic national committee headquarters and expressed dissatisfaction. A second break-in was attempted June 17, 1972, but the burglars were caught.

Mitchell, attorney-general during the first term of former president Richard Nixon, is one of five men charged with conspiring to block the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

The other defendants are former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, former assistant attorney-general Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson, one-time lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee.

Magruder, deputy director of the Nixon campaign committee, said how Mitchell, who headed the committee until July 1, 1972, twice rejected Gordon Liddy's proposals for political-intelligence plans that included break-ins, wiretapping, kidnaping of demonstration leaders and using prostitutes to compromise Democrats.

He described Mitchell's reaction to Liddy's initial $1-million proposal as "very negative."

Liddy came back with a $500,000 plan and, once again, Mitchell rejected it.

But, Magruder said, Mitchell approved the plan after it was scaled down to $250,000.

Democratic headquarters in the Watergate office building were entered on Memorial Day weekend in late May, 1972. Subsequently, photographs and bugs planted on telephones a few days later, Magruder said: "I received two packages from Mr. Liddy. . . . Each package contained synopses of telephone conversations at Democratic national committee headquarters and photographs of documents."

He took them home and read them "and I realized they were full of his value."

Liddy was summoned to Mitchell's office, said Magruder, and the material was shown to the former attorney-general.

Mitchell was "dissatisfied with the product Liddy was producing from wiretaps and photographs," Magruder said.

He quoted Liddy as explaining "with some embarrassment, that one of the bugs was not working and one was on the wrong phone.

He said Liddy promised "to correct the problem."

Was the problem corrected?

"We learned on the morning of June 17, that Liddy had not corrected the problem, but created a problem," replied Magruder.

That was the morning that five men were arrested inside Democratic party headquarters.

Archer OFL Head

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — David Archer, Ontario Federation of Labor president for the last 16 years, easily won re-election Tuesday at the federation's annual convention.

Mr. Archer, of Toronto, beat Sam Sharpe of Sarnia 814 to 368.

Secretary-treasurer Terry Meagher was renamed to his post by acclamation.

RESERVES FALL

The value of Australia's official overseas reserves fell by $128 million in August. This follows a drop of $221 million in July. Overseas reserves total $3.134 billion.

Growth Predicted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A senior official of the Royal Bank of Canada predicted Tuesday that interest rates in Canada will come down at least two percentage points and that the economy may experience real growth of three or four per cent in 1975.

W. Douglas M. Gardiner, deputy chairman and executive vice-president, said in an interview that the prime interest rate in the United States is expected to drop to 10 per cent by the year end, which should be followed by an interest-rate drop in Canada in the new year. Canada's prime interest rate is 11% per cent.

84 OIL SPILLS

The United States Coast Guard has reported a total of 60,000 gallons in 84 oil spills in the Upper Hudson River and tributaries from Oswiagian to Westport, during the first half of 1974.

Inflation Hits Forces

Defence Minister James Richardson proposes to cut the size of Canada's inflation hit armed forces by limiting recruitment lag. The minister says he intends to create a smaller well-equipped elite force. However, some top officers disagree with Mr. Richardson's solution to the problem of increasing costs. Gen. Jacques Dextraze, chief of defence staff, says he feels the forces cannot perform effectively with less than authorized strength. Rear-Admiral D. S. Boyle, commander of Maritime Command, says the forces will be unable to honor Canada's commitments unless maintained at present strength.

Graph shows the strength of Canada's armed forces, both authorized and actual, from 1970 to Sept. 30, 1974. Despite the reduction in strength over the last few years, the defence department's budget has risen to $2.35 billion for the 1974-75 fiscal year, from $1.8 billion in 1969-70. But although the department is spending more, it is receiving less of the total federal budget in percentage terms — down to 18.7 per cent of the budget in 1974-75 from 15 percent in 1969-70. Big Land Assembly Under Way

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Tuesday that the Ontario government is concealing the purpose of a land assembly in Etobicoke-Humber Township, about 25 miles east of Brockville.

Mr. Nixon asked Housing Minister Donald Irvine to disclose any information the government has about options to purchase "what may be as much as 10,000 acres of land."

Mr. Irvine said he does not know for what purpose the land is being assembled nor the identity of persons acquiring options on the farmland.

Flowers Abound In South Africa

CAPE TOWN (CP) — As the last of the autumn colors fade in Canada, winter has ended south of the equator and wild flowers are blooming in pink, mauve, red, orange, white or blue.

While most of northern Africa is noted for its abundant floral variety, the Cape Peninsula alone, much smaller than Prince Edward Island, boasts 2,022 varieties.

South Africa, smaller than the province of Quebec, has 18,000 species of floral plants, compared with 4,000 for all of Canada. Of the 200 natural orders of plants, 140 can be found there.

Many of the flowers are familiar to Canadians. Our geraniums are derived from South Africa's wild pelargoniums and gladioli are indigenous there. Iridias bloom in shades of yellow, mauve, orange and apricot as well as white and iris and poppies prosper.

Farmers use blue, white or yellow lupins as a fertilizer crop and arum lilies and lilies bloom in damp spots along railway tracks and roads. Gerberas, montbretias, freesias and orchids, available only from florists in Canada, are there for the plucking and bonus plants like amaryllis and succulents grow freely.

The strelitzia, also called the bird of paradise flower or crane flower, looks like the neck of a bird with a crest of long, red-orange, feathery petals and an open beak of greyish blue.

Early explorers and botanists made native African flowers known in Europe a century ago.

The protea is unknown to most first-time visitors and one variety, the sugarbush, is the country's national flower.

The botanist Linnaeus named it after Proteus, the Greek god who could assume any shape, for they come in many varieties.

They may be dwarf plants with buried stems and leaves and heads above ground or may be as big as trees. Flowers come in all colors, flat or trumpet-shaped, tiny or as big as 13-inch soup plates.

As in other countries, wild flowers were endangered through burning, farming, grazing and overenthusiastic picking. Large tracts of land have been set aside as nature reserves and it is against the law to pick flowers within 300 feet of the centre of any road, resulting in brilliant displays resulting in brilliant displays along the highways.

The reserves can be visited by sightseeing bus, but a rental car gives more freedom for stopping to take pictures and to enjoy the clean air, the calm and quiet, sometimes broken by scampering, chattering monkeys.

A 16-day trip through the wild flower country north of Cape Town can be varied with fishing villages, vineyards, valleys and rivers.

Paarl and Stellenbosch are pretty wine towns and in Thibagh there is a street of restored Cape Dutch homes. Franschhoek, settled by French Huguenots, has a handsome Huguenot museum and a first-rate French restaurant.

At Stellenbosch a former home, garages and distillery have been converted into a three-star hotel filled with antiques furniture, paintings, oriental rugs, bowls of fresh flowers and surrounded by flower beds.

If time is short, it isn't necessary to leave Cape Town to see the wild flowers. Most varieties, which are labelled, can be seen in the National Botanical Gardens in the suburb of Kirstenbosch. The terrain is varied with a stream forming a pool and the gardens climb up the back of Table Mountain.

As everywhere else, sniffing the fragrance can bring surprises. You may disturb a hummingbird or some sucking bee or the little frogs that live deep in the arum lilies—all the better to trap insects.

If you are too late for the spring color, summer comes before Christmas bringing other gifts—berries, apricots, peaches, nectarines, figs, litchis, melons, plums, pears and melons.

Set Up Disaster Unit

LONDON (AP) — A special disaster unit to spearhead and co-ordinate Britain's response to disasters, man-made or natural, has been announced by Judith Hart, minister a foverseas development. It has the task of making Britain's relief efforts as rapid and effective as possible.

As the bleak greys of winter move in on Canada, thousands of species of flowers are beginning to bloom in South Africa. Among the more exotic of wild African flowers is the strelitzia, or Bird of Paradise flower. The flower has a long green "neck", a feathery crest of orange-red petals and an open greyish - blue "beak". (CP Photo)

Paraplegic Body Finds Many Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty years ago, finding gainful employment for paraplegics was no problem, says Gaetan Bourgouin of the Canadian Paraplegic Association.

"There were no paraplegics—they used to die from bladder infections," he explained. "Before penicillin, if you were injured in the spine, it was only a question of time."

Today, it is a question of spreading the message that people in wheelchairs can work alongside able-bodied employees.

Armed with a $50,000 federal Manpower grant, the Canadian Paraplegic Association has been doing just that for almost a year.

Since its "outreach" program began, it has made 50 placements in Montreal bothnesses and has about 50 companies on its list of "suitable employers," said Mr. Bourgouin, co-ordinator of the program and its chief salesman.

Mr. Bourgouin, himself has been confined to a wheelchair for the last 25 years because of a hockey accident when he was 15.

He accepted the task of convincing employers to hire paraplegics after many successful years of active participation in business and industry.

Mr. Bourgouin estimated that of about 1,000 people in wheelchairs in Montreal, 40 per cent are gainfully employed.

The rest are mainly on welfare, with some surviving on workmen's compensation or a court settlement from car accident claim.

"I have the strong feeling that all of them would like to work," he said. "But being away from active society for a while, many hesitate to rejoin it.

"Unfortunately, you can't hand out motivation like you do vitamin pills. But hearing about a program like this can give many of them that push back into society they need."

With a list of employees, Mr. Bourgouin then must attempt to find employers, who normally shy away from handicapped workers.

"After an employer understands what a paraplegic is, he's more inclined to go for the idea.

"In the beginning, some hired them on a temporary basis. Now, many of them have asked us for more people and the placements are mainly permanent."

Michael Martin, plant manager at P.M. Wright Electrical Co., which has employed people in wheelchairs to assemble electrical parts for about 13 years, noted their attendance records are excellent and that they are usually more manually dexterous than the able-bodied.

"The results are all positive," he said.

LOTS FOR BUILDERS

TOWN OF TRENTON

Ontario Housing Corporation offers to builders serviced building lots for the construction of 29 detached houses in the Town of Trenton.

Proposals are invited from builders interested in leasing the land for the purpose of building houses under OHC's Home Ownership Made Easy (H.O.M.E.) Plan.

The lots are located in the northeast section of Trenton, about 1½ miles from the centre of the town.

Builders' mortgage applications are subject to approval by Ontario Mortgage Corporation which currently makes mortgage financing available to successful applicants at 9% per cent interest on a five-year term with an amortization period of 35 years.

OHC is encouraging the production of basic, no-frill housing which conforms to local municipal requirements at prices within the reach of moderate-income families.

Prices submitted by builders will be measured against OHC's "target prices" which are based on current appraised building costs in Trenton.

Builders may obtain a proposal package at the third floor offices of OHC at 60 Bloor Street West, Toronto, or at Trenton Town Hall, 65 Dundas Street West, Trenton.

In order to be considered, proposals must be received at OHC's head office, 101 Bloor Street West, Toronto M5S 1P8 by 2:00 p.m. Thursday, November 21, 1974.

Fear of Witches Once Widespread

CHICAGO (AP) — These days witches are in the news generally only around Hallowe'en. But while witches, goblins and ghosts may not be taken too seriously in the present sophisticated age, to our forefathers they were real.

In fact, some people were even afraid to yawn because of them.

In the Middle Ages people believed evil spirits made them yawn and then jumped down their victims' throats while their mouths were open, according to World Book Encyclopedia. So people covered their mouths more for protection than politeness.

Those who couldn't stifle their yawns and were invaded by the spirits had to have them and the sickness they brought exercised, or driven out, usually through a combination of commands, prayers and ceremonies.

Throughout history, the myth of magic, evil spirits and witchcraft led to the persecution of thousands of innocent people, mostly women. Some historians estimate the Christian Church put about 300,000 women to death for witchcraft between 1400 and the late 1700s. Many suffered terrible torture until they confessed to being witches to avoid further torment.

There were many tests to determine whether a woman was a witch. Examiners sometimes searched for "devil's marks." These were moles, scars or other bodily marks that could be stuck with a pin without causing pain. These marks were an indication of guilt.

In another test, the suspect's arms and legs were tied together and she was thrown into deep water. If she floated, she was considered guilty of being a witch. If she drowned, she was innocent.

During the 1600s and 1700s a deep fear of witchcraft swept most of Europe. Thousands suspected of being witches were tried and executed. Courts allowed gossip and rumor as evidence. In many cases, children testified against their own parents.

American colonists brought the belief with them from England and suspected witches suffered persecution. In Massachusetts during 1692, the colonists executed 20 persons as witches and imprisoned 150 others.

During the mid-1800s, a new interest in witchcraft occurred in Europe and the United States. As a result, witchcraft festivals called Witches' Sabbaths take place four times a year. The most important festival occurs on Halloween.

Geraldton Is Proposed As Provincial Capital

GERALDTON, Ont. (CP) — Geraldton a provincial capital? Ed Deibel thinks the town of 5,100 miles northeast of Thunder Bay has strong possibilities.

Mr. Deibel, 61, a North Bay postal owner, is trying to sell residents in the area the idea of establishing a new province called Northern Ontario.

He suggests Geraldton, a former gold mining town, would be a fine place for the seat of its provincial government.

Mr. Deibel is selling an old dream with new fervor on the main streets of small towns that stretch 1,000 miles from Fort Frances to North Bay.

He contends the time has come for Northern Ontario to separate from the wealthy southern areas of the provinces and says the new province would prosper with its resources.

Mr. Deibel said Geraldton, a place that "doesn't have anything, really," could be built from scratch into a sophisticated provincial capital.

Geraldton likes the idea too. Last year, Mayor Harry Assad was complaining to provincial authorities that his town's population dropped from 3,200 to 2,900 after the closing of the last of 14 gold mines five years ago.

Now the town, which Mr. Assad describes as an area centre for education and medical services, has crept back up to 3,200. Most of the labor force is involved in the lumber industry.

Mr. Deibel said he is convinced that the Ontario government can be persuaded to hold a plebiscite on northern secession in 1975, election year.

He proposes to hand Queen's Park a list of 25,000 Northerners supporting his demand for a referendum and said such a list will leave Premier William Davis with no choice but to do the democratic thing.

Said Mr. Assad: "I can't even see why the 25,000 (signatures) are needed. If there's a request for a vote, why not have a vote?"

Mr. Deibel has been on the road in his green station wagon since Sept. 9 making a tour of 35 communities from North Bay to the Manitoba border. He formed a New Province Committee last year.

The idea of a province of Northern Ontario has most often in the past been the ultimate threat made by the north in attempts to force concessions from the south.

A Sudbury mayor used the threat of secession in 1965 to win support for a plan to process nickel at the source. Newspapers picked up the theme again in the 1970s.

Mayor Walter Assad of Thunder Bay said he doesn't think his city will look kindly on Mr. Deibel's idea because Thunder Bay has experienced "tremendous progress" over the last few years and residents are satisfied.

Mayor Merle Dickerson of North Bay put his name at the top of Mr. Deibel's petition. Mr. Dickerson said he doesn't favor a separate province but that the question should be settled once and for all in a vote.

Timmins Alderman Don Collins said he doesn't expect his city will be excited about the plan but that Mr. Deibel may have chosen a good time to collect petition signatures. "The north," Mr. Collins said, "is upset."

Mayor Ronald Irwin of Sault Ste. Marie, who is keeping a list of more than 100 resolutions collected from across Northern Ontario last August, said there has been enough progress made on the issues to prevent the north from wanting to separate.

Mr. Deibel said if the province ignores the petition asking for a vote, he will use whatever weight his New Province Committee has to influence the next provincial election.

Housing Scarce

MONTREAL (CP) — Housing officials from downtown university campuses here have become alarmed at the vast shortage of low-rental accommodation for students. Much of the student housing around the downtown campuses, of McGill and Sir George Williams universities has disappeared with the wrecker's ball and been replaced with expensive high-rises.

Alberta Will Need 100,000 Workers

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta, already facing a labor shortage, will need an additional 100,000 new workers in the next two years, says Jim Lockhart, chief economist for Alberta with the federal department of manpower and immigration.

Alberta's booming economy, spearheaded by the energy business, created 3,000 new jobs in the last 12 months—a 7.57 per cent increase in the labor force—but there were still 14,500 vacancies in the second quarter of this year.

Demand for workers is strong in building construction, service industries, retail trade and areas in construction projects, Mr. Lockhart said.

The $1-billion Syncrude oil sands project in northeastern Alberta will need 4,000 workers by 1976. The petrochemical development in Medicine Hat is another area construction projects will need an additional 1,000 workers.

Projects such as these multiply job openings through secondary employment.

Mr. Lockhart said the school system is expected to provide the bulk of the new workers, expecting 60,000 graduates into the provincial labor force between now and 1976.

Other sources of new workers include 12,000 persons, mostly married women, re-entering the labor force; between 6,500 and 7,500 working-age immigrants in each of the next three years; interprovincial migration; and foreign workers on temporary work visas.

The demand for workers extends from unskilled, to semi-skilled, skilled and professional.

The Technical Service Council, a non-profit job placement co-operative serving 500 Canadian employers, says job openings for accountants, engineers, scientists and other professionals increased 18 per cent in Canada during the second quarter of 1974—most of it directly linked to Alberta resource development.

The provincial government, which has singled out manpower as a problem facing provincial development, is co-operating with industry, Canada Manpower and organized labor in expanding training programs for technical and vocational areas.

"We want to upgrade the technical skills of Albertans and thus create more opportunities for skilled workers," said Labor Minister Bert Hohol.

The labor shortage in Alberta has created a laborer's market, with workers taking the better-paying jobs, leaving many minimum-wage jobs vacant.

Foreman Loses Crown in Eighth Round

Muhammad Ali Is Having Visions of $20 Million Payday Now

MUHAMMAD ALI

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Muhammad Ali, "All, All" thundered his close 10,000 African supporters into delirium tonight as the undisputed heavyweight boxing champion of the world, Foreman.

Defeat came at 2:28 of the eighth round of a strong, stirred Foreman, one of the most devastating punchers boxing has ever seen.

Friends say Ali, 32 and past his fighting prime, would be wise to retire now in all his glory and arrogance.

"Now they'll have to pay me $20 million to fight," Ali boasted.

If he doesn't retire, waiting in the wings is rugged Joe Frazier, the former champion who beat Ali in one fight and lost to him in another.

"Foreman fought a stupid fight," said Frazier at ringside in the vast 20th of May Stadium after the early-morning match.

He should never have let Ali play him on the ropes as he did."

Frazier said he wants another shot at Ali. "I'm ready when he is. I am sure I can win the next time."

Foreman, 25, who in five years has knocked out 37 opponents, said he also is waiting in line.

"The next time—and I hope there is a next time—I hope to fight a smarter fight," he said. "I hope to follow (manager) Dick Sadler's instructions better."

The 220-pounder sought to demolish Ali who beat Foreman at his own game, and looked good doing it.

And now it is Frazier who appears to have the next crack in this game of musical chairs among three black American fighters—Ali, Frazier and Foreman. Another likely potential threat are Teofilo Stevenson, a Cuban giant whom Fidel Castro may not permit to leave home, and unbeaten pro Duane Bobick, a former U.S. Olympian such as Ali and Foreman.

"I told you he was no good," I showed you." Ali said afterward in the dressing room.

"He's slow and awkward. I'm not sure he deserves to fight me again. He would have no chance."

Foreman, never before beaten or knocked out, said:

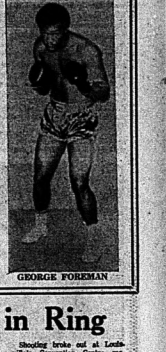
"You can't badmouth a man who beat you. He is a good champion. He deserves everybody's respect. He is a credit to his family, his race and to boxing.

"He was the fight, but I cannot admit he beat me. Nobody loses in a fight like this."

Each of the fighters received a record $5 million.

It was a good fight, but Ali was the smarter and the better man, and from the fifth round on it became a matter of when Foreman's trunk-like legs would fold.

All taunted Foreman during the playing of both the American and Zaire national anthems, and he continued to spar.



GEORGE FOREMAN

insults at the champion in the fast-paced early rounds.

All met the in-boxing Foreman with two quick shots to the head as they answered the bell. Foreman pursued him. All played the ropes, ducked Foreman's vicious swings and struck back.

In the second and third rounds, Foreman landed some good shots, but All just blinked and kept striking back.

By the fifth round, All's strategy of holding lying on the ropes and letting Foreman fall away at a darting ghost began paying dividends. The power appeared to drain from George's massive arms and the steel slip from his legs.

Then in the eighth, already staggering and and swinging at air, Foreman caught a right as All flipped out of a clinch.

Foreman veered unsteadily. All added a left and followed it with a victor right.

Foreman, seemingly dazed, went down and took the count of 10 from referee Zack Clayton before he could regain his feet.

"I didn't hear the count; I never listen to the count," Foreman said, "I wasn't hurt. Zack gave me a signal to stay down. Then he crossed his arms. Then he motioned for me to get up, so I guess I was too slow."

The fight was staged at 4 a.m. local time—10 p.m. EST Tuesday—to fit prime viewing periods in North America from which came most of Ali's revenue.

It will take days to end purses results, to sort out the financial picture. But the fight may gross as much as $30 million.

All, a descendant of a Kentucky slave and a former Olympic champion, began his pro career in 1960 and won the heavyweight crown in 1964 with a sensational knockout of Sonny Liston.

His crown was wrested from him in 1967 because he refused to take the military oath, claiming he was a Muslim minister. He was put on the shelf for 3½ years, his title vacated.

They said he would never come back. But they didn't know All.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1974

Champ Describes Foreman:

'He Punched Like a Sissy'

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Muhammad Ali, the winner, bended and complained. He looked as angry as a vindicated man can when he has proved his own rightness with a resounding haymaker.

Foreman, the loser, talked mildly and reasonably.

The roles were old and familiar. Here were reversed if the verdict had been different.

All, world heavyweight champion again, couldn't find anything nice to say about Foreman. And Foreman couldn't find anything mean to say against All.

Said All of Foreman:

"He was scared; he was intimidated. If did it ; I said I'd do it, but did you listen? I said I'd stick him and that he didn't like to get hit and that I'm the greatest heavyweight of all time, but did you listen?

"I didn't dance. I wanted to make him lose his power. He punched like a sissy. I stayed on the ropes. Staying on the ropes is a beautiful thing for a fighter. You think when I'm on the ropes I'm doing bad."

All looked peeved in victory. He had told everyone how hard he had trained, how he had hit the heavy bag again and how Foreman was a "mummy." But no one wanted to bet on him, it seemed, and all the talk was about Foreman's awesome power.

"I am the greatest of all time and you thought a scared amateur would win," he said.

Foreman's sentiments tinkled while All's clanged.

"Nobody lost," Foreman said, pushing the facts a little. "We have built some real bridges here. When the competition is clean, there is none to fear. If there is a good fight, there's no loser. . . ."

Of All, who rolled his eyes weirdly and mouthed a curse after the flaying of the star spangled banner, Foreman said: "He's a true American, a great gentleman and a champion."

"If you don't have anything good to say about somebody, then you shouldn't say anything at all."

Of the punch that took him out, Foreman said it was one he never saw.

All the Action Not in Ring

CANADIAN PRESS

Adding machines were clicking frantically today as somewhere, someone compiled figures on closed-circuit revenues from the hundreds of locations that showed the Muhammad All-George Foreman fight.

Toronto, with 14,500 spectators in Maple Leaf Gardens, drew one of the largest crowds. The fight also was shown at two other locations there. Atlanta had 11,500; Inglewood, Calif., 10,138; Bloomington, Minn., 10,000; Houston 9,500; Detroit 10,000; New York, 20,000...at up to $25 per ticket.

In Canada, four in two cities were disappointed by local equipment breakdowns.

About 5,000 fans at Vancouver's Pacific National Exhibition missed the winning knockout when a faulty tube blacked out the telecast after the sixth round.

The angry crowd was placated by an announcement that admissions ranging from $10 to $20 would be refunded and the equipment was later repaired in time to show a replay of the knockout.

In Saint John, N.B., about 500 people had their money refunded after local equipment failed to function at all during the fight.

Reports from Montreal, Edmonton, Toronto and Hull, Que., indicated that local showings went off without much trouble except for some cases of poor sound reproduction and fuzzy pictures.

In Kalamazoo, Mich., patrons began throwing bottles and chairs when the picture failed but the disturbance was quieted when refunds for the $15 admission charge were promised.

Technical failures caused 1,200 spectators to miss the third through seventh rounds at a theatre in Milwaukee, resulting in "several highly agitated ticket buyers," according to a police spokesman.

Shooting broke out at Louisville's Convention Center tournaments before the start of the bout, leaving one man dead, his brother and a son critically injured in Jefferson County, Ky., police said the tragedy followed an argument over a bet on the match.

But in counties other locations, the picture was clear and bright, and the verdict was cheered wildly by pro-All fans. There was even a school in Nairobi, Kenya — 11-6 only black African nation to take custody, no doubt — where native spent the equivalent of $7 to $14 on a ticket.

Boxing enthusiasts in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas watched the battle on television in the comfort of their living rooms as it was telecast to the area from Monterrey, Mexico — nearly 300 miles south-via cable television hookup for which subscribers pay a monthly fee.

MUM ON REPORTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Home run king Hank Aaron declined Tuesday night to confirm reports that he would be dealt by Atlanta Braves to the Milwaukee Brewers to play his 22nd season of major league baseball in 1975. "I'd like to finish my career wherever I'm wanted," said Aaron, who said he had not yet talked with anybody in the Milwaukee organization about his future.

HEARING SCHEDULED

MONTREAL (CP) — A hearing will be held in Philadelphia Thursday by National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell into the cases of two suspended Flyers—forwards Jim Schmit and Bob Kelly. The two were handed indefinite suspensions as a result of a brawl last Friday night in Oakland during a game against California Seals. They were ejected from the game along with six other players as a result of the bench-clearing episode in the third period.

High School Soccer Playoffs

Bayside and Moira Move Up

Bayside Secondary School Juniors and Moira seniors each moved into Bay of Quinte soccer finals, Tuesday.

In the junior game between Bayside and Kenanoxe Catholic College, a goal by Ron Sauve with eight minutes remaining in regulation time gave Bayside a 3-2 win.

Sean Clowater was the big gun for Bayside as he picked up the remaining goals for the winners.

Nicholson opened the scoring early in the game as Francois Meilleur took a pass from Chris Brown and found the mark.

On the strength of Clowaters two goal Bayside held a 2-1 lead starting the second half.

Nicholson pressed from the start of the second half. The work finally paid off as Phil Hurley tied the score.

Bayside will meet the winner of the Moira, Trenton game to be held Friday in Trenton.

In the Senior games, an outstanding performance by forward Dave Powell gave Moira a 5-1 victory over Centennial.

Powell counted three goals for the winners.

Moira led at the half by a score of 3-0 as Powell picked up a goal from Russ Maitland added the other.

Centennial had several good chances in the first half but were unable to capitalize.

Centennial's best chance came as Keith Parry was awarded a penalty shot with 11 a Moira defender was charged with handling the ball.

Parry lashed the ball off the cross bar..

Powell scored the final goal of his hat-trick at the 19 minute mark of the half as the shot eluded Centennial goalie Steve Coulder.

Maitland scored his second of the game to finish off the Moira scoring as he headed a perfect pass from Parry.

Glen Dalter broke Moira goalie Jim Asselstine's bid for a shut out with 19 minutes to play.

Moira will meet the winners of the B.C.I. Brighton match to be held on Thursday.

Lancers Take on New Look for '74 Season

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Loyalist Lancers Men's Basketball squad swings into regular season action in the Eastern Ontario College Athletic Association this weekend and it looks like it's going to be a good year.

The "new" Lancers are looking like the ball team they should. They are referred to as the "new" Lancers because this year they have many new players, a new attitude and a couple of new approaches to the game itself.

"I think this should be a good year," said coach, Rob Stinson, "things look like they're shaping up well."

Of the 15 members on the team seven are new. But the loss that is returning will make up for any lack of experience. Coming back to the club this season are first stringers Bill Kyle, Jim Sutton and Dave Colbourne, starter, Bob Clowester, and Carl Ward and Mike Finnigan.

Kyle, a real poinsigster with a natural ability to break to the boards, was the clubs second highest scorer last year with a 13.3 point average.

Colmer balanced out the Loyalist offensive boomer at his height and size. He's tough to move out from under the boards, but his real asset is his outside shot.

The man to watch under the boards, both offensively and defensively, is returnee Jim Sutton. He hauled down more rebounds than any other player on the club last season. He scored all his points from under the boards and averaged 11.9 points per game.

Bob Clowester, a guard, was the key ball handler for the Lancers last year. He moved the ball up the court and set up the majority of the plays. Clowester also averaged 4.4 points a game.

Also able to move the ball and a great defensive asset is Carl Ward. Ward's long reach and quick reflexes will come in handy with Loyalist's new offensive game plan.

Mike Finnigan, another guard, also is back, but he will only be staying for half the year. Finnigan graduates at Christmas time.

The gap left by Finnigan could be filled by Harvey Sharpe. Although Sharpe isn't at the college right new, rumors have it that he will be returning for the second semester at Christmas. He led the Lancers and the league in scoring last year.

A big asset up front is the addition of Peter Scott. Considered "a fine ball player," by coach Stinson, Scott has nailed down a starting spot in his first year at the college. His height and shooting ability should make him as all round threat to the opposition.

"All in all we're ready for the new season," said Stinson "the guys have come together early, they seem to have a whole new attitude about things."

In Loyalist's first exhibition game, two weeks ago, they whipped Georgian 89-78. They then won their annual old boys exhibition game mainly using their second stringers.

"We've got a new offence," said Stinson, "and though we haven't got it down pat yet it appears its be working very well."

The Lancers are using a 1-2-2 offence. They don't have a centre with this particular offence, but they have a forward on, either side of the key in the low post position. The fifth player is a guard. He controls the offence and calls the plays much the same as a quarterback does in football. There it takes a particularly good ball handler to work at the guard, or pivot position, and the pivot man must also show a lot of ball-handling since he is under the most pressure.

Stinson is still grooming players for the guard spot, but he says he has a couple of players who can fill the position. As for the four low post spots they are pretty well tied down by Kyle, Sutton, Colmer and Scott.

Loyalist will play in the Eastern Ontario College Athletic Association circuit. This year they have to face some more team than they did last year. The addition to the league is Durham College, Oshawa. The teams returning to the league are Lawrence, Kingston, Sir Sandford Flemming, Peterborough, Algonquin, Ottawa, Sir Sandford Flemming, Nepean and Loyalist. Last season the Lancers finished third in the league behind Kingston and Ottawa.

Loyalist opens their regular schedule with a game against St. Lawrence this Friday, Nov. 1, then they travel to Oshawa to play a game against Algonquin on November 22.

Kingston Defeats Lions 6-5

Sparked by Billy Jenkins who fired three goals and earned two assists, Kingston Guernsey-Teal Estate slapped Belleville Lions 6-5 in an Ontario Minor Hockey Association Major Midget match, Tuesday.

Playing at Memorial Arena, Jenkins got a 5-4 lead in the final 20 minutes but the victory took the sting in the well-played Triple A contest with two unanswered goals.

Paul Hayman was a two-goal shooter for the Belleville squad. Sandy Waterson scored once and picked up three assists while single goals were supplied by Rob Chase and Clint Riendeau.

VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Forward Pierre Jarry has been sent to the Detroit Red Wings' Norfolk, Va., farm club after appearing in one of the Wings' eight National Hockey League games this year. Canucks Gain Share of First VANCOUVER (CP) — A to week ago, it was Detroit Red Wings playing Cinderella in the National Hockey League. Today, it's Vancouver Canucks' turn.

The Red Wings also-rans last season along with the Canucks, made a surprising appearance in first place in the Division 2 standings a week ago and today the Canucks hold a share of first place in Division 1 after sweeping the Red Wings 7-0 Tuesday night.

Four other NHL games originally scheduled for Tuesday night had been rescheduled due to areas being committed to closed-circuit telecasts of the Muhammad Ali-George Foreman heavyweight fight.

Goalie Gary Smith had an easy time picking up his second shutout of the season in Vancouver nets, stopping only 17 shots while the Canucks bombarded Detroit netminder Jim Rutherford with 38 shots.

That was in sharp contrast to Smith's first shutout against New York Rangers when New York outshot the Canucks 33-15 and Vancouver emerged with a 1-0 win on Garry Monahan's goal.

Monahan, acquired from Toronto Maple Leafs in an Oct. 11 trade, again helped out in the scoring department Tuesday night with an unassisted goal midway in the second period.

Chris Oddleifson Paulin Bordeleau, Leon Rochefort, Andre Boudrias, Dennis Vevergaert and Bobby Lalonde each scored once.

The Canucks now share the Division 1 lead with Chicago Black Hawks. Each has 12 points but the Hawks have played one game fewer.

The Hawks, rested after their 13-goal weekend barrage, go against the Canadiens in Montreal tonight.

Meanwhile, New York Islanders, another Cinderella squad, will attempt to widen their Division 1 lead over crosstown rival New York Rangers while California Golden Seals meet the Flames in Atlanta and Boston Bruins visit Minnesota North Stars.

WFL Power Play

Gary Davidson Squeezed Out

CHICAGO (AP) — A power play by Chicago Fire owner Tom Prince left Gary Davidson ousted as commissioner of the World Football League, but the league, itself, afloat for at least the rest of this season.

At an emergency meeting Tuesday, Davidson tendered his immediate resignation as czar of the circuit he founded in opposition to the National Football League.

Donald J. Regan, WFL general counsel, was named league executive director in lieu of a commissioner, but for the time being the league obviously will be directed by its six-member executive committee.

Davidson will continue in WFL operations as a member of the executive committee, chairman of the expansion committee and part-owner and governor of the Southern California franchise.

But his departure as commissioner was triggered by Chicago's threat to drop out of the WFL immediately with three games still left to play.

Origer earlier had tried unsuccessfully to strip Davidson from the commissioner's post, contending he spread the league's operation too thin financially with less than well-heeled franchise investors.

Origer recently sent a letter to the league office stating he was dropping his franchise at once. This spurred Tuesday's meeting and announcement of a restructuring" of the league which this inaugural season already has had Detroit Wheels and Jacksonville Sharks throw in the sponge.

Additional financial woes caused the Houston Texans to move to Shreveport, La., and New York Stars to Charlotte, N.C.

Origer declined comment on his withdrawal letter and, when asked if he thought he scored a victory in forcing Davidson's resignation, said "I got my point across."

John Bassett Jr. of Toronto, owner of Memphis Southmen and chairman of the WFL's executive committee, said the reorganization guaranteed league operation for several years.

"We'll finish with 10 teams this season after some difficult times the past six weeks," said Bassett. "We're looking to operating with 18 teams and perhaps as many as 14 next season."

Bassett said that Origer "placed no pressure" on Davidson or the other club owners with his threat to quit.

At the end of the current season, Bassett said, the league office will be moved from Newport Beach, Calif., to New York City "so we'll have better access to the news media and other facilities to promote the league better."

Davidson said of his resignation: "I feel I can be of more assistance to the league as a club operator and as chairman of the expansion committee. I prefer to be selling rather than administrating."

Convicts Say Carter Was 'Fingered'

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two convicts, whose testimony helped send former boxer Rubin (Hurricane) Carter to prison for life in a triple murder, stated under oath Tuesday that they lied at the trial in return for leniency in pending criminal matters.

Alfred P. Bello, serving time for breaking and entering, testified at an evidentiary hearing for Carter and co-defendant John Artis, also serving life for the 1966 murder of three men in a Paterson, N.J., bar. The hearing was scheduled to continue today.

Bello told a packed courtroom that he was pressured into fingering Carter and Artis as the triggermen who shot up the Lafayette bar. He said he identified them as the killers in return for a $10,000 reward and the dropping of two criminal charges against him.

"I told them the car was a white Cadillac, and they came up with a Dodge," Bello testified. "A short time after the shooting, Carter and Artis were apprehended driving a white Dodge."

But when warned by Samuel Lazner, a superior court judge who presided at the original trial, that he faced possible contempt charges, Bradley testified: "I didn't see what I said I saw. I didn't see Misters Carter and Artis that night."

Bradley said he lied because "I was facing a lot of charges," including robbery, car theft and breaking. Bradley said he was told that the proper authorities involved in his cases would help get him easier sentences if he testified against Carter.

Bello testified Tuesday that he had seen two black men leaving the Lafayette, but was not sure whether they were Carter and Artis. He testified that police "pressured" him into identifying those two men as Carter and Artis.

Arthur D. Bradley, who also testified against Carter at the 1966 trial, appeared at the courtroom about four hours late, and was reluctant to testify.

Stracey Stops Lopez

LONDON (AP) — John Stracey, Britain's European welterweight boxing champion, won a bloody battle over America's Ernie (Indian Red) Lopez after seven rounds of a scheduled 10-rounder Tuesday night.

Lopez showed plenty of courage, but his face was a red mask as referee Roland Dakin stopped the action after 2:25 of the seventh.

The 24-year-old Stracey now has a record of 29 wins and a draw in 41 fights. It was the fifth defeat in 46 contests for Lopez. Stracey weighed 147 pounds and Lopez 149 pounds.

In another Anglo-American contest, Britain's European middleweight champion Kevin Finnegan had an easier passage as Edoardo Mazzei of San Diego, Calif., with a ninth-round stoppage of a scheduled 10-rounder.

Hawks Get Revenge

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Last spring, Quebec Remparts knocked Sorel Black Hawks out of Memorial Cup competition by winning the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League's championship.

The Black Hawks got some small measure of revenge Tuesday night with a 5-1 win over the Remparts. The victory was only Sorel's second in 14 starts this year and snapped a nine-game losing street.

In other play, Sherbrooke Beavers and Trois-Rivieres Draveurs battled to a 4-4 tie and Chicoutimi Saguenenns topped Shawinigan Dynamos 5-2.

The Beavers had 25 shots at Draveurs' netminder Normand Lapointe while Sherbrooke goaltender Nick Sanza stopped 30 drives.

The tie moved Sherbrooke into a first-place tie with Cornwall Royals atop the West Division. Each team has 22 points but Sherbrooke has played 13 games compared with 14 for has 17 points, five more than second-place Chicoutimi in the battle for first in the East.

Play resumes Thursday with Trois-Rivieres at Cornwall.

Intercollegiate Sports

Influx of U.S. Players Is Causing Concern

HALIFAX (CP) — Intercollegiate sports "may need Canadian content rules similar to those in the broadcasting industry, says a report on athletics in Canadian universities.

The report, not yet made public, says a survey of Canadian universities reveals growing concern about an increase in the number of Americans playing sports in Canadian colleges.

While there is an aversion to controls, the report recommends a ban on "soliciting the athletic services of non-Canadians."

If that method fails, consideration should be given "to establishing a minimum Canadian content as the preferred method of limiting the extent of non-Canadian participation on teams in a given sport."

The report, prepared by A. W. Matthews for the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC) and the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union(CIAU), has been circulated among university officials.

The 110-page report said content rules may not be necessary for all sports, but they are "consistent with current thinking on the need to preserve Canadian institutions in the face of outside pressures and influences."

The report also says there is a need for restrictions on the recruitment of high school athletes especially when a university offers financial or other inducements and recruits beyond areas where it normally publicizes its programs.

While "some areas of Canada are disparity areas with regard to young people with athletic skills," statements by universities that bringing in top athletes for intercollegiate play would help improve the calibre in local secondary schools must be weighed against the concern that each import means "one less local student will have the opportunity to play and develop skills."

The report says it agrees with the concern of many university administrators and officials that the "philosophy that some universities can only compete if they actively recruit athletes leads into a vicious circle, and in the end, all must lose."

Attempts to recruit students from outside a university's normal boundaries should only be done by mail and at the invitation of the prospective student, the report recommends.

An upgrading of women's athletics is needed and a full-time staff member should be appointed to handle them.

The report also recommends a study of the existing structure of leagues in major-interest sports to see if a two-level system could be worked to enable the stronger schools to compete against each other.

While scholarships based on athletic ability alone are opposed, the report says federal grants-in-aid awarded by Sport Canada are acceptable and that universities should consider the possibility of similar third-party assistance to athletes.

Universities are also encouraged to review the basis for provincial grants used for all levels of athletics to ensure they are considered as money to be used as part of a student's education and not as a student service such as health counselling.

While intercollegiate sports attracts most of the attention and much of the budget, the report urges more effort be put into intramural athletics with at least one full-time staff member in charge.

With acceptance of the philosophy that a total education involves both mental and physical development, intramural athletics and non-compulsory basic sport instructional service were important on any campus.

Further attempts should be made to get Simon Fraser University into Canadian university sports full-time. Simon Fraser, at Burnaby, B.C., plays football and basketball in a United States intercollegiate conference. It has some exhibition games with Canadian universities.

The report recommends the Atlantic Intercollegiate Athletics Association consider a financial post or help from Sport Canada to permit Memorial University of Newfoundland to participate more fully in athletic competition.

Stags' Opener Successful In Spite of 'Wheelitis'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Michigan Stags have been hit by what they call "Wheelitis" but, Detroit's newest pro sports team didn't let it ruin their home debut.

The Stags, who staggered through four consecutive World Hockey Association losses on the road after winning the opener, got a sudden-death overtime goal Tuesday from Danny Grant to beat Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-3.

In the only other WHA game Tuesday, Houston Aeros beat Chicago Cougars 4-2.

There were only 2,823 persons on hand at plush Cobo Arena for the Stags game, played mostly without penalties. The company with a usual attendance of about 12,00 to 13,000 for Detroit Red Wings' National Hockey League games crowds town at Olympia Stadium.

"There's a 'Wheelitis' in Detroit," said Stags owner Chuck Nolan. "There's skepticism because of the Wheels' bombing."

He referred to Detroit Wheels of the World Football League who filed for bankruptcy a few weeks ago.

"The Wheels went down the tube and they said in the papers they'd consider season ticket sales of their another crew for," Nolan said.

He said the Stags season ticket sales nearly came to a halt at that point.

Michigan was sod about 1,500 season, the same record sported season the same record sported by the slow-starting Fighting Saints.

He said the Muhammad Ali-George Foreman fight probably drew many hockey fans to watch the closed-circuit broadcast. "That's why the NHL racalled four games tonight."

Green, who scored the winning goal in Michigan's only other triumph, took a pass from Steve Vest and slithered the puck between goalie Mike Curran's legs for the winning goal at 21 of the overtime, overtime period.

Garry Veneruso gave Michigan a 1-0 lead by banning the puck past Curran 10 seconds into the game. It equaled the quickest goal in WHA history scored by Rick Morris of Chicago in 1972 against Quebec.

At Chicago, Houston's Howarth Hicks was busy. Gordie and sons Mark and Marty each helped set up a goal in the Aeros' third win of the season.

Gordie set up Poul Popiel's goal in the second minute of play, Mark assisted on Andre Vaganeer's second-period goal and Marty set up Larry Lund midway in the third period to give Houston a 3-2 lead. Gord Labossiere's goal with two minutes remaining clinched the win.

The Aeros are back home again tonight for another encounter with Chicago while Minnesota is at Cleveland, Toronto at New England, Phoenix at Winnipeg and Edmonton at Vancouver.

Mets Trade Boswell to Astros

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets' sad, sullen infielder Ken Boswell to Houston Astros for outfielder Bob Gallagher in a National League baseball trade completed at a meeting of general managers in Colorado Springs, Colo., Tuesday.

Gallagher, 26, batted .272 in 76 games with the Astros last season, mostly as a pinch hitter.

Boswell, who established a major league record for consecutive errorless games by a second baseman with 85 in 1970, batted .218 for the Mets.

Even Home Ice No Help To Struggling Ottawa 67's

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa 67s must be thinking they followed the lead of other Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A teams Tuesday and cancelled their game.

Playing before 3,200 fans, the 67s dropped their first home decision of the season—to the Kingston Canadiens, although it was their fifth straight league loss. The 67s have been away from home for two weeks.

The other games scheduled for Tuesday—Oshawa Generals at Hamilton Fincups and London Knights at Kitchener Rangers—were postponed so their home arenas could be used to broadcast the George Foreman-Muhammad Ali world heavyweight boxing match on closed-circuit television.

The Hamilton game will be played tonight and the Kitchener game Dec. 11.

Brad Rhinoss scored twice in the Kingston victory as the

Evans Is Back

ST. LOUIS AP) — Forward Chris Evans, traded away by St. Louis Blues, was reacquired Tuesday by the National Hockey League team from the expansion Kansas City Scouts.

In exchange for Evans and a fourth-round draft choice in either 1975 or 1976, St. Louis gave up defenceman Leroy Giroux.

Evans played for the Blues as a penalty-killer for nearly three seasons before being traded to Detroit last winter. Giroux has been with the Blues' Denver Spurs farm club this season.

teams played through a scoreless first period before the Canadians grabbed a 3-0 lead in the second.

Other Kingston goals went to Barry Scully, Bob Street, Doug Hynak and Mike Crombeen. The only Ottawa goal was scored in the third period by Doug Wilson.

With Wilson and Bruce Baker just back from injuries, the 67s also suffered the loss of Daniel Boss, carried off the ice on a stretcher in the third period.

No indication of his condition was immediately available after he crashed head-first into the boards behind the Kingston goal after taking a shot on goalie Mike Freeman.

Freeman faced 44 Ottawa shots on the game while Jim Fraser was tested 47 times in the Ottawa nets, 23 times in the third period.

Pigeon Predicts Rough Winter

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Old Glory, a seven-year-old racing pigeon, has made his prediction and if he's as accurate as he was last year it will be a rough winter.

Either that, or a chilly fall for southern Saskatchewan.

Old Glory's owner, Jim Turner, says the bird is an infallible long - range weather prognosticator and the fact that he was moulting in August chicken ß—a rough winter or a chilly fall.

Old Glory moulted extremely in August, 1973, and look what happened then. One blizzard after another, heavy snow, a miserable time for man and beast.

The bird didn't do much moulting in 1973 and it wasn't until well on in September that there were many feathers underfoot in its loft. That was the year of the pleasant, moderate winter.

Mr. Turner, who is secretary-treasurer of the Moose Jaw Racing Pigeon Club, keeps about 30 racing pigeons, all of which do a lot of flying around the city to keep themselves in shape. They seem to be a fairly fastidious lot, because neighbors in the area have yet to lodge a complaint about dive-bombing.

Budgie $10 At Shelter

Quinte Animal Shelter deals for the most part with cats and dogs — animals with no homes.

But this week it has a different creature for adoption — a pale blue budgie bird.

The three-year-old budgie is a centre of interest at the shelter on Avonlough Road. She sits in the window of the reception area, talking budgie talk and attracting all the sparrows in the neighborhood. The sparrows flock to her window, in a palaver to bridge the communications gap between the exotic tropical bird and themselves. Chirpy the budgie is available for adoption for a fee of $10.

Cruise Cost Cuts Numbers

Inflation has hit the school cruise program.

The number going on the Mediterranean cruise this year from Hasting county is down to about 170 from a high a few years ago of more than 300.

Cost of the cruise, once about $400, is now up to $600. Dates for Med 75 are March 9 to 27 and students will fly from here to Amsterdam by KLM. They will have three days in the Netherlands, flying from there to Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia to embark on Uganda for the cruise. On the Bicesry this year are Alexandria, Beirut, Haifa, Izmir, and Athens. The party will fly from Athens to Amsterdam for the return flight to Canada.

Trenton Officials Gear for Election

By AL SABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — As nomination day approaches in Trenton, all present council members are in reception of John Bone, have indicated their intentions to run in the November 12 municipal election. Only Mayor Robert Patrick has made no decision on his personal future.

Mayor Patrick did say Tuesday that he will likely be running on or before Nomination Day, of the week. He did not give any indication whether the plans are to stand for re-election.

To date, no new faces have announced to contest either the mayoralty or council seats.

Paul Tripp, an eight-year council veteran till his defeat in 1972, will be making a run for the mayor's chair by announcing his candidacy last week. Mr. Tripp suffered two major defeats at his campaign platform, saying Trenton should be looking westward for expansion and should also consider relocating sections of the official plan.

Both Pete Aziz and Sam Chiodo announced their intentions to run for council during the last two weeks. Both men ran in the 1972 municipal election, Mr. Chiodo finishing second while Mr. Aziz as an incumbent.

A retired businessman of 70-year-old Mr. Aziz was defeated after his first term in 1972, finishing eighth among the 12 candidates for council. He was among three incumbents along with Paul Tripp and Stan Kelderman who went down to defeat. Only George Greer regained his seat.

Mr. Aziz said Tuesday he will be running on his experience as a businessman.

"My feeling is that we should put into practice a little more thrift and economic sense in council, without impeding progress."

Mr. Aziz said he objected to council's practice of spending money on out-of-town conventions when local talent, inside council, and out, could be used. He also expressed concern with a "considerable" increase in taxes, a factor to lower-income and fixed-income persons.

Sam Chiodo, a technical control superintendent at Domtar Packaging Ltd., indicated his primary concern in running again is to maintain present council programs in street curbing and paving.

He added he is opposed to regional government, but is in favor of some municipal co-operation.

He said he considers himself a "serious" candidate but said "It'll be no skin off my teeth if I don't win." However, he said he expects to place better than 10th with 828 votes as he did in 1972.

The list of Trenton citizens with town hall intentions ends at three.

Incumbent councillors George Greer, Ron Price, Edward Todd, Peter DeGrout and Robert Wannamaker have all announced their intentions to run for re-election. Only councillor Greer is a carry-over from the previous council. Both councillors DeGrout and Price will be running for a second time.

PUC Officials To Run Again

TRENTON — Both Trenton public utilities commission chairman Charles Hilton and Commissioner James MacDonald have announced their intention to run for re-election Dec. 2.

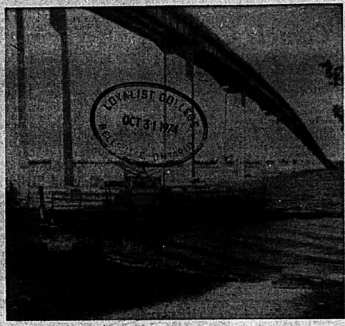
Both men will be adding to long years of experience with the body if re-elected.

Mr. MacDonald, mayor of the town for 10 years and a 16-year veteran of the PUC said Tuesday he will not succumb to pressures to run for council and will remain a candidate for the commission.

Chairman Hilton also indicated his intention to run Tuesday. Now retired, Mr. Hilton served as a town councillor for a single term before running and winning his seat with the PUC in 1961. Since then his lengthy tenure of office was interrupted only once in 1969.

Divers Check Bridge

Trenton's Aqua-Probe divers Earl LeClaire (left) and Paul McCredie today measurements to structural engineer Dean Bryce as they check the corrosion of the main concrete pier of the 4-year-old Dundas St. bridge. Work on a $15,000 study to gauge the need for bridge repairs was begun by the town's consultant Totten Sims and Hubicki Associates Ltd. of Toronto Tuesday.



The Old and The New

Quinte Ferry Lives On

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

SOPHIASBURGH — Completion of the Quinte Skyway Bridge in 1967 marked the end of 170 years of ferry service from Sophiasburgh Township to Tyendinaga but the colorful history of the crossing lives on.

Donald MacDermaid, brother of the late Arthur MacDermaid, last ferry operator, this week recalled early-day travel across the Bay of Quinte when a bridge now spans the waters.

He notes Green Point, long ago was thought to have been an Indian encampment before settlers arrived. In 1784 lots one to five were surveyed by Samuel Holland and laid out for a town site because of the accessibility to Kingston. The proposed town failed to spring up but the area was used as a training reserve for Prince Edward's militia men from 1796 to 1803.

The first ferry from Green Point to Tyendinaga was operated by Richard Davenport before 1800.

Mr. MacDermaid speculates the vessel may have been a batteau with towers and a sail.

Samuel Chase, a civil engineer who surveyed the Welland and Rideau canals, purchased the property from Sir John Harvey who had been knighted for his part in the War of 1812 and given the land by the Crown.

Chase later willed the property to his daughter, Anna Mrs. Paul Peterson.

Paul Peterson operated a ferry service for 30 years and also owned a wharf. The area still is known as Peterson's Wharf.

Next owner of the ferry, a Mr. Taylor, operated the boat with engines. The first operator was Archie Thompson.

In 1918, Mr. Taylor sold the ferry rights to Selwyn Crank who continued to run it with his son, Frank, and grandson, Roy. Crank's ferry was purchased in 1952 by the late Arthur MacDermaid.

Mr. MacDermaid operated the ferry [illegible] construction of the Skyway Bridge was completed and was one of the first persons to ride over the bridge on an honorary crossing.

Although the small wooden ferry no longer serves as transportation between Sophiasburgh and Tyendinaga her usefulness continues.

The ferry was sold to Reginald Dawson and has been converted as a houseboat. It now is docked at a marina in Deseronto, probably the most historic ship in port.

New Volvo Plant Uses 400 Robots

SKELEVIE, Sweden (Reuter) — Robots outnumber human beings at the new Volvo plant here by one to 40 and do the hard work leaving the humans free to do only routine jobs.

With uncanny precision, the waist-high red robots pick up a car body, lower it, move silently off to the first section of the assembly area, and slot in by the side of the worker.

After a few twists and turns of power tools as further parts are fitted, the robot moves on with a flick of the starting handle to the next point.

When assembly is completed the robot glides off with the finished engine into the testing shop, where it selects the first vacant test position and stops there.

Afterwards, it makes its way back through the mass of machines to the starting point and joins the line of robots waiting their turn to pick up another engine block.

The secret of the precise movements is the robot's electronic "brain" and a system of magnetic tracks built into the floor.

Volvo, Sweden's biggest exporters, developed the machines at a cost of about $1,000 each, as a way of taking the drudgery out of assembly-line labor.

Men and women hold 39 per cent each of the jobs in this assembly shop, another stage in the Swedes' search for the perfect working environment.

The workers, many of them immigrant Finns and Yugoslavs, work in pastel-shaded surroundings. Large picture windows look out on to well-trimmed lawns and sound-proofed rest rooms are furnished in modern Scandinavian style.

The whole plant was planned in close co-operation between bosses and the factory floor.

The workers collectively decide what level of production to aim for and can vary the pace at different times of day. The plant is assembling 480 engines a day and management is satisfied.

The workers have two spokesmen — one man, one woman — to relay any complaints to the management. One of them is 31-year-old Leena Bokhlmalm, a Finnish girl who came to Sweden four years ago and now earns about $500 a month.

She is happy about working at the plant.

"It is much more flexible," she said. "You don't have to stay in one place all the time. We move around and do all the different jobs."

South African Peter Keen, the project engineer, who came to Sweden to do a temporary job 16 years ago and stayed, said: "We do not design engine parts especially with women in mind. The parts are made so that they can be assembled with the minimum possibility of error by all kinds of workers."

Several employees interviewed, including middle-aged mothers and girls in their late teens, started at the plant with no experience and are doing fine.

Managing director Pehr Gyllenhammar told correspondents it was not just a matter of "nice color schemes and new equipment."

"One of the problems for management today is that old disciplines have been worn and we have very few things to replace it with.

"But we are dealing with educated people who are perfectly capable as individuals of taking initiative. That does not mean you give up discipline. It means you replace the old sort with a new kind of self-discipline.

"If we can achieve that, then I think we have really moved ahead and gained a new frontier."

OUT OUR WAY — by Neg Cochran

Camels Carrying Food to Starving

OUAGADOUGOU, (Reuter) — Camels, the beasts of burden of biblical times, are carrying vital food supplies to starving outposts in Niger, one of the West African nations suffering from seven years of relentless drought.

The use of the camel was decided by the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization's Office for the Sahelian Relief Operation (OSRO) because the beasts are best suited to withstand the conditions imposed by limitless sand and sun.

OSRO's logistics team decided that camels were the best way to get supplies to the remote regions of the Shel belt of West Africa, menaced by the relentless southward march of the Sahara and the years of drought.

They are not regarded by OSRO as an alternative to trucks but as a supplement to penetrate the kind of terrain where no wheeled vehicle can go.

The OSRO camel supply corps in Niger numbers between 2,000 and 3,000. The estimated cost of the operation to the organization is estimated at between $30,000 and $50,000. OSRO quickly won the backing of the Niger government. The minister of rural economy broadcast in four languages on Niger Radio, appealing to all camel owners to spare their camels for relief work. He followed up with a directive to all regional officials to requisition camel owners.

The owners are paid about $1.80 a day for each beast and the government provides two armed guards for every 30 beasts.

Apart from the 5,000 tons the camels are estimated to have moved in the last few weeks, they will be used for distributi another 1,500 tons of relief supplies driven south by trucks from Algeria.

The trucks drive as far into Niger as the terrain will let them, then hand over the supplies to the camel convoys for the last and hardest part of the journey.

Language Caused Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Since the passage of Quebec's controversial language bill making French the province's official language, General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced French would become the language of work at its nearby Ste. Therese assembly plant. The language issue had been the cause of a three-month strike at the plant in 1970.

Nashville Is Boom Town Built by Country Music

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Boom town, they call it. Not just here, as in New York or Los Angeles, where they're wondering how the hillbillies did it.

The "hillbillies" know. They grin about it as their hard leather bootheels urge Cadillacs along middle Tennessee's hilly country roads. They're heading out to Franklin or Hendersonville to have a discreet roadhex punctuates the end of a long curving drive leading to a ranch-style estate.

Boom town, but not built on oil or steel. It's the city music built.

The industry offices and recording studios hiding inside six-acre blocks of converted wooden dwellings now rub shoulders with occasional glass and steel. And there's a new hotel on the corner across from the Country Music Hall of Fame.

But there's no neon Music Row. And they still work in shirtsleeves.

Downtown, from Capitol Hill over to the Cumberland River and beyond the apartments and honkytonks squeezed together like bees in most other cities of a half-million people.

But this city's bloodstream and soul are different.

The Ryman Auditorium, that red-brick Gothic womb of the Grand Ole Opry, stands around the corner from Tootsie's Orchid Lounge, a former haunt of stars who stopped in to wet their whistles before the Opry curtains opened.

But the Opry moved out Briley Parkway to Opryland, U.S.A., a vast music "theme" park with acres of shows and amusement rides. With it went something special.

The country-music aura downtown these days is only a ghost of its former self. But aura or no aura, $200 million worth of country-music records were sold last year and more than 95 per cent of them were cut in Nashville.

The city is sophisticated enough to play host to the Grammy awards and to allow big-name entertainers to come and go with little fanfare.

The tourists, out of place in their new, straw cowboy hats, still flock in Tootsie's to gawk at walls papered with thousands of celebrity pictures. The stars don't come in as often but things haven't changed that much.

The city's mood is slower than in New York or Los Angeles. That's part of its secret.

"It's a good creative atmosphere, like the Village in New York a few years ago or Paris in Gertrude Stein's day," observed Jerry Wood of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP).

And Jerry Bradley, head of Nashville's RCA product, wouldn't leave.

"Down here, all of us get together and put their heads together and throw in their own licks and we make a record. All of us together.

"I can remember when they could only do one session in this town at a time because there was just one string section," recalled Bradley. The American Federation of Musicians local now lists 2,200 members.

The 15,877 recording sessions completed in Nashville in 1973 are roughly triple the 1969 figure. Fifty-two per cent of all singles produced in the world last year were cut here.

In 1967, 81 radio stations programmed country music. Now 1,106 stations have at least two hours of country music each day.

The swelling country title is pulling Nashville with it.

City fathers who copyrighted the nickname Music City, U.S. don't have to go far for justification: 37 recording studios, a half-dozen record-pressing companies and 36 talent agencies.

Recording artists can cut records with more than 200 labels here, choose from 227 publishing firms and who knows how many record promoters.

One of the town's entertainment kings seemed amused that country entertainers were being invited to the annual Swan Ball, a West Nashville social event which seemingly required a blood test for entrance. Blue. Green is good enough now.

Even Linda changed their minds when they started seeing all that money coming in here," he said.

Tourists spent more than $100 million in the metropolitan area last year. About 1.7 million thronged Opryland last year and 'Grand Ole Opry itself brings in an average 15,000 people every weekend of the year.

How many people and how much money is the country-music industry worth? The state's department of economic and community development counts 5,000 employed in recording, booking and publishing alone. That doesn't include promotion, trade magazines or any of the related industries.

The department estimates gross receipts from the industry for the greater Nashville area at $200 million annually.

If this is a boom town, music is its tune.

Widely Differing Roles No Problem for Mary Ure

NEW YORK (AP) — Widespart roles are no problem for Mary Ure, who started her career as the Virgin Mary in medieval drama and has ranged since from period elegance to modern angry.

This season, the British actress has parts on Broadway and on tour in Love for Love, a witty Restoration charade, and The Rules of the Game, a distraught 19th century romance.

"I don't think human nature has changed very much since the beginning of time," she said, dismissing any apparent differences in the character of William Congreve's heroine Angelica and Luigi Pirandello's Silia three centuries later.

The workout with the New Phoenix Company has given Miss Ure fresh challenge. The two plays were rehearsed simultaneously under different directors, even though one won't be publicly performed until the run of the other is completed. The reason: reduced funding.

For a leading lady who has directing ambitions herself, such strenuous preparation proved rewarding.

"Both are fascinating," she said of Harold Pinter, stager of Love for Love,"and Stephen Porter, calling signals for The Rules of the Game.

"They approach their work from completely different points of view, which is very stimulating for the actor. One has to adapt to each man's thinking and way of working.

"I don't think the public ever realizes how adaptable, how diplomatic, a performer has to be in going from one part to another."

Miss Ure shows her own flair for tact when discussing the comparative merits of playwrights past and present or their interpreters on stage and screen.

"I don't think one can really make comparisons in the arts. Everything is so individual and so different. There's Bach and there's Mozart. And in acting you can't say one performer is better than another. That's why I dislike awards very much."

She doesn't conceal, however, a personal preference for the films which have monopolized most of her energies of late. The most recent Ure stage appearance in London was in 1968. Two years ago she participated with her husband, Robert Shaw, and Rosemary Harris in Harold Pinter's Old Times on Broadway.

"There are a lot of good film directors that I'd like to work for, although movies seem now to be a dying art," she said.

She'd rather be there's a depression, money gets very short and the arts are the first thing to go."

There was no impulse during her Glasgow girlhood toward acting.

At the Central School of Speech and Drama, Miss Ure concentrated on preparation for a career of teaching, and earned a certificate attesting competence.

"In my final year, my tutor said, 'Really, Mary, I think you would make a better actress than teacher.' I still don't know if she was right or not."

Academic connections opened doors and the fledgling thespian was soon installed with a major West End management. A year later Sir Alexander Korda attended a performance. The movie magnate offered her a contract.

"So you see, the movies came to me, too."

Miss Ure was married to John Osborne, whose Look Back in Anger established him as a playwright and gave her an important acting boost. She doesn't talk about him.

Now her spouse is Shaw, who writes novels, plays and eminently acts. Between engagements afar, the 41-year-old leading lady presides at an old Irish homestead over a clan of nine offspring—three his by previous wedlock, three hers by Osborne, and three together. The youngest is 4.

Oil Hunt in West Now in Tailspin

CALGARY (CP) — The search for crude oil and natural gas in Western Canada is in a tailspin despite predictions that the two precious fuels will be scarce by 1980.

The industry blames government for the decline in exploration and drilling activity, saying it is unable to commit resources to local exploration programs when higher taxes and a heavy political climate are clouding the future.

Drilling activity was down an alarming 16 per cent in the first half of 1974, although the situation improved somewhat heading into the final three months of the year and the drilling shortfall moderated to a figure about 10 per cent below 1973 activity.

The sharpest reduction was in Saskatchewan, where a New Democratic Party government appeared "determined to kill the private industry," said Hans Maciej of the Canadian Petroleum Association.

Drilling in Saskatchewan was down 50 per cent to Sept. 31, with 210 wells. Production was also down, with the industry expected to produce an average of 157,467 barrels a day in December, down more than 37,000 barrels from September and 73,000 from a year ago.

"Medium crude has been priced out of the American market—it was the export tax that priced it out of the U.S.," Wotherspoon, Saskatchewan's deputy minister of mineral resources.

"Our oil is selling for around $12 a barrel while other crudes are going for $8."

Mr. Wolherspoon said Alberta is experiencing the same sorts problems, although not to such a great extent, and "only governments will have to decide whether they can take this cutback."

Alberta drilling was down some 300,000 barrels a day while Saskatchewan's fell. It was down four per cent to 2,422 wells. Normally, 85 per cent of the drilling in Western Canada takes place in Alberta.

Drilling in British Columbia was down at last count 12 wells, and 20 per cent in the Northwest and Yukon Territories to 53 wells.

Manitoba was the only province to show an increase with drilling up 275 per cent to 11 from four wells but the province produces an insignificant one-third of one per cent of Canada's crude oil and natural gas.

In 1973, it found 4,400 explor-story and development wells were drilled in Western Canada, up 31 per cent from 1972. The industry had planned to increase exploration spending by 15 per cent in 1974 but pulled in its horns when the federal government imposed an export tax, provincial governments boosted production taxes and land-sale prices soared.

Men and equipment began to move out and by Oct. 1 there were 212 rigs, of which 112 were working, in Western Canada compared with 254, of which 151 were working, at the same time a year earlier.

A survey by the Canadian Society of Exploration Geophysicists shows that more than 50 companies have relocated or opened offices in Denver, Colo., during the last two years and that 40 firms have turned into active exploration in the North Sea.

At least 30 seismic crews and 160 key geophysical personnel had left Canada since last winter, reducing the number of available crews this winter to 45 from a total 70.

Mr. Wotherspoon said it is much more profitable for companies to drill for oil in North Dakota and Montana than Saskatchewan.

"There have been no major discoveries in Saskatchewan for a number of years and the companies don't have that interest here. Industry claims that the price it is getting for oil is not adequate."

The Saskatchewan government has introduced a 30-cents-a-barrel incentive for companies doing exploration work in the province but so far it has been no substantial spur to activity.

Bill Spicer, the Saskatchewan manager for the Canadian Petroleum Association, said that between December, 1973, and June, 1974, the return to oil producers had gone down 11 per cent while the return to the government had risen sharply.

He said that of the 177 wells drilled to the end of August this year, compared with 422 last year, 60 per cent were for natural gas. At the same time, the government's energy corporation, Sask-Oil, has started competing against industry, the corporation has taken out permits for five wells and is reported to have struck gas in one of them.

Scotty Cameron of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada said the industry is anxiously waiting for Finance Minister John Turner's budget, expected next month.

It was Mr. Turner's budget last May that set off a series of oil industry reductions when it set out a plan that would have eliminated the petroleum industry's right to use provincial tax payments as a federal tax deduction.

MAY BE MODERATED

"We can't operate if we're taxed out of existence," said J. A. Armstrong of Imperial Oil Ltd.

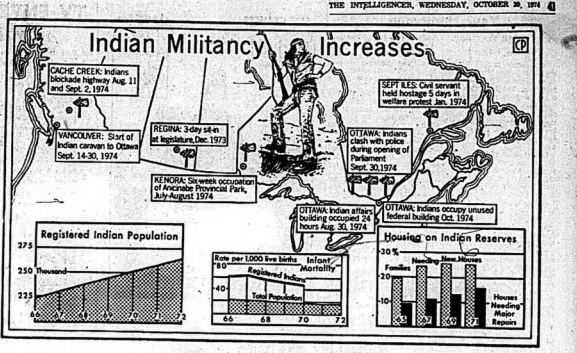
That budget was defeated and the Liberal government has indicated that there may be some moderation in resource taxation when it is reintroduced.

In addition to paying higher taxes, the industry has also found itself paying more for exploration rights to Crown-owned land. In the first half of 1974, it paid provincial governments $62.7 million for 1,273,000 acres, compared with $46.5 million for 3,795,000 acres last year. In Alberta the price per acre increased by 350 per cent to $24.64 from $5.45.

The Canadian Petroleum Association, in a brief to the National Energy Board, said the price of natural gas must rise rapidly to provide the incentives that would avert a shortage. The same goes for oil.

Frank McFadzean of Shell Oil Co. said the price for synthetic crude oil from Alberta's oil sands must "be high enough to provide a decent return on an initial investment that will reach $10,000 to $13,000 a barrel."

Industry sources said exploration prospects in Canada will improve if the industry can look forward to reasonably stable government policy for four or five years. But, because drilling programs are budgeted well ahead, the exploration slump may continue until next spring.



More USSR Citizens Travel Outside Land

HELSINKI (Reuter) — While Westerners tighten their belts and spend their vacations at home, Soviet citizens are travelling abroad more than ever this year, particularly to Finland.

Though Soviet tourists here are still few by Western travel standards—only 22,000 in 1973—they are already considered part of the streetscape in this capital city and in other centres.

Most arrange their visit through two large Finnish travel agencies and stick to a selection of good, though rather Spartan, hotels.

They follow a rather rigid tourist regime consisting of a bus tour around the country, starting in Helsinki and moving to Finland's No. 2 city, Tampere, and to the former capital, Turku, on the west coast.

A currency allowance of only 70 Finnish marks (about $17) for 10 days does not allow them to buy much outside their pre-paid vacation package.

Among their favorite buys are jersey garments and mock-fur coats, expensive and hard to get at home.

Increasing Indian militancy during the last few years culminated in a violent clash between about 200 Indians and RCMP riot police on Parliament Hill Sept. 30, during the opening of parliament. The Indians involved were member of a caravan that travelled from Vancouver to Ottawa to confront the government with a number of grievances.

Figures published by Statistics Canada show a high infant mortality rate, poor housing, low education and disease among Indians. Leaders of the native people say these are among the causes of the growing militancy. Although infant mortality is decreasing and the Indian population is growing, the rate of infant mortality among Indians in 1970 was twice the national average. And with an increasing population, the problem of adequate housing for the Indians is increasing: in 1965 19.7 per cent of families on Indian reserves needed new housing. In 1973 the figure had risen to 25.4 per cent. Similarly, the number of houses on reserves needing major repairs rose to 12.3 per cent in 1971 from 9.1 per cent in 1965. Fewer than 25 per cent of reserve homes had indoor toilets.

There have been several incidents of Indian militancy in the last year. In Regina, Indians staged a three-day sit-in in the Saskatchewan legislature last December. In January, Indians held a civil servant hostage for five days in Sept. Ile, Que., to protest alleged welfare discrimination. During the summer months, armed Indians blocked a highway at Cache Creek, B. C., on two occasions and other armed Indians took over Anicinabe Provincial Park near Kenora, Ont. last summer.

Following the demonstration on Parliament Hill, Indian leaders from several parts of the country warned that Canada may experience more violent demonstrations. (CP Newsmap)

More Violence Ahead?

Outlaws Are Being Reformed By Mahatma Gandhi Mission

By RAM SUNDER
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — It was a gathering of Bomba 'a top tycoons. Some of them were plainly nervous, for the man speaking to them was until two years ago one of India's most dreaded outlaws.

"I'm not the old gangster," said 58-year-old Tehsildar Singh. "I'm a new man and I wish to make new men out of all the bandits in central India."

Singh has been touring India's major cities to raise funds for the Mahatma Gandhi Mission in Chambal Valley in Madhya Pradesh state. The mission is helping to run schools and hospitals for former outlaws and their children.

Singh's crime career spanned more than 20 years. Son of Man Singh, another noted bandit, he was officially wanted in connection with some 30 murders and 200 highway robberies.

He spent some 17 years in prison but always managed to escape the hangman's noose because of technicalities or the prosecution's arguments.

He was arrested for murdering a family of seven in 1960 and sentenced to life imprisonment. The police at that time described him as "a pitiless killer, a mass murderer."

Mention of Singh even now evokes terrible memories in the hamlets of central India. "I believe that people will never be able to forget my dark past," Singh said. "But in my own way I'm trying to show that even the worst of criminals can be rehabilitated and become decent and useful members of society."

Singh's father was killed in an encounter with the police.

"We turned to crime because local government officials refused justice to our family in a dispute," Singh recalled. "But crime never pays."

Singh's crime career ended in personal friend to meet Singh in prison. In mid-1972, he was paroled after he gave an undertaking that he would work for peace in bandit-infested areas.

Chief Minister P. C. Sethi of Madhya Pradesh says: "Tehsildar Singh has been true to his word. In fact, he has helped the police to apprehend many gangsters, most of whom have now admitted their guilt."

Singh is now married to the daughter of a former outlaw. "I told them that people will never be able to forget my dark past," Singh said. "But in my own way I'm trying to show that even the worst of criminals can be rehabilitated and become decent and useful members of society."

Singh's father was killed in an encounter with the police.

"We turned to crime because local government officials refused justice to our family in a dispute," Singh recalled. "But crime never pays."

Tuesday, October 21

Aries (March 21-April 19) You are much better able to handle material matters than you were yesterday. You now view obstacles far more realistically.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Sometimes it isn't to your advantage to be stubborn. Today, however, if you believe an idea is for real, stick by your guns.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You have some very sharp business insights today. If you will use them. Don't pay more for anything than you instinctively feel it should cost.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This is a good time to rebuild bridges with one with whom you've had a disagreement. Something lasting will result from amends made now.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23) In a competitive situation where you are looking to gain an advantage, now is the time to play your ace-in-the-hole.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Profit from your past experiences. If you find yourself in a similar situation. What worked pre-viously will do just as well now.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Look around. See if you can't advance your interests through the assistance of another. An old standby will give you a boost.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will do well if you base decisions in the main on realistic aspects of the issue, not on those which are only hopeful and futuristic.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23D-ec. 21) Pick up the loose ends of things you've left undone. Don't put them down again until they are completed satisfactorily.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be firm but understanding with those under your care now. Explain clearly the reasons why you must retain guidelines followed.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

South could have picked up an easy 500 points by just doubling three diamonds, but he liked to play notrump and bid the game.

West opened the king of spades and led a diamond at trick two. East led back a diamond and South was on lead. He could see only eight tricks. His problem was to score a ninth with either the jack of hearts or the queen of spades.

He started proceedings by cashing the ace, king and jack of clubs. West, who had discarded a spade on the second diamond, let another spade go on the jack of clubs. Now South had a perfect count. West had been dealt six spades, four hearts, one diamond and two clubs.

He also had a sure thing irrespective of the location of the queen of hearts. He simply cashed his last diamond, led a heart to dummy's ace and discarded a spade on the queen of clubs. He was left with the king and one heart and the queen and one spade in his hand.

West clucked a heart to hang on to the ace-jack of spades and South led a heart to his king. If West held the heart queen he would have been endplayed. As it was, South dropped East's queen and made an overtrick.

What do you do now?

A—Bid six notrump. Even if your partner has only two aces you don't want to be in seven. He has bid like a man with a solitaire.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two notrump you bid three diamonds over your two spades. What do you do now?

Blood Disorders Are Not Related

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you explain the difference between polycythemia, hypoglycemia and hemochromatosis?—Mrs. H.J.B.

Except that they all will have an effect on the blood content, there is no connection. They are unrelated disorders.

Polycythemia is an excess in the number of red blood cells due to any of various causes.

Hypoglycemia means periods of low blood sugar. The blood sugar level usually is pretty much normal most of the time, but there are unpleasant episodes when, from time to time, the level falls too low or too rapidly. Excess insulin by injection (as with diabetics) or from a tumor of the pancreas or occasionally other causes cause these episodes, but so can faulty function of the pituitary, adrenal or thyroid glands. Or certain nervous disorders may be involved.

Hemochromatosis is a liver disorder involving excess iron deposits in that organ, and demands additional attention as the condition can result in diabetes and impairment of the liver itself.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a happy, contented wife and mother but have been about 20 pounds overweight for years. I have tried every fad, diet, Weight Watchers, etc. I diet and then in no time gain my weight back again.—P.K.

Yes, that's one of the very-much-lost secrets, and you will find it emphasized—getting rid of excess weight is only half the battle. It's wasted effort unless you learn how to keep it off once you've shed it.

It's my impression that Weight Watchers and TOPS are pretty successful in getting the right amount of keeping weight off, but with only 15 pounds to lose, maybe you didn't stay long enough to learn that important part of it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 46 and a year ago had an operation for cancer of the uterus. I was advised at the time that I would never be able to take hormones.

I am starting to notice a beginning under my eyes and sudden aging signs, and am wondering if there is any replacement for hormones I might be able to take. I have been told by friends that raw wheat germ oil taken daily is a form of natural estrogen.—Mrs. L.B.

It is true that estrogen (female hormone) is not given to patients after surgery like yours. Male hormones might be tried judiciously—they have an anabolic effect that can perk you up a bit.

But don't dismiss the possibility that the bagginess may be due to some loss of weight plus the passage of time.

Wheat germ oil contains vitamin E. It is not estrogen, and won't hurt you if you want to try it.

PM Bests Hees In Razzmatazz

OTTAWA (CP) — A red-faced George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) was the victim Tuesday of Prime Minister Trudeau's latest experiment.

Mr. Hees, who often tosses verbal barbs at Mr. Trudeau in the Commons, had alluded to former president Richard Nixon's description of the prime minister as an asshole.

He added that the honorable member does not know the difference between his razzmatazz and a hole in the ground," recorded Mr. Trudeau to gales of laughter from Mr. Hees.

Mr. Hees himself provoked a healthy series of chuckles moments earlier when he asked Mr. Trudeau if he believes he can evoke from President Ford "even the same appreciation of Mr. gualism' as he got from Mr. Nixon."

Asking about Mr. Trudeau's coming visit to Washington, Mr. Hees referred to the "mutual respect and warm personal friendship . . . that was able to generate with president Nixon as evidenced by the Watergate tapes."

Mr. Nixon's comment of "asshole Trudeau" was made in public last week during court examination of the tapes in Washington.

The actual word was not mentioned in the Commons, but the exchange between Mr. Hees and the prime minister caused a perceptible perking of parliamentary ears.

"After sitting across the aisle from the honorable member now for something like six years," Mr. Trudeau said, "I know that the friendship between us has not been impaired by the kind of foul languages that he frequently uses."

The incident was generally lighthearted, but still reminiscent of the 1971 incident in which the prime minister coined the euphemism "fiddle doodle."

At that time, he was accused by some opposition MPs of mouthing a strong, vulgar expression in the direction of former Conservative member John Lundrigan.

Questioned later, Mr. Trudeau proclaimed his innocence, saying he had used only the phrase "fiddle doodle."

Stores Must Mark Meat Once Frozen

OTTAWA (CP) — Supermarkets selling frozen meat, fish and poultry in its thawed state must identify the products as "previously frozen" or "made from fresh and frozen portions," the agriculture department announced Tuesday.

The new regulation under the Food and Drug Act is designed to prevent the sale of thawed meat as fresh meat at the retail level, the department said in a news release. The words identifying the meat as previously frozen must be placed on the display case where the products are being sold.

The regulation applies to raw meat, fish and poultry but not to prepared products such as sausage.

Whelan Asks for Help On Fixing Beef Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan sought suggestions Tuesday on ways to stabilize beef prices while Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet called for an over-all review of agriculture policy.

Both were responding to opposition complaints about farmers killing livestock because of low prices.

Mr. Whelan said in the Commons that the government is working on a program to supplement provincial beef price stabilization measures. But a solution was hard to find because the provinces were far from unanimous on what should be done.

"I have always believed in consultation and I would accept suggestions," Mr. Whelan told New Democrat Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville).

Mr. Ouellet said officers in his department are investigating the wide gap between low prices now being sold to farmers for some of their cattle and calves and the relatively high meat prices in supermarkets.

Opposition MPs wanted to know what the government will do about the rash of livestock killings by disgruntled farmers in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba.

Mr. Nystrom said farmers have reported getting as little as eight cents a pound for cows and "are now threatening to kill a lot of cattle across this country in protest."

Royal Commission On Banking Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused Tuesday of applying "Band-aid legislation" to patch wounds it inflicted through irresponsible management of the economy.

Ralph Stewart (NDP—Cochrane-Simcoe) said trust and loan companies are in a profit squeeze because of government-induced inflation.

The Commons was debating a bill to increase the borrowing powers of federally-incorporated trust and loan companies to help them through a period of low profits.

Mr. Stewart said government spending has soared 330 per cent in 10 years and the money supply has doubled in four years. As a result, "trust and loan companies are finding it exceedingly difficult to remain competitive."

He joined other Conservative spokesmen in calling for an inquiry—perhaps a royal commission—into banking.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said such an investigation might gather material for a new Bank Act.

Douglas Assails Oil Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposed international oil sharing agreement drew fire from opposition parties before a Commons committee Tuesday.

T. C. Douglas, the New Democrat energy critic, hotly protested a section that would require Canada to maintain exports in the United States in a time of emergency.

"While we are asking people in Eastern Canada to reduce consumption of oil, we would continue to export perhaps up to 1.3 million barrels a day into the United States," Mr. Douglas said.

"How could you explain that to the Canadian people?"

Under the agreement, negotiated by 13 major consuming countries, future shortages on the international market would be shared to lessen the impact on each of the members.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald told the resources committee that under terms of the pact, oil exports to the United States would be frozen at levels existing when an emergency was declared.

System Installed

MONTREAL (CP) — Transit authorities said a 44-day shutdown of the subway because of a labor dispute had at least one welcome effect. Idleness of the trains allowed acceleration of installation of a firefighting system found lacking in two previous costly fires.

On Lookout

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Tuesday his scheduled trip to the Arctic next week will give him a firsthand look at possible future sources of energy for Ontario.

Senators 'Not Patsies'

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Ray Perrault, new government leader in the Senate, was attacked by a member of his own party Tuesday for trying to rush an immigration Act amendment through the upper house.

"We're not patsies here," protested Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) during debate of the amendment.

He said he will not vote for approval in principle of the bill unless "I get more information on it."

The amendment provides a maximum penalty of two years in prison for deported persons who have returned to Canada without permission from the immigration minister.

Train Fire Kills Forty

NEW DELHI (AP) — Fire swept through a crowded passenger train in northern India today killing 42 persons, railway officials reported.

Thirty-five others were in critical condition with severe burns, the officials said.

It was not known whether there were any foreigners aboard the train, the Upper Indian Express, one of the country's main rail services. The train was bound from Delhi to Calcutta.

Witnesses said that the bodies of at least 20 victims, who jumped from the fast-moving train, were strewn along a one-mile stretch of track near Manoharganj, about 350 miles southeast of here.

Jaycees' Stag With Xaviera Hits Snag

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Niagara Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce is to hold a stag party with Xaviera Hollander as guest speaker at a mag this week.

The executive of the Niagara Falls Union Centre where the party was to be held Nov. 9 decided to cancel the club's booking because of public opposition to Miss Hollander's presence.

Gary Bradnam, head of the organizing committee, said Tuesday the club chooses to find another place for the party. About 600 tickets have been sold and the club will lose about $4,000 if the party is cancelled, he said.

The club must pay Miss Hollander $1,000, he said.

Mr. Bradnam said the club decided to open the annual private party to the public this year to raise money for charity.

Rioters Battle Police

Survivors Silent

EDMONTON (CP) — The two survivors of an airplane crash which killed 32 persons in the high Arctic early Wednesday are unlikely to tell their story of the disaster for at least a couple of days. David Hatzon and Gary Wyman, both of Calgary, are in University Hospital here with injuries suffered when the four-engine Lockheed Electra owned by Panartic Oils Ltd. of Calgary smashed through rough sea ice in the worst plane crash ever in the Canadian Arctic. Hospital officials said the men, and their physicians, have requested no interviews be held for at least two days.

Regulations Too Strict

TORONTO (CP) — Jay Moon, car expert on children's automobile safety for the Canadian Consumer Association, says new federal regulations governing child car seats are so tough they are driving most seats off the market. One difficulty is that prices of seats regarded as safe under the federal regulations will rise to about $50 from the current $20. "What the government is in effect doing with these regulations is saying that only the wealthy people's kids are worth saving," said William Prosser, manager of product research at Eaton's.

PM and Premiers Vote for Growth

OTTAWA (CP) — There was general agreement among the provincial premiers and the prime minister Wednesday that anti - inflationary measures should not slow economic growth.

Nine premiers pronounced themselves pleased with the closed five-hour conference on economic policies at Prime Minister Trudeau's residence and in general endorsed the federal approach to economic policies.

The 10th, a tight-lipped Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta, had no comment on the meeting called to talk about inflation. It was requested by the premiers at a September conference.

Others readily offered comments as they emerged from 24 Sussex Drive into a foggy Ottawa evening.

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island: "We have been assured that any anti-inflationary measures will be moderate."

Premier William Davis of Ontario: "We must see that economic growth continues. It is important that whatever steps are taken against inflation they do not lead to a recession."

Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick: "I'm happy that the federal government isn't trying to use counter-measures to cool off the economy at the expense of the regions across Canada."

The emphasis on economic growth is in contrast to proposals by the United States administration, which has declared inflation to be the top priority problem.

Mr. Trudeau, at a brief news conference after the session, said there was general agreement on the direction of federal fiscal and monetary policies, and on the need for co-operation.

Federal proposals to increase Ottawa's share of resource taxes is a subject of dispute with the two main oil-producing provinces—Alberta and Saskatchewan. Premiers Lougheed and Allan Blakeney had private sessions with Mr. Trudeau following the meeting of all 11 first ministers.

"We had a vigorous discussion, a very lively exchange . . . but nothing was decided," Mr. Blakeney said after the private meeting.

Mr. Lougheed said he had a duty to report to the Alberta legislature, now in session, before commenting publicly on the conference.

Finance Minister John Turner, who joined the meeting after lunch, said of the premiers' reaction to federal policies: "Reasonable men tend to come to the same reasonable conclusions."

He is preparing a federal budget and Nova Scotia Premier Gerald Regan said of the finance minister's contribution: "Mr. Turner is adept at extracting the thoughts of others without showing his hand."

Among specific results of the meeting was a general agreement to cut spending on such non-productive capital projects as office towers, shopping centres and post offices.

Several premiers said there was a federal understanding of regional needs

Must Tread Thin Line Davis' View of Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and the provinces must tread "a very thin line" between economic restraint and outright recession in their fight against inflation, Ontario Premier William Davis said Wednesday.

He said there was general agreement here at the closed federal-provincial conference on inflation that Ottawa and the provinces should reduce spending on capital projects but avoid austerity programs that would slow economic growth and cause higher unemployment.

"We must see that economic growth continues," Mr. Davis said. "It is important that steps taken against inflation do not lead to a recession—there is a very thin line between the two."

He said Ontario called for reductions in federal spending on capital projects rather than measures that have been in force in the province for the last 18 months. Ontario has cut back on school, hospital and other capital spending to about the maximum limit, he said.

But this should lead to any slowdown in economic growth, he said. Mr. Trudeau and Finance Minister John Turner agreed with this general approach but made no specific commitments in advance of Mr. Turner's next budget, expected in about three weeks, Mr. Davis said.

He said there was a genuine appreciation of one specific Ontario request that Ottawa pump significantly higher amounts of money into low-cost mortgages.

Ontario wants the Centre Mortgage and Housing Corp. to make more money available for house buyers at interest rates below the current level of about 12 per cent, he said. He had no firm figure in mind but said the amounts would have to be large enough to produce a big influence in the housing supply.

"This is one way to stabilize housing costs and fill a social need at the same time," Mr. Davis said. "Both the prime minister and Mr. Turner were quite understanding of the position we set forth but I can't say what they will do."

Escaped Convict Is Slain

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Paul Mercier, one of five men who escaped from St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary on Oct. 20, was shot and killed by police today at the scene of an attempted bank holdup.

Police said Robert Frappier, who also gained his freedom in the dramatic Oct. 23 break, was wounded at the scene, a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in the northeast end.

He was taken to hospital, but his condition was not immediately known.

Police said two other would-be bandits escaped on foot, one of whom was believed to be Richard Blais, who also took part in the St. Vincent de Paul breakout.

The attempted holdup took place in an area normally heavily patrolled by plainclothes policemen.

A number of employees and customers were reported injured in the shooting but details were not immediately available.

Dutch Commandos Free 15 Hostages

THE HAGUE (Reuter) — Fifteen huge Dutch marine commandos smashed into the chapel of Scheveningen prison today to capture four armed rebel convicts and free their 15 hostages.

Screaming and firing guns into the air to terrify the convicts, the marines, members of an elite close-combat special group, ended the 100-hour prison seige without bloodshed.

Hague Police Commissioner Koen Peyster said one of the convicts made a move to shoot back but was discouraged when several of the marines, all huge men especially trained in hand-to-hand fighting, fired over his head.

Peyster told us news conference after the 4 a.m. assault that the marines would have killed the convicts, who included a Palestinian guerrilla blacker, if they had opened fire with the two pistols that had been smuggled to them in prison.

Justice Minister Andreas van Agt declined to say how the marines, backed by Hague city police, got into the chapel.

But a senior police officer who asked not to be named told Reuters that the raiding party used a thermal lance to burn through the locks of the chapel door.

At the same time, the raiders hurled magnesium grenades through the chapel windows. The glaring light of the burning magnesium apparently temporarily blinded the convicts.

Peyster said 22 marines took part in the operation which was all over in 15 minutes. Fifteen men made the first assault while 17 others stormed in as a second wave.

Peyster said the hostages, 13 men and two women, were sleeping on the left side of the chapel while their captors were on the right.

Quebec Farmers Bury Veal

ST. BRUNO, Que. (CP) — The slaughter of 600 calves was the bloody contribution Wednesday of farmers in this region, 120 miles north of Quebec City, to the growing protest over low prices paid Quebec livestock producers.

Armed with special pistols that knocked the animals unconscious, farmers slit their jugular veins and buried the 600 calves in a 15-foot hole that was later covered with earth.

Producers say animal buyers have paid only 15 to 46 cents a pound for live veal at fall auctions while it costs 80 cents a pound to raise them.

New OPP Helicopter Gets Prompt Workout

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police say they dispatched a newly-acquired helicopter today on a 200-mile flight to locate seven members of an Indian family stranded without food in the Hudson Bay wilderness.

They said the family left Hawley Lake, 250 miles northwest of Moosonee, Oct. 15 in two freight canoes for a 100-mile trip down the Sutton River to Hudson Bay to pick up supplies for the winter trapping season.

But ice closed in and caught the craft 25 miles short of the supplies and without enough gasoline for their two snowmobiles to complete the journey.

Stranded are John Chuckamsline, 47, his wife, Caroly, in her late 30s, daughter Margaret, 15, sons Louis, 12, and Richard, 9, and a married son Albert, 25, and his wife, Helen, 21.

Alex Bird, son-in-law of the older couple, said Tuesday night in a telephone interview from Winisk, a village about 100 miles west of the Sutton River, that he and two other men tried to reach the group Sunday by snowmobile but had to give up when they ran short of gasoline.

He said the stranded party has enough food for about a week and a tent, but lack heavy winter clothing. A recent storm, he said, has left 40 inches of snow in the area.

"Trout should be plentiful from the river and they have firearms if there is small game, but I'm worried about my father-in-law and mother because of their age."

Insp. Fred Blucher of the provincial police said here that the force had just cleared the first of two new $309,000 helicopters—the first with the service—through customs Tuesday when the Moosonee detachment requested the services.

He said the U.S.-made jet helicopter, with a speed of 150 miles an hour, would travel in stages today to Moosonee, picking up a civilian guide there. It is to continue the remainder of the flight to Winisk on Friday, weather permitting.

Insp. Blucher said the family might be flown out of the area in several shuttles, if their condition permits, or gasoline and food might be dropped to enable them to continue by snowmobile.

The Long Reach

Sue McKinnon, a Quinte Secondary School student working for the Belleville office of the ministry of community and social services, made a tour of downtown Belleville yesterday with two social workers, playing the role of a handicapped person in a survey of problems facing such people. Cashing a cheque in a bank she found, meant a long stretch to the teller's cage. For story, see first page, second section.

Police Urge Caution On Halloween Night

TRENTON — Police here have issued warnings and instructions to the ghosts, goblins and ghouls that will be haunting the streets of Trenton on Hallowe'en night.

Ray Miller, safety officer with the Trenton police force, has been delivering the message to town school children for the past month.

To date, he has visited 17 classes and spoken to approximately 500 children on the subject of child molestation. The subject, one in a long series in the department's safety program, pushes four basic rules at children.

Don't accept candies, gifts or rides to cars from strangers. Don't go into homes for anyone to see. If a ride is needed, leave with the licence number of the car.

Constable Miller said Wednesday the program is aimed at preventing any unpleasantness he says has fortunately not happened in Trenton in the 2 years he has served with the police force.

Regular municipal police have been conducting a similar "Say No To A Stranger" program among school children.

These soldier and wizards' masks should not obscure vision. What would be preferable, Miller said, is for parents to bring out the lipstick, mascara and rouge and paint the frightening faces of the toddlers.

For maximum safety, flashlight should be carried by all trick-or-treaters.

To further safeguard youngsters during their outing, Saturday night, both Trenton police and Brighton OPP will have all available men on the streets working.

STIRLING — The witches' brew of weirdness mixed with magic to make the setting perfect for a hair-raising "spook walk" made by 24 Grade seven and eight Stirling Public School students Wednesday night.

A full moon made the heavy fog thicken, and water droplets splattered down from eerie trees upon the costumed halloween celebrants who singly braved the spine tingling journey.

This is the third year that teacher Stephen Patrick has put on the scary adventure at his home on Concession 4, Rawdon Township. It was the biggest and best yet. About 100 mas-kers, including the help of students, were required to act it up.

He had four tape recorders spaced along the route which meandered through two acres of woods beside his home. Cries of terror, moans, laughter and blood curdling screams filled the air.

After having their fortunes told and going down to the dark cellar to feel the various ghoul parts of a dismembered body, individuals were sent out at intervals to come back - if it all - in one piece.

Alert for danger, a young-ster would take hold of the guide rope running from tree to tree in the gloom and set out. Jack-o-lanterns leered forth, and oil lamps dimly lit gruesome places like a grave with a skull and hand, or an axe pinning a severed hand to a stump.

Here and there ghosts and skeletons watched quietly, and in some places they sprang up at the unsuspecting victim. Ropes pulled by volunteers activated the spooks.

Home Builder Joins Picton Industrial Park

PICTON — A mobile home manufacturing company that will employ 250 persons at peak production has located at Loch Sloy Industrial Park here.

Manor Home Systems Ltd., a newly-formed company based in British Columbia, will be both Canadian-owned and operated. It will be located in hangars now and three of the industrial park and initially will employ 100 persons in a training period.

Announcement of the new industry was made Wednesday by Loch Sloy Holdings Ltd., and Prince Edward director of economic development, Wilfred Duggan.

Company president Jack Clayton, a 15-year-veteran of the industry says the plant's first shipments are scheduled for February, 1975. Production will begin in January of the coming year.

Vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the new company, Incorporated in August, 1974, is Jack Geary. Also a vice-president is Fred Bowdler. The executives have a combined experience of 50 years in the business.

Mr. Clayton says a manufacturing operation will begin in Chilliwack, British Columbia at almost the same time the Picton operation begins. This follows, the company's plans, as expand into all marketing areas in Canada with a target of six plants in operation in the foreseeable future.

Resident general manager, Jack Geary, said the first production at Picton will consist of manufactured homes or "double-wide" homes providing up to 1,500 square feet of floor space. These homes, when erected on a prepared site will comply with the National Housing Association or Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation requirements.

A production manager, Ravi Maillet has been appointed and staff recruiting will begin soon with a view to production training in December.

Interested persons should apply to Picton Manpower Centre says the resident general manager as the company will be working closely with Manpower personnel.

It is estimated about 70 per cent of the workers hired will be men and 30 per cent women.

The company expects no problem in finding enough employees in the area to staff the plant.

"We hope to recruit the entire work force from the area," says Mr. Clayton.

The market for the mobile homes manufactured here will be principally in Ontario and western Quebec. The company does not manufacture any recreational vehicles.

The plant's newest honor that will be manufactured feature two-styles, one a distinctly residential model and, the other, a model with the mobile home look that will be completely furnished.

Mr. Clayton says, spinoff industries will revolve, mainly from his company's demand for a variety of materials. As an example, he says a large quantities of roof trusses must be purchased.

OHC Announces 29-Unit Trenton HOME Development

TRENTON — It is expected construction will start here on 29 single-family detached homes on Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC) land in the Field and Seneca Sts. area next year.

Homes are to be built under the OHC's Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) plan and will be geared to the income of prospective purchasers.

The new HOME plan construction was recently announced by housing minister Donald Irvine.

In a ministry release, building costs were listed to range on the 30 no-fill homes, ranging from three to five bedroom models, "to be chosen at the ministry's Toronto head office Nov. 21."

Under the HOME plan, a purchaser buys his house and assumes a 5-year lease from the OHC on the land it is built upon. After five years, the homeowner has the option to buy the land at current market value, Monthly rental payments are estimated at $33.

Single - income families earning a maximum of $14,5 annually are eligible for the housing. Where two is a family work,the combined gross incomes to a maximum of $17,000 a considered.

As yet, it is unclear what the purchase price of the housing will be. OHC target prices range from $27,000 to $30 for the three to five-bedroom homes.

A ministry spokesman in Toronto said Wednesday the province expects to get bids from builders in the $21,500 - $25,500 price range.

Ministry target prices indicate a change from the fixed home price policy used by the OHC till mid-1974. Due to inflationary pressures, builders found it difficult to construct homes at a set price established by the OHC.

The spokesman said the ministry took the factor into account and altered their policy.

Hand on Helm

Soviet hockey players are like "cogs in a machine . . . and they do it pretty well." Jack Devine draws this analogy of life and sport in Russia and he mentioned it to a hushed meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs this week.

When it comes to improvisation however, the Canadians are superior, and he says it is doubtful if they could hack the rigid discipline of the Soviet system.

The CJBQ sports director, like many of us looking back to some of the things lost from an earlier time, recalls the cuff on the ear at school which would not be mentioned at home lest it be repeated.

Today that sort of thing can be an invasion of human rights, if not a case for a lawyer.

Our society today, while superficially all may seem well, is paying the price for abdication of responsibility for the way a new generation behaves.

Much that is positive and valuable derives from the freer society that has evolved but has it gone too far? Everywhere we turn, negative aspects present themselves — the incredible rise in the number of abortions for instance. And in Toronto a spokesman for a hospital mental disease clinic says "we've been seeing early syphilis of monstrous proportions."

Another sign of the times, a newspaper report of infinite sadness concerning poverty and inner city life. A lot of poor children in Canada would be better off dead, says Scott Conrad, rather than face the struggle ahead of them. Co-ordinator of student services for Protestant schools in Greater Montreal, Conrad says: "I believe strongly that a large part of our failure to help disadvantaged children to learn is because of our inability to make a child feel he is loved . . . worthwhile."

And this, from University of Montreal sociologist Guy Rocher, who has been surveying the changing way of life of the latest generation in Quebec. He is speaking of a generation gap vis-a-vis sex. "The 25-year-old research assistants who are committed to something and to the students who want to learn something," and he goes on: "And my, how they smoke cigarets, these kids. Not one of them comes into my office without lighting up a cigaret, and usually it is three roll-your-own." I notice because I'm a cured smoker and ever since I quit my four daughters all took up smoking.

No suggestion of course that the university might simply say "No-No" to smoking or to anything else. It's do-your-own-thing these days and never mind the discipline.

A tennis camp is an unlikely place to expect some old-fashioned barrack room discipline. But this was the experience of a Belleviliian who attended such a place in Michigan during the summer. One woman participant complained she had not paid to learn to cuss from the tennis pro coaches. All ended well however and even she acknowledged she had benefited.

A lot of situations today cry out for a firm hand on the helm. Too often it is missing.

The Speeders

Any semblance of a 70 mph speed limit on 401 highway continues to be a mockery so far as the driving public is concerned.

Speeds of 80 to 90 and upwards are not uncommon on 401, and with not a police patrol in sight.

Canada has more gas to burn than some countries, but is this any reason why drivers should be permitted to burn it up at high speed, break the law at the same time, and place their lives and those of others in jeopardy?

Around Toronto, where the traffic is thickest, the speed factor is of special concern.

The Ontario government has had plenty of time to study the speed and the gasoline wastage factors. It is time for a decision. At the very least, the current limits should be enforced, pending such a decision.

New Envoy to UK Could Teach "New Wave" a Thing or Two

Quite a list of impressive abbreviations, burnished of a half dozen years of service as one of the ablest cabinet ministers of Prime Ministers Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent, Lester Pearson and Pierre Trudeau, he has had what amounts to practically an indefinite lease on the corridors of power in four decades.

Now anyone knows his way around, both this country and much of the world, it has to be "Uncle Paul."

So the CBC, in a morning commentary the other day, used up three or four after-breakfast cups of coffee in describing him being a deadening fuddy-duddy pedestrian about to be "sent packing" to Britain.

There out, though, that he could be years ahead of the new trend in diplomacy to banish the stiff-upper-lip image and pack away the striped trousers in mothballs.

Government Backs Off

Seat Belt Use Matter of Choice

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — As you will have noted the government has dropped its idea of making seat belts compulsory.

Its intention to bring in seat belt legislation, of course, was announced in the throne speech last winter.

This was certainly not the most important matter in the speech.

But it probably drew the most points of any, particularly from the government benches.

Reportedly there were a couple of very stormy caucus days over the proposal behind the closed doors of the caucus.

Still the government let the question hang on.

It went through the first few months of the session without saying anything.

The only comment from Transportation and Communications Minister John Rhodes was that the proposal was being studied.

Then just before this session was getting under way Mr. Rhodes broke the indecision.

He said he had decided to hold, not to make belts compulsory. The many people were opposed.

There will be a good many who will not agree with this decision.

A large number of safety groups, and also a large number of individuals, advocate the use of seat belts.

But in a pure sense the decision for the government was a good one.

For at root the question is just how far should society go in protecting the individual against himself.

Highway safety was not a facet of the seat belt question.

There was never any real question that their use would cut down on accidents.

The only protection claimed for belts was for the user.

And we thus got into an offshoot of the business of government — the business of the individual.

And the general answer we have evolved for this is that the bedrooms, or the individuals, are to be left pretty much as some way they are managing their lives.

Thus we have bigger controls not to protect the individual but to protect society.

And as the number of belts is menacing only himself let it be his risk.

Calf Massacre 'Shocking'—Ford

The Christian Science Monitor

President Ford was right in his reaction to the shocking of 300 young calves before TV cameras in Wisconsin. He called the massacre "shocking and wasteful."

He said he could understand the frustration of the members of the National Farmers Organization, who staged the killing to protest rising feed costs and low prices for their cattle.

But," he added, "their action contributes nothing to the answers to their problem or to the problem of inflation which we all face."

One does not have to be a cattle feeder to grasp that the drop in price of a head of cattle from as much as $200 a year ago to the other day's sale price spell bankruptcy for many meat producers.

Similarly, the public could understand and sympathize with independent truckers, earlier this year when federal fuel price and allocation decisions made it uneconomical for many to run their trucks.

But just as the violence of the truckers' smashing of the producers was disapproved by the public, so should the shocking and wasteful shooting of baby calves be disapproved. The slaughter of animals for food may be a part of society's way. But to shoot animals for publicity purposes should be deplored. The counter-proposal of another group of Wisconsin farmers to ship 1,000 calves to starvation victims in Biafra seems to a far better way to get attention to the farmers' plight.

The President has called for a report on the financial expense to the livestock industry and has promised to discuss the question at the session on the topic within two weeks. Solutions for the cattle-feeding plight have to be found to find prospects of some best interests of all concerned. The most important cutbacks in the purchase of feeder cattle from Mexico; use of corn grass-for-food reserve in the armed forces; reduction of beef in the federal school lunch program; and stabilization of prices by the use of relief shipments to famine areas or countries like Honduras hit by natural catastrophe. The use of Canadian feeder cattle could well be investigate what has

Corporate Earnings

Inflation Renders Profits Illusory

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Editor
Thomson News Service

Trying to follow the pace of business these days is a dizzy, confusing than ever.

Take the general rise in earnings reports arrive by the bagful every day. Some are fattened banks and some big manufacturers still are reporting declines for the year ended Oct. 31.

In many cases, the profit increases may look enormous. Some companies, however, are including a prominent note in their earnings statement to the effect that inflation has made their profit gains more illusory than real.

One example: Shell Canada Ltd. said its consolidated net profit for the nine months to Sept. 30, 1974, was $113.5 million, or almost double the $59-million it earned in January-September, 1973.

But the company says that inflation distorts its figures because traditional ways of accounting do not make sufficient allowances for the replacement of products and facilities.

Shell Canada says its profit for the first nine months of this year would have been $85-million (rather than $113.5-million) if it had been calculated on the basis of guidelines for a form of accounting called "price level restatement," which is being considered by a committee of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

The case against traditional accounting (which results in huge increases in reported profit) goes like this:

The Shell profit arises largely when inventories that were acquired at low-cost inflated costs are sold at current high prices.

These profit increases are not the result of any "improvement" in the operating efficiency of the company, nor can they be a true reflection of the resources have to be replaced at higher costs.

The oil industry considers itself especially hard hit by this "distortion," because its oil and gas reserves, or inventories, have been rising in value, a fact that makes their profit gains more illusory than real.

One example: Shell Canada Ltd. said its consolidated net profit for the nine months to Sept. 30, 1974, was $113.5-

Canadian institutions would be given government financial aid to buy national treasures threatened with export. Parliament also would be asked to provide funds for the repatriation of such Canadian articles which appear on the international market.

Food Board to Make Wheat Subsidy Check

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board likely will be the government watchdog on a proposed wheat subsidy designed to offset rising bread costs until 1980, Otto Lang said Wednesday night.

Mr. Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, was commenting in an interview on a New Democratic suggestion in the House that there is no way to ensure the subsidy will be passed on to consumers.

"The board has been watching bread prices very carefully," Mr. Lang said. "I think that answers it."

Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina Lake Centre), the only member of his party to speak on the proposed subsidy legislation, which received Commons approval in principle, had said Mr. Lang and Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan should watch the subsidies carefully.

Mr. Benjamin resurrected the recent dispute over the government subsidy on powdered milk, restating charges that it is not being passed on to consumers.

Surely the minister is taking care of the Canadian wheat board and the minister of agriculture are not going to allow themselves to be had in that manner."

Jean Firm Hits Aid To Rivals

TORONTO (CP) — Grants to failing more than $2 million to two United States-based manufacturers of blue jeans from the federal and Ontario governments are squeezing Canadian casual pant manufacturers out of business, a spokesman for the Canadian industry said Wednesday.

"We're passing out our plant because my tax money was used to help our American competitors put us out of business," Richard Sherbet, president of Hamilton Carhartt Manufacturing Ltd., Toronto, said in an interview.

Mr. Sherbet said his firm will shut down early next year and he predicted almost all other Canadian manufacturers either are, or soon will be, in the same position.

Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) brought the issue in the face of the legislature Wednesday, calling the situation "a crazy, scandalous mess."

The federal government announced in April, 1973, an 18 per cent grant of $867,000 to Levi Strauss Canada Inc., a subsidiary of Levi Strauss Inc., of San Francisco.

In return, Levi Strauss, the largest manufacturer of garments in the world, promised to build a plant in Corner Brook, Nfld., over its operations which would employ more than 300 Canadian workers.

The B. Lee Co. of Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of B. D. Lee Co. Inc., of Shawnee Mission, Kan., which is a subsidiary of VF Corp. of Reading, Pa., was passed recipient of a federal grant May 11 for $1,126,400 to build a plant in North Bay, Ont.

The plans, new muscle construction, is to employ 600 persons in addition to the 125 employed now at the Lee plant in Kingston, Ont.

Dr. Shulman charged Wednesday that the Carhartt company had also gave at least $10,000 through the Ontario Development Corp. to a Levi Strauss subsidiary for expansion in Brantford, Ont.

"The situation is so absurd that even my wife thinks Levi's and Levi jeans," Mr. Sinclair said. "They've been brainwashed through advertising like other Canadian kids to buy the American pants.

Yet we manufacture exactly the same pant from exactly the same raw material—only we don't have the same label on them."

Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourist, replied to Dr. Shulman statements by saying it would be "naive" to think the U.S. government would not export their products into Canada even if there were no grants.

Contrasting Pictures Painted of Marriage

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court jury trying Mississauga, Ont., resident Peter Demeter on a charge of murder concluded its fifth day Wednesday in the death of his wife Christine, July 18, 1972, was presented with contrasting descriptions of the Demeter marriage Wednesday.

Demeter, 41, is charged with strangling, the murder of his wife, 32, by hiring an unknown person to commit the act for $1,000.

Mrs. Demeter was clubbed to death in the garage of her home.

Killa Dayaram, who often baby sat for the couple's daughter Andrea, said Demeter and his wife were always arguing.

She said Demeter once joked that he would leave his estate to his dog Rastebob when he died and leave his wife only a shrivelled nut because the dog did not like it.

Miss Dayaram testified that Mrs. Demeter was easy going except when her husband was drunk, when she became tense and nervous, she said.

Sybille Brewer of West Hartford, Conn., who was visiting Demeter at the time of the murder said was with him when he found the body, testified that the Demeter marriage was a strange and paradoxical match that surprisingly reached one of its high points shortly after Demeter had an affair with Austrian model Marina Hundt.

The marriage appeared unhappy externally but a strong bond was shared privately, she said.

Magruder Pressed to Tell Why He Quit Cover-up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate defence lawyers are pressing a key prosecution witness on what caused him to drop out of the cover-up and start telling the truth about the break-in of Democratic national committee headquarters.

Defence counsel began cross examination Wednesday of Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of Richard Nixon's re-election committee.

Peter Odeen, a lawyer for former attorney-general John Mitchell, opened the cross examination by asking Magruder the third prosecution witness at the cover-up trial, about his testimony at the break-in trial in January, 1973.

"Did you speak words of perjury to the jury?" asked Odeen.

Odeen focused his questioning of Magruder on the former campaign aide's admitted perjury on numerous occasions before the Watergate cover-up trial prosecutors in April, 1973, and on his use of $6,000 in re-election committee funds.

Odeen's drive from Magruder confirmation that he had told FBI agents April 19, 1973, prior to the June 17, 1972, break-in "you had not received any dime from the committee to re-elect the president other than salary."

He admitted also telling the agents that after the break-in he had "no qualms" about preservation" to accumulate as much money as possible from the committee.

Magruder apparently accumulated $6,000 in committee funds for possible use to pay legal fees. But when the committee picked up some of the fees he returned the money.

Odeen's cited several occasions on which Magruder had lied under oath, and each time asked him whether he had been charged with perjury by the grand jury.

"Is that part of your arrangement with the special Watergate prosecutors?" asked Odeen.

"It is that part of your arrangement with the special Watergate prosecutors!" asked Odeen.

"Yes, sir," replied Magruder, who currently is serving a 10 month-to-four-year sentence in prison.

Health Inspectors Made Large Profit

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members protested Wednesday in the legislature that ministers' laws regulations allowed two Kitchener health inspectors to make a "windfall profit" in buying a municipal property.

James Breithaupt (Kitchener) asked Health Minister Frank Miller for assurances that regulations exist to prevent public servants from profiting by using their professional information.

Mr. Breithaupt cited news reports showing that the two health inspectors bought for $40,000 a house and 4.7 acres of land from two sisters and resold the property two years later for $101,000.

He said lack of regulations on such transactions by public servants allowed the inspectors time to condemn the house unnecessary, to buy it at a low price from two women aged over 60 and to sell at a huge profit.

Mr. Miller said his ministry has no direct jurisdiction in the matter since the inspectors are employed by the local health unit for the Kitchener-Waterloo area.

The health minister said the chairman of the regional health board is satisfied that there has been no abuse of information by the inspectors.

Before the property was purchased, two independent property appraisers were satisfied that the $40,000 offered represented fair value, Mr. Miller said.

Pressed by Mr. Breithaupt for an answer to what regulations exist to prevent profiteering, Mr. Miller said there is ample authority currently to deal with any abuses.

In an interview later, Mr. Breithaupt said the two inspectors involved, Ueno Hartmann of Kitchener and Paul Stasi of Cambridge, should consider returning a one-of-the-pair. It is the one sister who is still alive—Susanah Eshleman, 67, who lives in a Kitchener nursing home.

She and her sister, Pauline St., who died in April, 1973, sold the property to the two health inspectors after Mr. Hartmann found that their home was unfit for sanitary reasons.

Reading Old Diary Is Ego-deflating

Here's a dare ... for women only.

I dare you. If you've ever kept a diary, to get it out and have a read.

For some unexplainable reason, boys in their teens seldom if ever keep diaries. But most girls, especially between the years of 12 and 17, are given little leather-bound and lockable diaries, in which to keep track of the hearts' wanderings, the mint's adventures, and the growth and blooming of their girlhood.

My age has doubled since I came to the last page of a two-year book that hasn't been opened until recently, during one of my occasional bouts of nostalgia.

Somehow, during those intervening years, memory has played its twenty tricks on me.

I've started to recall those saddle-shod and crinolined days as golden and carefree. ... Not only that, but I had a clear vision of my diary as the repository of a great deal of sensitive, incisive prose.

I reopened the diary — had to break the lock, the key long lost — quite excitedly expecting to find the staff that memoirs are made of.

With reverential awe, I noticed through the dated pages. Stopping at random, I read (the first entry) I came to:

Today I decided to let my hair grow for exactly one year.

Karen stayed over night, we talked for ages Really had fun D.K. spilled at me today and I think he meant it.

Karen said she heard he likes me.

This wasn't really the kind of thing I remembered writing. As off day, I supposed and kept on leafing.

School is boring and dumb and I hate it. I am so crazy about sewing, except it's an squiggle, I'd just die if any one else knew, it's sooooo bad an eye-sore reads this diary, they will get wierd!!! I'm warning you Ruth!

(Ruth is my five-years-younger sister. We terrorized each other for most of our childhood. I lived in constant dread of her finding the key to my diary.)

Turning the pages a little faster now, I searched for a glimmer of intellect, anything but what I found.

After careful strategy, I got to walk to school with Howard.

Man oh man! We found out at noonhour the reason Yvonne was away is she got her appendix out ...

Wore my blue dress and even blue socks now and my corduroy coat and never see Jack all day. Shoot. School is a pain. Had to shovel the front walk and had a big fite with M. and D. They think they own me just because they're my friends. Solidgie Solidgie Squiggle. . .

However, the new baking teacher graduated in pet. chology or something. Wow. He is so neat. He has a gap between his two front teeth. Oh Diary, heart throbbin' ! !

Ordinary day except for one thing, Robert Goulet, really surveyed my fab attire. He passed. Really, he signed it. Oh faint! Went to choir practice with Kathy . . .

Went to four town dances. Now pleated skirt and sweater thing. Stood art around the girls side of the gym. Really really hoped someone would ask me to dance. He is tall that's the only good thing about him. All the boys at this school are so DUMB. Finally went to Kathy's house and watched T.V. with her father.

That's it, folks. The substance of those years than 700 entries. Boy-crazy, lazy and not very philosophic. But very much like what I (quite realistically) imagine teen-age girls to be like nowadays.

Maybe peeking back has given me a better sense of perspective than I'd bargained for.

Let me know if your turns out any different.

P.dare you!

New Gastroscope Donated

A new gastroscope was presented to Belleville General Hospital recently by the hospital auxiliary.

The diagnostic instrument is used to view the stomach and duodenum of patients and augments an older gastroscope the hospital was already using.

"This gastroscope allows us to get a better look at certain situations," Dr. J.R. Loudon explained, for example, a duodenal ulcer."

The gastroscope not only gives a clear view of the stomach but allows Dr. Loudon to photograph what he sees, take a biopsy, inflate the stomach or aspirate fluids.

Dr. Loudon says the gas troscope allowed the specialist hospital to perform the diagnostic services for patients from Napanee to Coborg and from areas as far north as Bancroft.

For Brides

Wedding photographs that have appeared in the paper may be picked up at the Women's Desk between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday to Friday.

When supplying a photograph to accompany the wedding story, try to obtain a glossy black and white print from your photographer. You will be happier with the photo's reproduction in the paper than if you supply a color photo or one with a matte finish, neither of which reproduce well.

One other hint is that, generally speaking, close-up shots of the bride and groom are preferable to full-length pictures in which faces are not so visible.

Wedding information forms are available at the Women's Desk, and should be filled out and returned within three weeks of the wedding.

The cost of having a wedding photograph in The Intelligencer is $4.76. There is no charge for the wedding story alone.

Noella Fisher of Dartmouth, N.S., is a job usually reserved for a man. She works as financial consultant to the Nova Scotia department of finance, after a stint as one of the first female lawyers with the provincial attorney-general's office. Miss Fisher says it is not unusual for her to be the only woman at a financial luncheon (PP Photo)

Financial Counsel In a Man's World

HALIFAX (CP) — Noella Fisher is a Dartmouth, N.S., native who has found a place in the world of finance. Mrs. Fisher, now in her 30s, was one of the first female lawyers to join the provincial attorney-general's office.

Now she works as financial counsel to the department of finance, a position usually reserved for a man.

"It's not unusual for me to be the only woman at a financial luncheon, lack or wherever. There simply aren't many women in the field."

Her position doesn't seem to bother her or her colleagues but she said such a briefcase in her flesh green urge, "some people do pause for just a fraction of a second when they see me."

But they soon forget about it and get down to the business at hand."

However, a woman in private practice probably encounters more problems of discrimination than one in government.

At six, Noella Brennan developed an ambition to become a lawyer. She said she must have been unconsciously influenced by her mother, who had planned a legal career but left after a year of law school because of a lack of money.

At Dalhousie law school, she was one of two women in a graduating class of 50. Now the school has 45 women in every four graduates and that's quite a change in so short a time."

After graduating in 1966, Miss Brennan articled for nine months with a Dartmouth lawyer specializing in criminal law. She had planned a career in commercial law, preferably in Montreal with an international firm but she took a position with the federal department of external affairs.

Though she never worked in other countries for the government, she turned down an opportunity to work in Argentina and instead returned to Halifax with the Industrial Development Bank.

It was here she left the finance department began shortly before she married a Halifax consulting engineer.

Mrs. Fisher said her present job is the most demanding and responsible she has held. Among other things, it involves preparing bond issues the government is to sell in Canada and abroad.

She said she finds each bond issue a challenge. Although they may contain dissimilarities, bond-issue documents are usually drawn up on the basis of previous ones and a small error in one could be compounded into a multi-million-dollar error in the least.

"There's a lot of work to it. It pressures at deadlines and things, but I enjoy it.

"If I run into a problem the other solicitors in the attorney-general's department are available to help me out."

In addition to bond issues, Mrs. Fisher advises the finance department and treasury board on the statutes they administer and also becomes involved in higher planning problems.

Besides her governmental work, Mrs. Fisher and her husband operate a real estate management, service and she is a member of the board of governors of Mount Saint Vincent University in Halifax.

She also is active in the John Howard Society and has been a volunteer solicitor but the arrival recently of a daughter has forced her to curtail them.

Ann Landers

How Important Is Sex in Marriage?

Dear Ann Landers: I will skip over the details and pass on to direct questions. One: How important is sex in a marriage? Two: Is it possible to be in love with someone and have no hankering to have sex with him? Three: Is it possible to be in love with someone and have sex relations without having the desire to be physically close to that person—I mean other than an ordinary type wholeover to have him touch you.

Please, Ann, give no hint as to where this letter came from. I can't take the chance of being identified by anyone.—Totally Confused

Dear Totally: Sorry, but I need to hear a great deal more than you've told me before I can give you an answer to your first question. Here are some examples of the missing information I'd like to have: How old are you? How old is your husband? Is this your first marriage? Why did you marry him? How much sexual experience have you had? Is your husband interested in sex? Is there any other man in your life—his partner, someone who really turns you on? If not, do you feel you are being cheated out of some important part of your life? Does your marriage have other compensations? Explain.

Two: There is no blanket answer to that question. It is possible to have a good marriage with very little sex if both parties have low sex drives and they have compensating commonality, such as respect, admiration, similar interests, and children they enjoy.

(Married sex troubles arise when a "Secretariat" is hitched up in a candidate for the glue factory.)

Successful Living

Try New 'Handy' Habits

By DORIS CLARK

It happens time and time again. You get into your favorite jeans, a cigarette, a cola drink, potato chips, or an chocolate. Whoa! Because it's at hand.

Could you do without, or would you consider a substitute? Reduce that pack of cigarettes with a dish of carrot sticks. (Before you laugh, try it!) As you read the evening paper, your hand reaches out and touches something cool and crisp. You don't have to fish for matches; and you don't have to light it. You "stick" it in your mouth and it crunches on your teeth — a clean, satisfactory sound.

Now let's reverse that cola drink with a glass of spiced tomato juice or a glass of chilled, unsweetened fruit juice or skim milk. Instead of adding unnecessary calories, these substitutes provide necessary nutrients.

Potato chips are not only high in calories, but they're high in price. Potato chip snacks run up to a cost of two pounds of meat per week. Celery sticks, lettuce wedges and other raw vegetables are good replacements for chips.

It's amazing how candies and chocolates disappear from a handy dish. Apples are handy, too, but instead of making an onslaught on the teeth, they act to clean them. Instead of burdening the body, fruit can give a sense of well-being.

News Leaf, Canadian Calorie Counters

Dear Doris:

When I fell in love, it was just great. I never knew love could be this way. So I married the most wonderful guy. But after one month of marriage my husband committed a crime, which led to his jail. Of course I was quite shocked but I love him; and therefore I "sat back and waited for his return. When he got out, I was happy and started fine. We got the past away forever.

Things got a little tough last recently, and my husband lost his job, which I didn't know about. He got involved and committed another crime. His case has not come up yet but it may soon.

I love him so much, but I don't want to say his out for something that won't happen. Should I lose all I have down the drain and try to forget?

Waiting Patiently

I would need to know what your husband did, his present state of mind, whether he really loves you. What the family is like, if any.

A good deal depends on you. Let the court's counsellor help you to sort out your feelings. You need to discover, too, just what kind of relationship you are dealing with and what the hope could be for the future.

(Human relations can hurt — or help — happiness. Get Doris, a trained counsellor, to help you handle yours, sending your letter in care of this newspaper.

Dear Waiting: Marriage may not be for everyone. Some of the men you are talking about don't want to be married. It's just as well. They'd probably make rotten husbands.

Any male with a normal, healthy attitude toward life could not be dedicated by his marriage and not want sex at all. So please remember the man-does-not-live-by-bread-alone. Your attractive, bright, successful guy who entertains in such a way might wonder if that way or he'd be doing something else.

Dear Ann Landers: Please settle an argument for me. My wife thinks that's the right of us and the last vote was five to three. We have all agreed to abide by your decision.

When two women are living together, say a mother and daughter, or two sisters or cousins, or just good friend, and they send a card or a letter signed by both parties, whose name should appear first?

The majority of the members feel that the older person's name should precede the younger person's name. Or, should the name be alphabetized?

What do you say, Ann?—Right In Waiting

Dear Right: I don't think it makes can bit of difference. Go back and inform your club letters that they need a new project.

AROUND TOWN with LANA ROBINSON

(. . . an eleventh-hour feature designed to help you serve better informed at what's now around town.)

Not Out of Mind

This is the last column in which you'll see us talk about what your money does in United Way, but it doesn't mean you should forget about the campaign. And it doesn't mean that you can't send in your donation to the U.S.C. headquarters if you might want it that way. Or send it to the appeal office any time you're ready to help them do their work — which they do all year round. Think about it. You just may need help from one of those agencies in the coming year; They won't refuse you, or your family. Don't refuse them now. Give the United Way.

A Family Business

Usually when you see that term in association with a business, you think: that the business is owned and operated by one family. That's true in the case of Trenton Optical, 54 Bridge St. E. But it's also true in another way. Trenton Optical can take pride in the fact that it's a business in which a husband and his wife and daughter and competently fitted. Sure, Trenton Optical has the latest styles in frames, but they also have styles which will be becoming and comfortable for eight-year old Melissa, or 92-year-old Jonathon. Trenton Optical really is a family business.

Rednerville Road

Gord Rabbit Real Estate, 117 North Front St. has a property for which they're very proud and keen to list. It's the Roy Bell property on Rednerville Rd. including a four-bedroom, modernized, farm house on 46 acres of good, farming land. It's the whole family property, and now it's for sale. Which is a cottage. The farm machinery will also be included in the terms of sale. This is an excellent opportunity for a family to buy into an excellent and reasonable property. Call the Gord Rabbit office today for inquiries about this or any other property need. That number is 968-6475.

Something New At Sidney Inn

Recreation isn't a new concept at the Sidney Inn, 365 Main St. W., but this is a new year, and the management is going to go along with the expansion. Now, Sidney Inn has a Carpet Warehouse section which is situated in the old Zastrow's location on Pinnacle St. across from the Market Square, and right inside the Sidney Inn complex. Carpets are the major carpet feature of this column. Sidney Inn will still have samples of carpet, but also will welcome to visit their carpet warehouse and see their selection of brands, colors and fabrics.

A Sale For Sewing Fans

The Quinte Sewing Centre in the Quinte Mall has a number of items are also some excellent buys on sale this week. Bias tape is on sale at 2 yds. at $1.39 a yd.; and $1.89 a yd., fifty-five and forty-five inch widths. There are acrylic fabrics normally priced at $3.98 a yd. on sale at $2.98 a yd. And $2.49 a yd.! And there are also some excellent buys on Hoover and Kenmore vacuum cleaners. Quinte Sewing Centre is open Friday and Saturday with Christmas buying on your mind, it's well-timed too.

Thinking Oval

That's certainly a change from thinking square isn't it? And when it comes to thinking oval, then think Belleview Glass and Mirror, 276 Dundas St. E. Belleview has an extensive line of oval frames which make the difference between having a picture and having a picture that's a little different. Have had any other kind of mirror you'd like for any other purpose, practical or decorative, but little oval ones suit their styles and joys. They can be yours too.

An Extension

Yadon's Car Sales, 102 North Front St. (at College) are extending their Car Winterization Service to Sunday, Nov. 3rd. Phone 962-2451 to make an appointment. It takes under a half an hour and it's free. Yadon's will check your battery, brakes and tire wear. And you get a free car accessory too. Being a compact car owner myself, I'm thankful for the extension of this car protection and I'm thankful for the opportunity even though my car is brand new, how old's age. What time better did you choose to buy a car? . . . Right after the car show season started? . . . sealed beam headlight? . . . windshield wiper timer? . . . Goodness, what a decision!

To Russia With Davidsons

Last week I mentioned Tony Warren's trip to Moscow and Leningrad. And today, I'm telling you how Davison and Davison Travel, 77 Front St. can help you plan your own individual trips by Kosmos. You can fly from Montreal and have Christmas in Leningrad and New Year's in Moscow, or Moscow or Easter, leaving March 26, for the same price (double occupancy) $1,099. There are 21 days for you and go Feb. 6 or Mar. 13 for 4 days for just $998.00. Single occupancy rates are somewhat higher, but you know Davisons can get you there and that you'll enjoy yourselves. After all, Davisons have really been there!

The Effects of Sheers

Paul Bernard of Bernard Interiors, 41A Campbell St., says a window without a sheer looks naked. Sheers can soften the starkness of a window, control glare, filter light and are easily cared for. They come in a variety of widths and colors and are easily cared for. They come in a variety of widths and colors and are easily cared for. Or, as a rule of thumb, Bernard says sheers twice the window width — at least. And Paul advises measuring and ordering your sheers while your interior properties to begin with the space. You just can't beat it. And you can't beat with Paul's help either. Call him at 962-4976.

Time Is Flying By

That's such a cliche, I know, but it's true. The fact that tomorrow is November 1st gives me a little jolt. And if you're in charge of planning your events — and you're not really prepared — it should give you a jolt too. If your group is under 40 in number, you can be sure that Eaton's at the Bell Boulevard is just the right size. The surroundings are cozy and centrally located. And I noticed a full selection of Christmas merchandise. But you'd better get down to doing it hadn't you? Call 968-3774 for inquiries.

Rough Skin Time

The weather's going to start taking its toll on your skin soon, if it hasn't already. And then it asserts to show up after you've lathed and showered and lost that healthy, outdoor look. Evidence would be if you could counter the effects of the weather and keep your looks as gorgeous as ever. Then you should think of the savings on bath oil, beauty and water conditioning agents. But just where? Well, you'll find it at Jewell Brenmore, 164 Dundas St. 962-0667 today. An Aquaflow Water Softner is a pretty inexpensive beauty investment.

Another Window Stopper

Wyatt Home Furnishers, 388 Front St. have done it again, tantilizing quality furniture buyers with their window display of a bedroom set by Kling, a Quaker item. The style of the suite is traditional. Done in pine veneer. But the harvest is unique: It's rough finish with shell carving. Wyatt have some of this suite with one of their pine lamps from their American collection. The window is truly lovely. And an excellent Christmas gift idea too. Visit Wyatt and see the window. Then walk in; the window's just the beginning.

Steams Into Retirement

Engineer Frank Davison retired at 90 per cent of the steam locomotives that were in the logging camps on Vancouver Island have all gone to scrap. (CP Photo)

Dynamic Incentive Program Finds Long-jobless Work

OTTAWA (CP) — It has been called one of the most dynamic work incentive programs that has ever been tried and results seem to confirm the analysts.

Le Coin du Travailleur, financed by the federal manpower department and the city of Ottawa, is an experimental program to find jobs for residents in a section of Ottawa with a long history of chronic unemployment.

The project, on a three-year trial, supplied jobs for almost three-quarters of the 700 people who registered with it in the first 18 months.

That's no small feat in Ottawa's Lower Town, predominantly French-speaking and with less formal education and more unemployment than any other area in the city.

The regular manpower office has traditionally had little effect. Its sterile atmosphere, recessed lighting and crisp panelled walls did not seem to reach Lower Town.

The average Lower Town resident has been unemployed for about two years, has probably never held a steady job and usually has a family history of unemployment.

Project co-ordinator Marc-Andre Paquette said: "A middle-class office worker and a person with little middle-class background are almost certain to clash, no matter how genuine the intentions.

"Many of these people haven't had the chance to develop goals toward jobs. In most families that's picked up from the father, but if the father has been unemployed where can the young people learn?"

While independent of the manpower department, except for financing, Le Coin du Travailleur works at its daily list of job opportunities.

"We're not competing with each other said Gaston Gauthier of Manpower. "The Lower Town office represents an attempt to discover new ways of improving the Canada Manpower service."

The nine-member Lower Town staff whose educational levels range from Grade 6 to an MA, have learned how to find jobs, Mr. Paquette said.

"We're people they can talk to freely. It's more than a counsellor-client relationship."

All nine employees in the office, located in the attic of a church hall, are long-time residents of Lower Town, who know the problems, the people and the frustrations. Perhaps of the greatest significance, they are not public servants.

The philosophy underlying the project is that unemployment is not an isolated problem, that it has roots in family, behavioral or personal problems.

To deal with apathy among the residents Le Coin du Travailleur has set up a mail of counselors who go door-to-door making contact with the unemployed.

"They are also taxpayers and they have a right to services according to their needs," said Ginette Gagne-Gauthier, head of the unit, "and their needs are different."

When contact is first made between counsellor and job seeker, details are taken of the applicant's job desires and his history.

But Le Coin du Travailleur goes a step further. If the staff feels emotional help is required before a person can successfully step into the work force the help of a professional agency is sought.

Some people out of work for a long time may require briefing on such basic matters as how to dress and act at a job interview.

Counselling does not end once the applicant has been placed. Because of the lack of traditional job experience, the counsellors do repeated follow-ups.

While the age of applicants varies considerably, two of the most notable cases have been over 50 years of age.

One man who had been receiving a disability pension for six years came to Le Coin du Travailleur a year ago and has since held a steady clerical position.

A 59-year-old man, a skidroad victim for 42 years, has been placed in a clerical job. Previously he had been spending time at an Ottawa hospital detoxification centre.

This year the first time he had held a job longer than was necessary to augment his drinking problem. With the aid of Le Coin du Travailleur he has been on the wagon for six months.

Not all cases are so easily handled. Staff members tell of one 31-year-old woman separated from her husband and baby, who was referred to the centre.

Her initiative had been crushed by previous experiences and her powers of concentration had dwindled. It took the centre some time to gain her confidence before referring the woman to a psychiatrist.

Then she was placed in a number of jobs-filing, restaurant, switchboard, of which she felt comfortable.

Working with her and supplying needed confidence and emotional support, Le Coin du Travailleur finally placed her in a factory job. There for almost a year now, she is a supervisor, has her own apartment, supports herself and has her baby back.

Brazil Keeps Lookout For Diplomats' Safety

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (Reuter) — Brazilian authorities are taking no chances with foreign diplomats here in view of the continued Latin American call for kidnapping.

Although the last diplomatic kidnapping here, was almost four years ago, strong security forces are still keeping a watch on many diplomats in the country.

Envoys ambassadors are considered to be much safer now that the heart of the diplomatic corps has been moved from Rio de Janeiro to the new federal capital of Brasilia.

The wide, straight and cop-lit-policed roads of the hotbahd, ultra-modern Brasilia make it the easy ambush location, getaway routes and hideouts offered by the twisting mass of streets in Rio and its sprawling suburbs.

But there is still a considerable consular corps stationed in Rio and many diplomats here have several bodyguards to prevent a repetition of the wave of kidnappings which hit this city and Sao Paulo in 1969 and 1970.

Then the United States, West German and Swiss ambassadors and the Japanese consul-general in Sao Paulo were kidnapped and freed only in exchange for 130 political prisoners.

Heads of consular missions in Rio are often accompanied by motorized bodyguards when they drive through the city, even if it is only on a short shopping mission. Diplomatic corps car plates have been replaced by ordinary number plates and one diplomat quipped that his number beginning with the letters DK stands for "don't kidnap."

Some diplomats recount stories of over-zealous guards. A consular official drove out one evening to buy some medicine. His wedding around a bush in the drug store behind him. When he turned around he saw that his two bodyguards had herded all the other customers up against the wall, weapons at the ready, while the hood in splendid isolation in front of the medicine shelves.

Each outside he told the guards he was going to buy some tonic water in the store down the road and they were to stay in their car.

The store manager, however, kept on offering him a bottle marked soda water, claiming it was tonic.

After a few minutes argument the diplomat felt a nudge in the shoulder and heard a gruff voice in his ear asking "having problems, boss?"

It was one of the bodyguards. When he explained that it was a mere dispute over a bottle of tonic, the guard pointed to the extra-large bottle and said to the storekeeper: "Drink."

"But ..." protested the storekeeper.

"Drink," repeated the guard menacingly.

As the storekeeper gulped down the contents, almost bursting, the guard asked calmly: "Soda water or tonic water?"

"Soda water," sputtered the storekeeper.

"OK, so don't play any tricks like that again," the guard said and walked out with a look of triumph on his face.

Most Retail Outlets Pass on Milk Subsidy

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal subsidies on skim milk powder are being passed on to consumers in practically all retail outlets, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Wednesday in the Commons.

Latest reports have found almost all retail outlets are passing the saving on to consumers, he told John Rodriguez (NDP—Nickel Belt).

Last week, the food prices review board reported that the 24-cents-a-pound subsidy was not being reflected in retail stores. The discoveries were made in several urban centres during the board's regular milk monitoring inspections.

Pensioners May Get Eggs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) is working on a plan to provide old age pensioners with low-cost eggs.

Agency chairman Phil Eldridge of Calgary told the special Commons egg inquiry Wednesday that the egg marketing organization had been working on the plan since June. "But we ran into problems."

Bid Made to Absolve Whelan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) attempted Wednesday to accept full responsibility for the destruction of 28 million eggs it bought from farmers as surplus, then left to rot in poor storage.

However, MPs on the 14-member special Commons committee studying egg marketing in the country continued to press arguments that much of the blame for the waste rests on Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan.

"Mr. Whelan's not off the hook by a long shot," Progressive Conservative consumer affairs critic James McGrath (St. John's East) said after the three-hour committee session.

There had been a "deliberate determination on Mr. Whelan's part to tell CEMA to 'go in there and do penance'."

Mr. McGrath commented following statements by Phil Eldridge of Calgary, chairman of CEMA, that the year-old agency was fully responsible for the destruction of the eggs.

But Mr. Eldridge added that he felt the severity of the problem had "been over-emphasized to a marked degree."

Further, he said that he did not feel over-production by farmers who refused to abide by quotas set by the marketing agency was to blame.

Very few farmers in this country did in fact rip us off," the elderly, soft-spoken chairman said after the meeting. The agency never felt it was burdened with "uncontrollable surpluses."

The problems that led to the destruction of the eggs arose primarily from international market pressures.

GOOD NEWS ABOUT THE CANADA SAVINGS BONDS YOU NOW OWN!

If you are one of the two million Canadians who already own past series of Canada Savings Bonds here's good news for you. The cash bonus payments announced last May have been increased to produce, from September 1, 1974 to maturity, an average annual yield of 10½%.

Everyone who owns unmatured Canada Savings Bonds, dated on or prior to November 1, 1973, will be entitled to receive these higher cash bonus payments on the dates payable, provided that the bonds have not been cashed in the meantime. Here are further details.

1. When a cash bonus becomes due, simply take your bond to any Bank or authorized Trust or Loan Company and Caisse Populaire and you will get your bonus immediately.
2. The cash bonus payments are in addition to all the other outstanding features of your Canada Savings Bonds. Bondholders who are taking advantage of compound interest privileges may continue to do so and will continue to be paid compound interest in the amounts specified at the time of issue of each series.
3. For tax purposes, the Government of Canada proposes to permit taxpayers to treat cash bonus payments either as interest income or capital gains. As a result, if holders include such interest under the proposed $1,000 deduction for interest income, the bonus payments will become exempt from tax. Alternatively the holder may find it to his advantage to include the bonus under the favourable tax treatment accorded to capital gains.

Tour Reveals Hardships for Handicapped in Belleville

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A Quinte high school student spent an hour in a tour of downtown Belleville Wednesday.

Nothing unusual about that, but this was a tour with a difference, for Sue McKinnon covered the familiar route in a wheelchair.

The shopping trip was part of a survey by the Belleville office of the ministry of community and social services, whose two rehabilitation counsellors, Ted Gunder and Allan Douglas, accompanied Sue.

The trip pointed out the inaccessibility to the handicapped of most of the urban amenities the fit take for granted.

Sue is enrolled in the community involvement program offered this year by city high schools, and she is assigned to the ministry of community and social services.

She started out in a borrowed wheelchair from the ministry office at 14 Bridge St. West. The short distance over the Lower Bridge to Front St. provided basic practice in wheelchair technique. Then Sue was on her own, her concentration deliberately trying to ignore her fast swelling fear of emergency assistance only.

She went up the west side of Front St. to Victoria Ave. and back down to the four corners on the east side of the street.

On the way she shopped in a hardware store, a supermarket, a book store and a bakery. She climbed a change at a bank and stopped at a restaurant for a cup of coffee. Finally, she took her wheelchair to Quinte to test the accessibility of her school.

In the hardward store she found lightbulbs she wanted at a convenient height, but the aisles proved problematic. Some of the aisles and the check-out counter were too narrow for her chair, forcing her to take the longest route around the store. Some doors she couldn't open, and she depended on helpful passers-by.

Getting out of stores was easier, because the front of her chair could be used as a wedge to shove the doors open.

Curbs prevented her crossing the street. Sue had to wheel herself some distance up the sidewalk to find a driveway, wheel down the roadway with the traffic to a convenient cross the road and roll along the curb until she found another driveway she could take to get her on the sidewalk again.

Sue said, were helpful. They opened doors; store clerks reached items down from high shelves for her, and a patrolling police constable stopped into a crosswalk to halt traffic for her.

Her supposedly cold-hearted companions got a few glares and the occasional nasty remark for ignoring her plight.

Sue had to be carried into and from the restaurant, where she found the counters too high for comfort. Washrooms were totally inaccessible.

Sue's conclusion after her two-hour foray: The wheelchair - bound person can't go out without a companion, every move must be calculated in advance to avoid exhausting doubling back to alternate on a shopping trip, and it's just too much trouble for a handicapped person to try to go out.

She said we proposed visits to Corby Public Library and Hastings County Museum because flights of steps at both places put them out of bounds unless she had two strong companions to carry her up and down.

The two social workers with Sue watched public reaction.

"All the staff members in that supermarket had their eyes on you. You were being watched, and that's good," commented Mrs. Gander. Although Sue said she was impressed with the helpfulness of those she encountered on her tour, she added she found the architecture of the city unfriendly to the handicapped.

"There are so many barriers," she said. More than I ever realized."

Ellis Attacks Bill

By JIM SMELIE
Staff Reporter

A bill presently up before Parliament that would change the tendering and bidding processes used by those in the construction trades was attacked Wednesday by Jack Ellis, Member of Parliament for Hastings.

Mr. Ellis was speaking to a meeting of the Quinte Construction Association at Sun Luck Gardens Wednesday evening.

He told the members that if Bill C-8 titled, 'An Act to amend the Combines Investigation Act and the Bank Act and to Repeal an Act to amend an Act to amend the Combines Investigation Act and the Criminal Code' is not changed now by minority groups, it will become law before Christmas with damaging results.

He pointed to examples of how the bill, currently before the House of Commons for second reading, would affect people in certain trades if it was enacted.

He said, "If any realtor was heard charging exactly the same real estate fee as his competitors, he could be charged under the new Act. If a concrete company was selling concrete block for less than the cost of materials and the others, the company could be charged.

"And if two ready-mix companies sell at exactly the same price to the same job they could be in trouble and the onus would be on them to prove they are not price fixing. If they don't have the same price, they may be in trouble with the contractors," said Mr. Ellis.

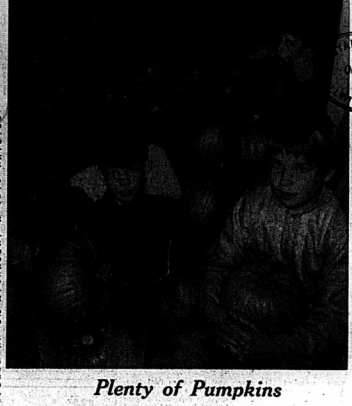
Mr. Ellis said the major change in the legislation that brought about the possibilities he mentioned, is the inclusion of the paragraph on "service", which is taken to mean, "A service of any description whether industrial, trade, professional or otherwise."

Mr. Ellis said this will include, besides plumbers, electricians, lathers, erectors, etc., all the perimeter services such as architects, engineers, surveyors, lawyers and others.

"Just how realtors, lawyers, architects and engineers are to get around the provisions of the Act where they are prohibited from charging similar fees, I don't know," he said.

Mr. Ellis mentioned the importance of competition in such an industry as construction. He himself was associated with the construction business and with both the QCA and Quinte Home Builders before taking office.

He added that construction trades people are "from time to time taken to task, sometimes expensively, for banding together and trying to fix prices.



Plenty of Pumpkins

Halloween is traditionally a night for the kids. But the older ones have a hand in making sure the night is full of fun and surprises. For the first time this year the city's Jaycees will be going from door to door selling pumpkins. Here Kevin Hyderman, 8, left and Timmy Hannah, 10, lose themselves in part of the 2½-tons of pumpkins the Jaycees have for sale. That's Howard Hyderman, 11, in the rear.

Artist's Talent Revealed In Variety of Techniques

"I'm intrigued by what I don't know, by mystery, by where things came from and where things go," explained Kim Ondaatje in her audience Wednesday night, in reference to her paintings and prints of doors, mirrors, and rooms within rooms.

The internationally - acclaimed Canadian artist was speaking at Corby Library after spending the day at Bayside Secondary School, sponsored by the Art Gallery of Ontario and the Hastings Board of Education.

Artist Plans Show

Local artist Jerry Sapley will have an exhibition of his work in the upper gallery of Corby Library, beginning Nov. 4. The two-week show will feature Mr. Sapley's pen and ink drawings and prints of historic buildings in the area.

style were several of the prints from her Picadilly series of pale, hauntingly empty interiors.

"I don't paint in people because then you could no longer wonder who might come in that door, who might sit in the chair. The mystery would be gone," she said.

An artist is several media, Mrs. Ondaatje is a self - taught printmaker. Photo - lithographing reproduction now makes her prints more widely available. She showed by her paintings, too large to bring with her, by means of colored slides, tracing the development of her style. Early oil paintings of bold rocky landscapes contrast vividly with her more recent acrylic canvases of factories, refineries and smelters.

Not until she was 27 did Mrs. Ondaatje, wife of award winning poet - Michael Ondaatje, and mother of six children, give up her career teaching University English to become an artist. Within a few years she was recognized as uniquely talented, and now has a reputation as a film-maker as well.

She showed her most recent film, Patchwork Quilts, that accompanied a lyrical song the making of quilts. The film was first shown in connection with a display of quilts organized by Miss Ondaatje for the Agnes Etherington gallery at Queen's University in Kingston.

"I don't quilt or sew, but I love quilts," she said, adding that women who make quilts are as much artists as she is.

At the close of the evening Mrs. Ondaatje showed slides of several quilts in the travelling patterns felt as something from Kingston across the country, and will be in Cobourg November 1 to 24.

Her names given to quilts - names like "Log Cabin" and "mariner's compass and crossed canoes" describe Canadian pioneer life. They're part of our heritage."

Crosbie Offers Advice

Tonight's the night we celebrate All Hallows' Eve, Or Halloween as it's more commonly known down through the centuries.

While the event originally began as a religious celebration, the passage of time has made it into a night for fun and fun.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie says there would be full police staff on tonight and advises residents to report "anything out of the ordinary."

Chief Crosbie recommends some suggestions that parents could follow to ensure that tonight is a safe and happy one for everyone.

Children eat trick or treating should wear something bright so as to be visible to cars in the dark. If children are young, they should be accompanied by a parent or older brother or sister.

And, any unwrapped or sealed articles brought back should be examined closely by a parent, the chief advises.

The chief also cautions children against trespassing on school grounds or construction sites.

Topic is Art

Murray Irwin, Arts Co-ordinator for the Hastings Board of Education, had a chance to talk with Kim Ondaatje during the informal coffee hour following her film, slide and print show at Corby Library. The subject matter the award-winning artist chooses for her work ranges from factories to quilt patterns.

Chief Says Ottawa Supports Council Stand

TYENDINAGA — Chief Wilton Bernd says Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan has reiterated support for this reserve's band council — now declared dissolved — opponents of an industrial corporation here.

The chief visited Tuesday in Ottawa with the minister and opposition party representatives.

He said Mr. Buchanan told him unless the council violated Indian Act regulations, the minister would continue to back the reserve's elected government.

Chief Brant also met with Flora MacDonald, Conservative spokeswoman on Indian affairs, and Andrew Brewin of the New Democratic Party.

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, said he arranged the meetings with the parliamentarians "to keep them informed" of the Tyendinaga situation.

The discussions followed a meeting here Monday of Mohawks opposing the council. It was attended by members of the Iroquois Indian Movement (AIM) and the Native Peoples Embassy in Ottawa.

Chief Brant said he is "quite concerned" about AIM's presence on the reserve Monday — "particularly if they get in with violence in mind".

Purpose of the Monday meeting was to discuss an election which the council's opposition proposes for Nov. 20. Protesters now are drafting regulations for the election, which will be presented at another meeting Monday night.

Announcing the election earlier, Cliff Maracle, a councillor who is a leading protest spokesman, said it would be held according to native custom under the Iroquois Indian Movement (AIM) and the Native Peoples Embassy in Ottawa.

By hand custom a chief is chosen by the elected councillors. At present, the chief is elected by reserve residents.

Mohawks opposing the industrial corporation — now producing shoe uppers for Bata Footwear — see corporate structure as a wedge introducing taxation, provincial and municipal regulations on their reserve.

Other reserves have corporations, said the chief. Opponents are working on fears of assimilation into white culture "that have been built up over the years" among native peoples.

Fire Guts House

WELLINGTON — Fire Wednesday afternoon gutted the Main St. 2-storey home of a Wellington couple causing an estimated $2,000 damage.

The house, owned by Keith Rathwell, was locked when the blaze broke out as the owners was in Toronto and his wife got caught in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital. Cause of the fire is believed to be faulty wiring, said Wellington Fire Department spokesman Cecil Insley.

The blaze was observed seeping from cracks around the windows and doors by a neighbor, Mrs. Roger Cook, who turned in the alarm shortly before 1 p.m.

One fireman, Donald Chandler, of Wellington, was injured when a window blew from their hand pressure. He required 70 stitches to close a wound in his hand.

Fred Clarke, water works superintendent will be the Belleville Utilities Commission vice-chairman and president of the Eastern Ontario Waterworks Association Wednesday, outgoing chairman Elmer Moore of Smiths Falls.

The association met at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel here for its 17th annual convention.

Mayor Recounts Moscow Visit

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Wednesday night, a mayor's involvement in the workings of a public utilities commission is an "essential tool," providing necessary background information relevant to council work.

She made the comment during a speaking of the Quinte Century Club of Belleville's Public Utilities Commission.

"My work with the commission has helped my development as a member of council in the knowledge I have gained," said the mayor.

She said water and electrical servicing has been a focal point of recent municipal politics and that it is essential for her to have a thorough, working knowledge of the commission's activities and be able to take that information back to council.

In her address to the club, the mayor made no mention of the upcoming Dec. 2 election and confined her speech to her recent trip to Russia, viewing the Canada-Russian hockey series.

She described Soviet lifestyle as one "strange, foreign way of life."

She spoke of onion-shaped Russian Orthodox church domes — "fairy tale wonders disconnected with the present." In a lengthy speech she drew a picture of feeling and entering the world's largest country which embodies 104 assimilable ethnic backgrounds.

The mayor told how upon arriving in Moscow air terminal, a man ahead of her in customs had his baggage demolished searching a case and had several Playboy magazines confiscated.

Upon arrival, Mayor Jeffrey said it was almost like the people there "were afraid to be too friendly."

Service Honored

Alfred Rogers is shown here receiving the congratulations of Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey for his admission to the Public Utilities Commission Quarter Century Club — denoting at least 25 years of service. Miss Laura Morsn, Marion Ennbury and Lyle Tweedy were also named into the club at a meeting Wednesday night.

Corke Plans to Seek Another Council Term

Ben Corke, an aldermun with senior service in city council, says he will seek re-election.

Alderman Corke has been a member of city hall administrations for a total of 11 years, dating to 1960.

During his terms of office he has often held critical views and, he says, there "might be an opinion around that I'm a negative-thinking person opposed to a good many things.

"By the same token, I have also supported many things around this city."

He fitered council as a successful downtown businessman — currently he operates two women's wear stores. His background experience includes banking, management, retail accounting and sales.

In 1963-63 he as named deputy-mayor and chairman of the then finance executive committee for several years.

Retiring from council in 1965 he successfully sought election once more in 1970.

His more recent council appointments have included the Quinte Planning Board and the Belleville - General Hospital board for which he is finance chairman.

Burshaw Gets Top Union Post

Long-time Belleville labor leader Don Burshaw has been named vice-president of the Canadian segment of the United Rubber, Linoleum and Gypsum Workers International Union.

Mr. Burshaw for 14 years was employed at Polst Anne's Canada Cement Co. His union career began as a shop steward for three years, followed by a year of chief steward and finally president of the plant's local 219 — a local his father belonged to and has an honorary member Mr. Burshaw's brother Nelson.

Mr. Burshaw said since his successful election his several companies have telephoned or cabled to congratulate him, a sign he says of a continuing good relationship with firms where the union is present.

Mr. Burshaw says he doesn't believe bargaining table disagreements should result in making enemies between management and labor. "We agree to disagree but we can still be friends."

The only member of the Burshaw family who is working and isn't a card-carrying union member is Mrs. Annie Burshaw, Mr. Burshaw's brother.

For 38 years she's been drawing mail along RR. 4 between Belleville and the Tyendinaga Reserve. At 74 she still doesn't want to quit and her proudest possession is a citation of long service awarded her by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, said Mr. Burshaw.

Red Devils Bow Out

Quinte Juniors Move To Football Final

By MARK BRETT
Sports Staff

"That was a good one," smiled Quinte junior coach Barry Turpin at the conclusion of yesterday's 15-6 win over Bayside Secondary.

Quinte earned the right to meet the winner of tomorrow's contest between Moira and Centennial for the Bay of Quinte Championship.

The defence, with strong performances from Dale Vos, Steve Mott and Joe Ross, twice stopped the Bayside Devils inside the five-yard line.

Quinte scored both its touchdowns in the first half.

Paul Bandelopoulos opened the scoring early in the first quarter. He played a solid running game for the junior Saints gaining many valuable yards on the ground.

The convert was good, giving Quinte a 7-0 lead.

Bayside's best opportunity came late in the first quarter as full back Mike Peckitt ran the ball five times in a row for 45 yards, to the Quinte 15.

The Saints defence came through when needed however as they dug in their heels and held the Devils on a third and 10 attempt.

Quinte's final touchdown came in the late stages of the first half.

Saints started on a 45 yard march deep in their own end. Ken Revoy and Bandelopoulos doing the most work. A third down gamble by the Saints coaching staff paid off as Revoy got the first down yardage, Steve London took the ball over for the touchdown and the convert was good giving Quinte a commanding 14-0 lead.

Bayside started out strong in the third quarter as they moved the ball to the Quinte 15 yard line a gain on a good pass reception on a third down gamble by the Devils.

The Saints defence again held firm and didn't give an inch.

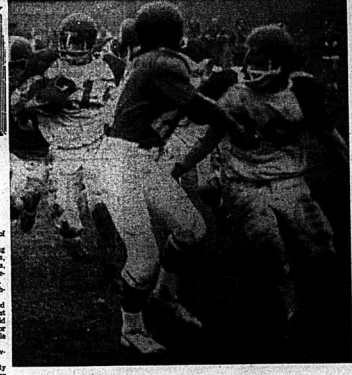
Quinte's punter Al Johnson supplied his team's final Point on a boot into the end zone.

Bayside got a little help on their only touchdown halfway through the fourth quarter.

Two unnecessary roughing calls and an offside penalty against Saints amounted to half the distance to the goal line. This worked out to approximately 30 yards for the Devils setting up the score.

Peckitt ran the ball 15 yards on an end sweep for the six point.

The Devils elected to go for the two extra points put the pass attempt was blocked.



Peckitt On the Move

Bayside Red Devil Auger (39 white uniform) forces Quinte's Terry Pascoe outside so Bayside fullback, Mike Peckitt (21), can move the ball inside. Despite efforts like this one the Red Devils dropped a 15-6 decision to the Saints in their Bay of Quinte Football semi-final contest. Quinte now advances to the league final.

Senior Football Semi-final

Tigers Get an Argument From Fired-up Saints

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

TRENTON — Quinte Secondary School has produced senior football teams that have put together more successful seasons than the one enjoyed this year by the Saints.

But Wednesday here, Rick Locke's team came up with an effort which has to be rated on a par with that turned in by any team representing Quinte over the years.

Hammered 33-0 by the Senior Trenton High School Tigers just six days earlier, Saints were something else, Wednesday.

Matched against the undefeated Tigers in Bay of Quinte semi-final action, Saints very nearly upset the home team. In fact, if success were measured in near misses, the Quinte Seniors were there.

The only points of the game were scored early in the second quarter and in a game dominated by the defences, it was a Trenton defender who counted the lone major.

Defensive back Greg Kendrick recovered a Quinte fumble on the Saints 40-yard line and scampered all the way for the six-pointer. Terry St. Hilaire added the extra point.

Until Kendrick's gallop, it appeared the two teams might never break through to decide things, on this drizzly afternoon.

Twice, Saints' quarterback Rick Cullen fired passes to receivers who had nothing but daylight between them and the Trenton goal line but each time, his mates found it impossible to hang on to the greasy ball.

And in the last minute of regulation time, Tigers came very close to handing the visitors a major.

Saints had the Tigers penned deep in their end for much of the late going and with the minute flag up, it appeared Quinte had finally earned the big break.

Set to punt on third down, Tigers' Dave Lewis got a high snap. He corralled the loose ball but it squirted loose and was recovered by the Saints.

Quinte had three cracks at it from inside the 70-yard line on the third, the game was over with the ball inches from the goal line.

Tigers' defence, providers of the game's lonely touchdown, came up big when it counted most and savedthe day.

Trenton's running game, featuring Rick Alexander and Steve Beecroft, had its moments but the scrappy field and an inspired Quinte defence held the two backs in check.

Saints' halfback Scott Bowen had another big day, supplying some determined running.

John Masterson rambled for an important first down off a punt formation, and end Terry Fredericks came up with a key reception to keep a late drive going.

Tigers now meet the winner of the Moira Secondary School, Centre Hastings Secondary School semi-final played the Bay of Quinte final is scheduled for Tuesday. The site depends on the outcome of the Moira-Centre Hastings match.

Senior Saints' Bill Forbes (70) struggles to free himself from the grasp of Trenton High School defender Blaine Rittberger during Wednesday's Bay of Quinte semi-final match at Trenton. Closing in on the play is Trenton's Gord Saunders (42). Saints bowed out of the playoffs grudgingly, going down 7-0.

Rod Seiling

Defenceman Sold

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers announced the sale yesterday of veteran defenceman Rod Seiling to the expansion Washington Capitals for the $30,000 waiver price.

Seiling has been used sparingly this season and was informed of the National Hockey League move several hours before the Rangers' scheduled game Wednesday night against New York Islanders.

He had been a regular since being acquired in a trade with Toronto Maple Leafs in February, 1964. In that trade, the Leafs also sent Dick Duff, Bob Nevin, Arnie Brown and Bill Collins to the Rangers in return for Andy Bathgate and Don McKenney.

4-4 Draw Doesn't Make Reay Happy

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

It seems that Billy Reay, veteran coach of Chicago Black Hawks, is not an easy man to satisfy.

Sunday night, after the Hawks completed a 19-goal workout in weekend games against Toronto Maple Leafs and St. Louis Blues, Reay said he was worried about his next game.

The next game was Wednesday night at the Montreal Forum against the Canadiens and the Black Hawks came from behind to tie Montreal 4-4, one of three ties in four National Hockey League games.

In other action, New York Islanders tied New York Rangers played to a 1-1 tie, Atlanta Flames downed California 6-1 and Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars played to a 3-3 tie.

The tie gave Chicago a one-point edge on Division II standings, and Reay still was not satisfied.

"I would have scored 3 stayed at 9-0," Reay said. "I got four goals on the road is too much to have scored against you."

Montreal took a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by defencemen Larry Robinson and Guy Lapointe. The Hawks rallied on goals by Dennis Hull and Germain Gagnon before Guy Lafleur put Montreal ahead 3-2 in the first of two goals at 17:18.

Cliff Koroll tied the score for Chicago at 4:45 before Lafleur got his second of the night with a beer minute to go in the middle period. Koroll then popped his second of the game and fourth of the year with 1:44 gone in the third.

At New York, Bob Nystrom scored on a breakaway with 3:28 left in the third period to give the Islanders their tie with the Rangers.

The teams battled through two scoreless periods before Brad Park gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead when he fired a 30-foot wrist shot past Islanders net-minder Billy Smith.

Smith fared to shots while his team-mates fired 17 at Rangers netminder Eddie Giacomin.

Two goals by Buster Harvey and singles by Keith McCreary and Dwight Bialowas accounted for Atlanta's offence against the Seals. Craig Patrick spoiled Phil Myre's bid for a shutout when he scored on a breakaway in the first period.

A goal by Jean-Paul Parise at 15:49 of the second period gave Minnesota the tie with the Bruins, who got a pair of power-play goals from Phil Esposito.

Angotti Resigns

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (CP) — Sid Salomon, chairman and chief executive officer of St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League, announced Wednesday that Lou Angotti has resigned as coach of the National Hockey League club.

Angotti requested an unconditional release so he will be eligible to re-enter hockey as an active player, Salomon said.

"Circumstances will not allow me to play in St. Louis," Angotti said.

Lynn Patrick, former coach and now senior vice-president of the Blues, will coach the club on a temporary basis.

Salomon said that a new coach would be selected to serve on an interim basis for the balance of the season.

A former player with five NHL clubs, Angotti became coach last Feb. 15 upon the resignation of Jean-Guy Talbot. He was the seventh St. Louis coach in as many seasons.

A playmaking centre until he took the position behind the Blues bench, he previously played 10 seasons in the NHL with New York Rangers, Philadelphia Flyers, Pittsburgh Penguins, Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis.

The coaching change by the Blues was the 10th in the club's history.

SCHOENFELD NAMED

BUFFALO (AP) — Defenceman Jim Schoenfeld of Buffalo Sabres has become the youngest captain in the National Hockey League. The 25-year-old Schoenfeld, in his third season, was named Tuesday to succeed Gerry Meehan, who was traded to Atlanta Flames.

Put a snowplow on your car

Uniroyal's radial snow tire, the Snowplow, is made to last more winters than any conventional snow tire you've ever owned.

Better traction and easier move-offs
Radial design hugs the road to keep the tread firmly on the surface when cornering or swerving. Lower rolling resistance and deep, biting tread get you moving even in the deepest snow.

Steel belts make it more puncture proof
Twin belts of steel protect against road hazards. Pot holes, stones, sharp objects, even glass are less of a problem because of Snowplow's sturdy construction.

$54.95 each ER78x14 Whitewall

Better handling and steering control
The steel belts and radial design help you over-come obstacles with less chance of over-steering.

Better Value
Designed to give you many more miles of winter driving. The Snowplow's radial design helps save on gasoline mileage, too.

Uniroyal has a snow tire to fit every car and every pocket book. And you can always say, "Charge it".

SNOWPLOW BELTED
2-ply nylon cord body with 2-ply rayon belts. Wider tread design than conventional snow tires to "dig-in and drive".

Wins Cy Young Award

Hunter Still Looking For $$$ from Finley

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Being asked to decide the pitcher in the American League for winning the Cy Young Award is about as much fun as (Catfish) Hunter's troubles with his boss, Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley.

Hunter said he is surprised after his 25-game season selection that Finley still owns one percent of his contract as the team's property.

Asked about this and the uncertainty he might claim free agent status, Hunter said that he has been told by baseball officials of a meeting between his attorney, Jerry Kapstein, and the baseball players' association and Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of baseball.

"They're going to decide what's going to happen with that," Hunter said.

When Finley was asked about the dispute, he declined comment. Why ruin a great day for Hunter, he said.

Finley said he was very pleased that Hunter had been chosen as described as "one of baseball's gentlemen in the game."

The 28-year-old pitcher expressed little surprised that he won the award over Ferguson Jenkins of Texas Rangers, who received 75 points from a 30-member panel of the Baseball Writers Association of America to 90 for Hunter.

Hunter said he learned of his selection Wednesday afternoon when his wife told him after he returned from a fruitless deer hunt.

"I thought Ferguson Jenkins might get it. Instead of me," Hunter said. He pointed out that both of them had 25 victories per season and that Oakland had won the World Series.

"His team was not as good; so he had to pitch a little better," Hunter said.

Hunter was the only pitcher named on each of the 24 ballots, and he received 12 first-place votes to 10 for Jenkins of Chatham, Ont.

California Angels' Nolan Ryan came in third with 28 points and one first-place vote. Cleveland's Gaylord Perry got the other first-place vote and tied with Jim "Catfish" Hunter with eight points. Baltimore's Mike Cuellar had six and relief pitcher John Hiller of Detroit Tigers had one.

Last year's AL Cy Young winner was also the only pitcher, more, who did not receive a single vote this year.

Hull's Goals Sink Phoenix

Toros Are Human After All

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Toros' six-game winning streak—the only unbeaten record in the World Hockey Association—came to an end Wednesday night with New England Whalers beating the Toros 5-2.

In other games, Vancouver Canucks whipped Edmonton Oilers 8-4, Houston Aeros blanked Chicago Cougars 1-0, Winnipeg Jets beat Phoenix Roadrunners 4-3 in overtime and the Minnesota Fighting Saints defeated, postponed by further difficulties with ice-making equipment, Cleveland's new Coliseum.

New England began 6-2 by Toronto in their eleven openers two weeks ago, worked hard for their win over the Toros who were playing their first game of the season on the road.

The Whalers outshot Toronto 42-28 in the game and 17-10 in the third period when Ron Ellis had came up with a three-goal rally by Tom Webster, Thommie Abrahamsson and Mike Byers.

A crowd of 2,823 at Springfield, Mass., saw the Whalers and Toros play to a 3-2 tie after two periods on goals by Whalers' Jim Dorey and A. Karlander and Toros' Vaclav Nedomansky and Pat Hickey.

At Winnipeg, Bobby Hull scored his third goal of the game at 8:19 of the 10-minute overtime period to give the Jets their fourth win in five starts.

Hull lifted the puck over sprawling Gary Kurt after the Phoenix goalie made two saves in a row.

Anders Hedberg and Mike Nilsson scored for Winnipeg in the last half of the third period to force the overtime.

Michel Cormier's three goals and one each from Dennis Sobchuk and Howie Menard threatened to force the Jets back to their first home loss of the season.

Bryan Campbell's three goals and two each from Claude St. Sauveur and Danny Lawson led Vancouver to its third win in six starts.

Rusty Patenaude and Ken Baird each scored twice for Edmonton, which twice had a two-goal lead. It was only the Oilers' second game of the season and they have yet to gain a point.

Wayne Rutledge made 35 saves to earn his first shutout for Houston and Murray Hall scored the Aeros' only goal midway in the third period against Chicago.

At Cleveland, the ice in the new $28 million Coliseum wouldn't freeze properly and the Cleveland had to abandon their second attempt to open at their new facility.

Toronto's scheduled game at Cleveland on Sunday was also postponed by an equipment failure.

Cleveland's next home game is set for Saturday, against Edmonton.

New NFL Entry

McCloskey Gets Tampa Franchise

NEW YORK (AP) — Tim McCloskey, ended a six-year drought Wednesday as he was awarded the new Tampa franchise in the National Football League.

McCloskey was picked before Jim Ritter of Rahway, N.J., for Tampa's NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said. Yet, Tampa sports figures registered surprise that the young businessman, next to an out-of-towner.

The league owners will award the fourth franchise at the next month, Rozelle said, and both teams will begin play in the 1976 season.

The commissioner said the league will expand again, taking "two more teams, maybe not probably not before later."

"I feel McCloskey will make a very fine owner," Rozelle said.

McCloskey, the son of a former ambassador to Ireland and Democratic Party treasurer, Matthew H. McCloskey, tried to buy Philadelphia's 76ers from their then owner, Jerry Wolman, went bankrupt, and then when Leonard Tose purchased the team.

Rozelle said McCloskey, who is paying $16 million for the franchise, could be the sole owner or the club, but would prefer to have ownership shared by holders from Tampa.

Owner and president of McCloskey and Co., one of the nation's largest builders and real estate developers, McCloskey, 49, is one of the founders of Carverine, the Philadelphia-based group which sponsored Joe Frazier's attempt in the world heavyweight championship. He also is the owner of the Philadelphia Atoms of soccer.

Fincups Gain Share of First

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Fincups defeated Kitchener Canada 6-3 Wednesday to create a three-way tie for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series. It was the only game scheduled.

The Fincups, with nine wins and six losses, are tied with Toronto Marlboros and Kingston Canadians.

Rookie centre Danny Steeves led the Fincups with two goals and two assists. Mike Yeaworski, Greg Clause, Dale McCourt and Joe Cantil scored the others. Hamilton goals before 1,765 spectators.

Pete Vandermark, Tom Newton and Paul Gardner replied for the Generals, who finished the scoring and went into the second period 3-1.

New Manager Gets Results

England delighted new manager Don Revie with a 3-0 victory over Czechoslovakia in its opening match in qualifying group one of the European nations cup of soccer Wednesday night.

And it was two shrewd substitutions by Revie that released a flood of goals after England had been held scoreless for over an hour.

Board Alters Fees For School Use

BLOOMFIELD — A study by an ad hoc committee appointed by Prince Edward Board of Education chairman Keith Hart fled to establish a third fees for community use of schools in the country.

The decision to appoint the committee followed a board meeting earlier this month when representatives of several community groups addressed the board to question the fee system.

The fees were applied to cover the costs of normal power and heat" on schools and equipment and to assist in meeting caretaker expenses.

At a meeting this week trustees voted that organizations such as Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Brownies and Cubs, church groups and 4-H be re-classified in group 2 to eliminate an accommodation charge.

The groups will be urged to use the schools while custodial staff is on duty. If this is not possible, costs will be met by the board.

A Prince Edward square dance group, The Country Whirlers, will be permitted to use Prince Edward Collegiate Institute for their centenary New Year's Eve dance although it had been decided the schools would remain closed during the holidays.

Trustees agreed the square dancers should be permitted to hold their party as the request was submitted before a fee scale was established.

The Picton recreation and parks committee, the Bloomfield-Hallowell parents group, and a minor hockey group headed by Kenneth Ireland will be permitted use of the schools for a 25 accommodation fee instead of the $15 per room charge initially stated. Custodial charges also will be reduced in accordance.

A United Church men's group AOTS (As One That Serves) withdrew its recent request for use of Pinecrest School.

Farmer Tells Consumers To Buy Meat in Bulk

By CARL MALAFYT
Staff Reporter

AMHERSTBURG — Lyle Vanclief, 31, a feedlot operator and pork producer has a question. "Why is meat so cheap on the hoof and so expensive over the counter?" And he has an answer for consumers who can buy and store meats in quantity: Buy from the farmers who raise the beef and pork.

"I don't think that there is a lot of cost involved in packing and marketing, but the big spread between what the farmer is paid and what the consumer has to pay seems to be what is inflating prices," Mr. Vanclief said.

"Feed fit operators are having a hard enough time breaking even, but it is the cow-calf man who is really getting hurt. The cow-calf man has a long time to wait before his calves are ready to sell as replacement cattle. If the market turns sour as it has — bodies men just won't buy what he must sell."

Mr. Vanclief has about 30 head of Hereford and Holstein crosses on a grain feeding program. If he were to buy a 500-lb. replacement cow at 30 cents a pound, feed it up to 1,000 lbs. and sell it for 40 cents a pound (the going rate), his profit — if any — would be minimal.

As a consequence, Mr. Vanclief sells his beef (and some pork) for freezer orders, rather than to buyers representing packers and chain stores.

"I can get a better price and stay in business that way. A lot of farmers are doing the same and it would make sense for them to do it, too. As long as beef keeps going up, and most keeps coming down, it's a way to survive," he concludes.

Poor Turnout Ends Future Walk-a-thons

TRENTON — Scouts here will never again organize a walk-a-thon, predicted Trenton District Council officer Cecil Paul Wednesday in revealing that only about $1,200 was collected through the group's first major fund raising drive in five years.

Mr. Paul said the council, governing body for 10 town districts, spent three months preparing for the 21-mile Sept. 7 event.

"No one showed up," he said bitterly.

Organizers saw less than a third of the anticipated 300 cubs and scouts come out to walk. Money raised through the venture supports the TDC's work among youth.

Five years ago, a similar walk-a-thon raised $5,000, enough to allow the group to operate for five years.

Because of the dynamic decrease in participation and money collected, Mr. Paul said "We'll have to definitely come up with something else in the next year to raise funds."

Only other source of funding is the traditional annual Apple Day. This year about $1,500 was raised.

District chairman Clarence Whitman said Wednesday, he had considered a paper drive by boys in the scout movement.

"It's hard to pinpoint a reason," Mr. Whitman said. He suggested a lack of faith in backing of the groups themselves.

As an example, he said one member group of the council had run a bottle drive to raise funds and it did not participate in the walk-a-thon at all.

Aid Sought For Victims of Fire

Donations of clothes, household furniture and money are being invited for the Ronald Wood family from Hillcrest which Wednesday lost all personal possessions in a fire.

The blaze destroyed the family home, all household possessions, and killed the family's three-year-old son Roger who was trapped at the bed side of his sister, 5, in the one and a half storey home.

Wednesday neighbors of the Wood family, Mark Graham, Al Wood and Gordon Harris acted hurriedly to provide contributions for the destitute family now split up and staying temporarily with relatives.

Mr. Graham said the Red Cross had supplied the family with initial clothing, bed additional clothing was needed as well as household furniture.

Information regarding the family can be obtained by calling 962-9512, 962-4276, or 962-3206. Furniture for the family may be left at 16 Herman St., 56 Avondale Road, or clothing may be left at 174 East College or with Mrs. Effie McCabe 389 Bleecker.

Donations of money may be left with the Bank of Montreal.

Reeve Gets Post

Ameliasburg farmer Lyle Vacoller helps his son Kurt check harrold of finished beef cattle, ready for market. Cattle are on grain feeding program and are finished in barn with slatted concrete floor over manure pit. Manure and liquid are pumped from pit about every three months for use as fertilizer on corn, which is used for feeding.

PUC Commissioners To Seek Re-election

Both Belleville's public utilities commissioners Lyle Langabeer and Gerry O'Connor announced Wednesday night they will seek re-election in the upcoming Dec. 2 municipal election.

Mr. Langabeer, a railroader, had devoted 12 years to the board's activity before spending the last nine years as commissioner. Although he has been an outspoken critic of city hall and certain developments he said during an interview Wednesday he received good co-operation from all fields and last election received the greatest voter support of any municipal official including mayoralty candidates.

He said the next few years will be "demoing on the commission and that a lot more thought and serious consideration will be devoted to servicing the townships of Sidney and Thurlow."

Mr. O'Connor, owner of a downtown jewellery shop, has five years of commission experience behind him.

"I'd personally like to see some things through that are facing the commission," he said.

Servicing the townships and retention of the commission's identity are rated as priorities by the veteran commissioner who feels that regionalization of the utilities will "dilute" the voice of the people who pay the rates.

Two Fined For Thefts

TRENTON — In provincial court here Wednesday two young men were given one month sentences, placed on two years probation and ordered to pay the Hastings County Board of Education $800 each after both pleaded guilty to the break, enter and theft of approximately $750 worth of electronic equipment from the board's Media Centre on Wooler Rd., March 18.

Sentenced were Larry Steven Watson, 18, of 203 McGill St., Middleton Park and Francis John Dillon, 19, of 16 Laird Dr., Trenton.

Restitution was ordered after the court learned all equipment but that valued at $1,700 was recovered. Watson was ordered to repay the board before August 31, 1975, and Dillon, before Aug. 1, 1975.

In addition, the court fined Dillon $100 after he pleaded guilty to a charge stemming from a March 18 auto theft.

In another case, William Robert Gilbert, 19, of 34 Dundas St., West, pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief and willful damage and was fined $200.

Police laid the charge after investigation revealed two car windows, valued at approximately $90, were broken in the Toronto Dominion Bank on Dundas St. West here.

Trenton Store Robbed

TRENTON — Two men in their early twenties escaped with approximately $120 after robbing three employees at Dirt's Handy Stand at knife-point late Wednesday.

The armed robbery marks the third in recent months.

Police said today no one was injured during the 9:20 p.m. robbery.

The two men walked up to the front counter of the store and one demanded the employees fill a paper bag and he put into a bag, police said. The men left the 113 Byron St. store on foot.

Det. Sgt. Ed Vickers said today descriptions of the two men are poor although neither wore a mask.

He said the robbery bore some similarity to two others in Trenton recently. Price's Variety Store on Byron St. and the Canadian Tire Gas Bar on Dundas St. East were also robbed at knife-point.

Police continued their investigation today.

Opening lead—3 ♥

By Oswald and James Jacoby

As one of our homespun philosophers said, "There's more than one way to skin a cat or develop a squeeze."

South went right up with dummy's ace of trumps and took stock. If he could just keep leading from his own hand he could ruff out three spades and score seven tramps plus five side-suit cards. However, he doubted if his opponents would let him do that. Could he ruff two spades?

Yes, he could, provided he did not run into a 4-1 trump break. So South proceeded to lead a spade to his ace; ruff a spade and play ace and another diamond.

East won and led a second trump. When West followed, South breathed a sigh of relief. He led the jack of his own hand; ruffed a spade with dummy's last trump; led and ruffed a diamond from dummy; cashed his last trump and had a supply of aces in the world in general.

East had been forced to throw a spade on the third diamond. Obviously the last trump was going to cause him to spades and clubs. It did and the slam came home.

What were the other ways in make the slam? Only a bright 3-3 or with slightly different distribution, West could have been squeezed in the major suits.

B.C. Mailboxes Now Anchored

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's red, white and blue mailboxes are becoming immovable objects as part of the war on crime.

A post office spokesman said about 600 of the 1,100 boxes on street corners throughout British Columbia's lower mainland have been anchored down. And more boxes in the province will be cemented into sidewalks or anchored in the earth because mail box break-ins have risen sharply.

The post office said thieves knock boxes over to fly mail out of them. Then they rip open letters, apparently looking for money.

There were 42 such incidents in the 12-month period ended September, 1972. The total the following year was 220.

So far, the post office has spent $10,656 repairing damaged mailboxes

Depression Out

MONTREAL (CP) — W. Earle McLaughlin, head of the Royal Bank of Canada, contested the skeptics recently when he forecast the world was not heading for a depression although inflation would continue in industrialized countries.

Liquid Dangerous For Use in Nose

By G. C. THOFFSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoffson: I am bothered with dryness in the nose. A specialist prescribed an ointment but I still have an occasional nose bleed.

I found that petroleum jelly has helped but how can I get more of it further up the nose where the dryness really occurs? The doctor said not to use Q-Tips.

Is there some form of liquid or drops I can use? I also have a stinky smell that stays in my nose. Would this be sinus trouble?—D.B.

This dryness is called atrophic rhinitis. The surface cells in the nasal passages are shrivel, normal secretions are reduced, crusts form, and you are experiencing the annoying results.

Mild ointments (as you have) help. Or petroleum jelly. But when you ask about a liquid (say, mineral oil) to get it higher in the nove. I have to say no. Your doctor has indicated that he didn't want you to get it higher in the nose and he had a good reason. Inserted too far, oily drops can descend into the lungs and do damage there.

The crusts that form break off cause the bleeding you mention. The stinky smell develops from crusts, mucus and other material in the nose. This condition is called ozena.

There are things that can give you further relief. For one, check with your doctor about the use of nasal irrigations. And in some cases ivomeen, that is the use of estrogen or female hormone, minimizes the dryness and the troubles that go with it.

Dear Dr. Thoffson: I had dermabrasion approximately eight months ago. I was told at the time by my doctor that I shouldn't get in the sun for at least six months, but after that a little at a time wouldn't hurt.

I have been out in the sun a little and the area that was scraped will not tan. Is this normal? To me it looks like scar tissue. I have even used tanning cream which is supposed to tan with or without the sun. That doesn't work either. It just won't look right. The area is white and slick-looking. Will the area eventually tan? There is a distinct line here the dermabrasion area stops.—Mrs. G.H.

It could be that the layer of skin containing melanocytes—the cells that are responsible for tanning—was affected. It would depend on how deep the dermabrasion went, and you give me no indication of what its purpose was.

The white, slick-looking tissue is scar formation and may never tan again if the pigment layer was affected. I can't shoot all the "maybes" I can offer, but I do suggest that on return to the doctor who treated you. Knowing just what was done and seeing you, he will be in the best position to tell you what if anything can be done to get you tan again. Lacking that, he can advise on special cosmetics that won't have that distinct line showing.

Ocean-going tugs tow the Sedco 704 oil rig under the Angus L. MacDonald Bridge linking Halifax and Dartmouth, N.S., Halifax is the only Canadian shipyard currently building oil rigs and the industry has brought stability of employment to the shipyard labor scene. (CP Photo)

Nova Scotia Yards Are Busy Building Offshore Oil Rigs

HALIFAX (CP) — Offshore oil and gas exploration has created a burgeoning world-wide industry in construction of the huge, complex and expensive rigs used in the continuing search for new petroleum reserves.

Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. has moved solidly into the field at its Halifax Shipyards Division and the Trenton Works Division at Trenton, N.S., 100 miles northeast of Halifax.

The fifth rig built by the yard headed out of Halifax harbor this fall under tow by ocean-going tugs in the North Sea.

Three were built for Southeastern Commercial Drilling Ltd.

Sedco is a Canadian company owned by Sedco Inc. of Dallas and Commonwealth Drilling Ltd. of Calgary, which leases the rigs to oil companies. One was built for Sedco Inc. and another for Sea Drilling Netherlands, another Sedco affiliate.

Sedco and the Halifax yard, Seadon catching the eye of Haligonians with some of the largest and strangest-looking vessels ever seen in this busy port, are developing an expertise and streamlining production procedures in a manner that sources say is making Halifax more and more competitive in the new field.

It has been estimated there are 220 operating offshore rigs in the world now and another 100 will be at work within about three years.

A Japanese government survey indicates a world demand for 430 of the rigs and drilling ships by 1985 and Japanese yards are reported tooling up to build them.

The demand foreseen for the next decade takes on more significance considering the time involved in building one rig—roughly 20 months to two years for the biggest semi-submersibles here.

If the Japanese are correct, it means contracts for about 30 rigs a year must be let, on average, every year between 1977 and 1985.

Value of a finished rig can range up to $40 million and one estimate is that about half of this represents the actual shipyard building work. The other 50 per cent is the cost of equipping it.

Roughly, that means up to $600 million or more in rig construction work may be up for grabs in the eight-year period and as much again may be spent on equipment—everything from furniture to sophisticated electronic and other gear.

Where do Canadian shipyards fit into the picture?

At the moment, Halifax Shipyards is "the only one building rigs. The closest competitors are U.S. builders in New Orleans and Texas. One of the first of the rigs built in Canada was constructed at Victoria, without the aid of a 17-per-cent federal shipbuilding subsidy said to be crucial to the competitive position of the Halifax operation.

It took a bit of study by federal officials to decide whether the rigs were ships and eligible for the subsidy. They are and there are safety and other regulations governing them which builders say are even tougher—considering that the standards of other countries where the rigs may go must be met—than regulations governing ordinary ships.

It is estimated that at a certain point in building a rig close to half the work force at the yard here, numbering up to 1,200, would be working at that one job. The lengthy construction period has brought stability of employment to be shipyard labor scene here, often plagued by boom-bust cycles.

Expansion plans are in progress to improve and add to shipyard space here to accommodate rig construction in order to cut to the minimum the time period between finishing of one rig and starting another.

Partly with this in mind, Hawker Siddeley is building at Trenton such things as the cages caisson supporting the superstructure. This has added 120 jobs to the yard.

Movement of huge caissons—35 feet or more in diameter and the height of an oil storage tank—from Trenton to Halifax was impossible by road or rail transport. So Hawker Siddeley has begun shipping them by barge down the East River from Trenton and around the Nova Scotia coast to Halifax.

The 260-foot barge Haltren, a former water carrier in Norfolk, Va., carried 600 tons of water ballast and a cargo of 300 to 400 tons as she squeaked down the old East River Channel, deepened 25 years ago for wartime shipping.

There is considerable spin-off of sub-contracts to numerous Canadian and United States companies for equipment going into the rigs. But the steel used here in the basic structure is coming mainly from Europe.

Industry sources say the unique stresses imposed on the rigs when they anchor for work in water ranging close to 1,000 feet deep require steel of a type that has never been produced in Canada and probably never will be, in view of the relatively limited market compared to the cost of production.

Proximity to the Canadian east coast area of oil exploration appears to be of minimal significance in the long run, sources say.
